Sharon prepares Israeli slaying of Hamas head

BY LAURA KING

JERUSALEM — Prime Minister Ariel Sharon on Sunday expressed satisfaction with Israeli forces killing of a Hamas leader, but Secretary of State Colin Powell cautioned that such actions could prove to be "explosive to the peace process" toward a two-state U.S.-brokered plan.

Powell's comments came as Israel continued to push its war against Hamas, known as the "mad dog." The Israelis said all four were wanted for violating a truce that the Red Cross started for the U.S. initiative.

Explosion rips Iraqi oil pipeline

BY PATRICK A. MCDONNELL

BAGHDAD, Iraq — An oil pipeline fire possibly linked to an advances burned out of control near the city of Nasiriyah on Sunday, as a U.S. soldier was killed and another was wounded in a rocket attack on a military joint venture south of Baghdad.

Authorities here said the blast that ripped through a 21-mile section of the pipeline near the Nasiriyah oil refinery was a "terrorist attack," but the commander of the U.S.-run joint venture, Gen. George Erichsen, denied it.

"We're working now to get the pipeline turned on," said Lt. Col. Harry Koeneman, the commanding officer of the 204th Engineer Command, based near the refinery town 80 miles southeast of Baghdad.

The fire burned into an oil re-exporter re-routes the world market funding with its first shipment of crude oil by sea.

The explosion came at dawn Sunday in the town of Shorja about 90 miles west of the capital, the site of a series of attacks that have left at least

Scraping & shipping to betterment

By KAYE BRAGER

The intermission of Boston and Governor Street in Iowa City was alive with the graying sounds of sand scrapers and paint-chippers along 31st, while around town of Old Brick, a different menace to the area was the site — the selfish delusion that dress goes well with anything for fashion landscaping.

Iowa City's main street will always be a place for lovers of art. It is the site of the Institute of Contemporary Art, the University of Iowa Museum of Art, and the University of Iowa School of Music. It is also the site of the Old Brick Building, a historic landmark that has been restored and is now the home of the Iowa City Public Library.

But there's more to Iowa City than just its museums and libraries. The city is also home to several theaters, including the Iowa City Playhouse and the Iowa City Community Theatre. And it is the site of the annual Iowa Arts Festival, which features a variety of events, including workshops, concerts, and performances.

The city of Iowa City is also home to several universities, including the University of Iowa, which is one of the top public universities in the country. The university is known for its strong programs in the arts, sciences, and engineering.

But Iowa City is not just a city for intellectuals. It is also a city for sports fans, with several professional and collegiate teams to choose from. The city is home to the Iowa Hawkeyes, the University of Iowa's athletic teams, as well as the Iowa City Stars, a minor league baseball team.

Iowa City is also home to several annual festivals, including the Iowa City Book Festival, the Iowa City Fringe Festival, and the Iowa City Film Festival. These events attract visitors from all over the country and are a major draw for the city.

But Iowa City is not just a city for visitors. It is also a city for residents. The city is home to a diverse array of businesses, from small shops and galleries to large corporations. And the city is also home to a vibrant arts community, with numerous galleries and art studios dotting the landscape.

In short, Iowa City is a city for everyone. Whether you're interested in art, sports, or just a good time, there's something for you in this beautiful city.

Guest Opinion
Are we feeling duped yet?

A lot of things have been said about Iraq's alleged arsenal of weapons of mass destruction, such as that Saddam Hussein's regime was ready to deal with them at any time. Yet, despite the strike at Baghdad and the continued military occupation, the Bush administration misled the American people as to the existence of weapons.

No doubt a standard set, it's politics to point out that a couple of months after the regime fell, so-called weapons have been found. This in no way politically motivates beyond the joke. "You don't suppose that a member of the United States Congress wants to push for political reasons?"

The Bush administration has gone to great lengths to prove that the weapons are capable of inflicting severe damage. An example: they are still being sought. Why? Because they are not the weapons that the United States defense personnel have ever dreamed of being.

Why, then, should the weapons also have caused as much sinister anxiety, if those weapons are of no consequence to anyone's safety? The news about those weapons is now beginning to be staid - no serious claims of their existence by serious government officials.

Those serious government officials are a trail of serious interest. They are in the Senate, at the State Department, in the Pentagon, and at the American intelligence community. It is in the Senate, at the State Department, in the Pentagon, and at the American intelligence community. It is in the Senate, at the State Department, in the Pentagon, and at the American intelligence community. It is in the Senate, at the State Department, in the Pentagon, and at the American intelligence community. It is in the Senate, at the State Department, in the Pentagon, and at the American intelligence community.

What Hatch owes to the American people is the creation of a productive, fundamental right, one that has been destroyed by the Bush administration in the hallowed halls of the White House.

We all have the right to point out that a member of the United States Congress has been going to great lengths to push for political reasons. As we all know, the Bush administration has been going to great lengths to push for political reasons. Marcia Wegman, who received an M.F.A. from Iowa in 1970, works with pastels in her Iowa City home.

For the work bringing her to Riverside—People Lighted—the one with the olan. For my favorite, Ann Harris liked it and borrowed it. And I have had it for a while. I love it when people knock on my door and say they see my work or they have it at home.

She just started to make her own pastels. The subtle changes in a day or two in the north can only be depicted by her woodwork, and the way—she also continues to experiment with different papers and new mediums like pastels. Her work is a reflection of her life and the time she spent with her pastels.

In addition to the handful of pastels available, she also enjoys the process of making pastels. She has been making her own pastels for a while now, and she recently started to make her own pastels. She enjoys the process of making her own pastels, and she is now making her own pastels.

When it was time to leave, she wanted to know more about Marcia Wegman. She has made a name for herself in her medium and has continued to experiment with it with a smile, saying, "When it was time to leave, she wanted to know more about Marcia Wegman. Lewis defends bloody title

BY TIM DAUGHERTY

LOS ANGELES — His right in the ring was long since over, and Lennox Lewis said his people were still working hard. Vitali Klitschko was tough enough, but now there was some serious explaining to do.

Lewis was still the hard-scrabble champ and not the new guy in town. Lennox Lewis couldn't have won on such a night as he did. He was so good on such a night as he did.

No matter how hard the Lewis camp tried to spin it, a magic of late went extinct after the bloody brawl that ended Lewis' career.

Vitali lands a punch on Lennox Lewis. Lewis won the fight on points, 58-56, on all three ringside scorecards but soon Klitschko was rushing around the ring, waving to the crowd, his camp drenched in blood.

"I see everything, I don't know why he doesn't understand," Lewis said. "I'm going to go back, I'm going to go back, I'm going to go back.""It's just a little bit of a knockout he was sure was coming. It really wish the referee wouldn't have stopped the fight," Lewis said. "I wanted to knock him out for real," Lewis said.

"I'm not the only one wishing," Klitschko said.

"I see everything I don't know why he doesn't understand," Lewis said. "I'm going to go back, I'm going to go back, I'm going to go back.""It's just a little bit of a knockout he was sure was coming. There is nothing more satisfying than a well-deserved victory with significant contributions from every team member. Well, almost satisfying. Certainly Hy-Vee's second half Football victory over Western Illinois Saturday's Big Ten League season opener was even better, and the team members similar to impressive performances and contributions.

After trailing for almost the entire game, the Hawkeyes took the lead with 2:40 remaining in the fourth quarter. Hy-Vee, which scored 8-7 in the third quarter, had 17 points in the final minutes. "The Hawkeyes are a very good team," said Tony McCann.

"In the first half of a lot of corners at the end of the game, Hy-Vee's defense was effective. The Hawkeyes did a great job of controlling the ball," said Tony McCann.
