Complaints about UI drop

BY ALEX LANG
A UI ombudsperson said in an annual report released Tuesday that the number of complaints it had received, along with recommendations on how to improve campus morale, was the lowest it had seen in several years.

The office received 14 complaints of discrimination, as per previous years, and Malia-Gene Sagen, a university ombudsperson, said the majority of these complaints dealt with sexual harassment, but there were also complaints of discrimination involving race, sex, and age.

The office had received 24 complaints this year, compared to 27 last year.

Most of these complaints involved potential physical violence, Sagen said, adding that they often involved actions such as yelling, yelling, and door slamming. Complaints come from the students, faculty, and staff.

"What we're working on is in the kind of things that can lead up to violence," Sagen said. "We're pretty good at preventing it.

Complaints during the 2003-04 academic year were down 23 percent from the previous year, according to a report that students' biggest concerns were academic issues. Most dealt with grades and grade appeals, but there were several complaints about conflicts with faculty members and administrators.

This is a big improvement, in that this past year I had found from Chicago and now I have turned to Paradise Skydives in Vinton, Iowa, about an hour north of Iowa City.

The small operation is owned and operated by UI alum Jay Breyer, who started the business in 1993, while working for the M.A.A. Receiving its first jump in 1993, he tells me what he was thinking as he prepared to jump out of the plane. What am I doing? You have to jeopardize your sanity a little bit. Something you are going to regret in the future... You just wonder."
Sex-offender program exits Oakdale

BY PAULA MAVROUDIS

The state decided to move the 58 sex offenders from the Iowa Medical and Correctional Center in Oakdale to the Cherokee Correctional Facility for Men in Cherokee on Tuesday, August 19. The move is part of a state mandate that was enacted in 2001, and it is the first time sex offenders will be housed at the facility since it opened in 1986. The move will free up space at Oakdale to house more patients, and it will provide a more suitable setting for the sex offenders. The Cherokee Correctional Facility for Men is specifically designed to house sex offenders and has a program in place to help them become productive members of society.

Officials: Contact vital for at-risk kids

Despite a wide spectrum of treatment methods available for at-risk youth, Iowa City School Board members agree that establishing personal connections is paramount to helping them "break the cycle." In the School Board's fourth work session concerning the district's at-risk youth, representatives from local health and education organizations emphasized the need for inter-agency collaboration in order to attract students from a particular organization or community to the district.

Agreeing with the idea of integrating human contact in the treatment of at-risk youth, Jim Hall and Mary Lauer, doctors from the UI Hospitals and Clinics pediatrics department, presented a health resource center for students in the district. The center, Hall said, provides free health and social services as well as physical therapy, counseling, and limited psychological counseling.

Jim Swain, the executive director of the United Action for Youth, also advocates personal relationships between students and mentors. He said that the agency's partnerships with local businesses and connected communities have proven successful.

The agency offers services in youth development and job readiness, targeting low-income teens on issues such as networking, pregnancy, and abuse, among others.

"By providing these partnerships with local schools, health officials said, adding that the youth agency has worked with districts in Iowa, Dubuque, and Iowa County. "It makes us a better source, and we can connect people, which eases our work."

Still, health officials dealing with at-risk youth find that skills and complex issues concerning the individuals, Swain said.

He added, "We don't want 1,000 percent of the time, then we're doing something wrong."

DES MOINES — Gov. Tom Vilsack said on Tuesday he is taking federal farm office officials to begin assessing damage caused by a monthlong streak of hot and dry weather. Vilsack said the assessment could lead to a disaster declaration for much of the state because of widespread drought and sweltering heat.

"I'm calling in the federal folks to begin assessing damage caused by a month-long streak of hot and dry weather," Vilsack said. "All corners of the state are lacking précipitation."

Vilsack said the assessment shows damage is significant, just more quickly to declare a disaster and seek federal aid, which could come in the form of low-interest loans, disaster loans or other forms of financial assistance that could be critical. Iowa has had a similar dry streak and harkened back to last August.

"This is a fundamentally important crop," Vilsack said. "I think what we're trying to do — and I give him credit for it — because the working together and have not yet gotten any signs on people," Vilsack said. "This is very widespread." Vilsack said. "All corners of the state are lacking précipitation."

The governor initiated the process by sending a letter to Farm Services Administration Director Jerry McLean asking federal officials to begin assessing the damage caused by the monthlong streak of hot and dry weather. Judge said the state was in a position barely a month ago to begin assessing damage caused by a monthlong streak of hot and dry weather.

Kerry: Bush policy lacks sense

BY MIKE GLOVER
ASSOCIATED PRESS

DES MOINES — Massachusetts Sen. John Kerry announced this week he plans to accumulate $200 million by the end of August to challenge President Bush in the 2004 election — and that Bush should have stepped aside last month when it was revealed that the administration had adopted one of his ideas.

Kerry, who is running to succeed retired Sen. Paul Tsongas, also will try to rely on polls showing that a majority of Americans believe the war in Iraq was a mistake.

"George Bush has proven that the presidency is not the place for the job training in national security," Kerry said. "I ran for the Senate, attending a ceremony at a monument honoring 651 Iowa soldiers killed in the Vietnam War, exchanged a new Vietnam for the Kerry Committee, led by state Sen. Sharon Wardwell, Delaware City.

Warren, now with the Iowa National Guard, served as an Army intelligence officer in the first Gulf War. He said the "vetera-" group could be a present force in the state's lackluster precampaign climate and that it would be the instigation of nearly 300,000 Iowa veterans to be heard in a fellow veteran.

Kerry announced a cam­paign in the Vietnam War, win­ning three Purple Hearts, a Bronze Star, and a Silver Star. He argues that his military background makes him the only person who can escape Bush's effort to focus attention away from the war.

"It is very clear that nation­al security is going to be a major issue in this race because our country needs to be safe," Kerry said. "The approach of this administration is in Iraq, in my judgment, is outside of common sense and outside of the value of the country."

He said the Bush administra­tion is letting "wilde, ugly, and anger, and enmity and ideology" stand in the way of exiting the war in Iraq, which places the lives of American soldiers at risk.

"To not draw on other coun­tries to become our burdens and make the transition to a peaceful region beyond my belief," Kerry said. "It is vital that we are accounted, and I want us to prevail in a way that maintains the interests to America.

Kerry voted to authorize the use of force in Iraq, but he has been critical of Bush's hand­ling of the conflict since then, particularly for not including other countries in the effort.

He urged involving the Unit­ed Nations as an "ace in the for­t of American troops as far as possible.

In speeches before the Veter­ans of Foreign Wars and other groups, Kerry has called for a "new compact" with the nation's veterans, assuring Bush of their support for policies that have served the country.

Kerry said he has been working hard on the military record, which has been speculated about since he was announced as the Democratic nominee, but has said nothing about it.

Kerry announced that the Senate would require that participants come to the first a minimum of 12 months having some hospitals. Participants must be currently using other Deca-Provera or an oral contraception pill.

All study-related meals and hospital expenses will be provided.

Making rock 'n' roll history

BY RICHARD SHIRK

Like standing on a tall mountain overlooking the town, The Iowa has been a 21st-century rock 'n' roll center for the 7,000 people gathered in the middle of the Iowa countryside in August. Many local bands, known for their energy and talent, have made their mark on the world stage over the past few years.

The Iowa is one of the most popular venues for live music in the state. The club is known for its intimate atmosphere and high-quality sound system. It has hosted a number of influential bands, including The Rolling Stones, The Who, and The Beach Boys.

Over time, the club has become a hub for the local music community. Many local bands have played here, and others have gone on to achieve national success. The Iowa has also become a popular destination for tourists and music fans from all over the world.

The club's history is filled with memorable moments. From the first shows in 1972 to the current lineup of bands, the Iowa has been a place where new talent is discovered and established artists continue to draw crowds.

For those looking to experience the energy and excitement of rock 'n' roll, The Iowa is the perfect destination. Whether you're a seasoned music lover or a newcomer to the scene, this venue is sure to leave you with memories that will last a lifetime.

"Complaints from the majority of those surveyed indicated that the university's carbon footprint was inconsistent with the values of the community," said faculty member Rachel Reagan. "The respondents expressed a desire for a comprehensive study of the university's carbon footprint." The university administration has indicated that they will consider the responses, but it is not yet clear what action will be taken.

Bush: No retreat from Iraq

President Bush stands before the audience at a fund-raising luncheon for his 2004 reelection campaign at the St. Paul New Center on Tuesday. Bush made fund-raising appearances in St. Paul and St. Louis, raising his campaign coffers to $30 million.

BY DANA MILBANE

President Bush sought on Tuesday to steel the country for more hardship in Iraq, acknowledging that the fight will require a large and extended commitment of American resources but that there was an alternative to complacency. "Patriots in the face of terror would neither waver nor retreat further and further from what is right," Bush said. "There will be thousands of veterans at the American Legion conventions here. ... There will be no retreat." Bush's speech, coming on the same day that the number of combat Ant U.S. troop losses in Iraq surpassed the number killed in this spring's war, did not directly address complaints that have been levied against him by both Democrats and Republicans that he is committing on inadequate number of troops and amount of funds to Iraq. But he addressed a growing public concern about the occupation by saying success in Iraq was necessary for success in the war on terror and pledging that he would do whatever it takes to win. "Building a free and peaceful Iraq will require a substantial commitment of time and resources, and it will yield a substantially safer and more secure America and the world," Bush said, adding, "the work of Saddam Hussein's邪恶 is not complete until Hussein is totally defeated; until his regime is toppled; until the occupation force is reduced to its smallest terms of reference."

Iraq "is now a point of testing in the war on terror," Bush said Tuesday, adding that "terrorists are gathering in Iraq to undermine the advance of freedom." Though experts have raised questions about the significance of ties between Saddam Hussein's government and Al Qaeda, Bush said Thursday that "Al Qaeda and other global terror networks recognize that the defeat of Saddam Hussein's regime is a defeat for them." Calling that broader conflict a "test of our perseverance, our patience, and our will," an impressed Bush said the "sacrifices could not be greater." He added: "Our one goal, our only option, is total victory in this war on terror."

SUBSIDIZING AIRPORTS DOESN’T FLY

By Jesse Helling

In the future, residents of Seattle will not feel the love for the city that a visit to the once bustling Sea-Tac airport provides. The airport is suffering from a lack of funding, and if major changes do not occur, it will continue to lose relevance. The city council has failed to prioritize the airport’s needs, and as a result, it is being left behind by other airports across the country.

The airport is facing several challenges, and one of the most significant is a lack of funding. The city council has not provided enough resources to keep the airport running smoothly. As a result, the airport is becoming less attractive to travelers, and the city is losing revenue.

Another challenge facing the airport is its location. It is located on the outskirts of the city, making it less accessible to travelers. This has resulted in a decrease in the number of passengers using the airport, which in turn has reduced the revenue generated by the airport.

The airport also faces competition from other airports in the region. For example, Sea-Tac is facing competition from the nearby Portland International Airport and the Sacramento International Airport. These airports are offering better facilities and more convenient services, making them more attractive to travelers.

The airport is in dire need of upgrades and renovations. The city council has failed to prioritize these needs, and as a result, the airport is becoming outdated. This has resulted in a decrease in the number of passengers using the airport, which in turn has reduced the revenue generated by the airport.

If major changes do not occur, the airport will continue to lose relevance, and the city will lose revenue. The city council needs to prioritize the airport’s needs and provide the necessary resources to keep it running smoothly.

Official fingers Pakistan in blast

BY SHANKHADEEP CHOUDHURY

RYMARC India — A top Indian official has fingered Pakistan for the recent bomb blasts in Delhi, saying that the neighboring nation was involved in an attack that ripped through the city on Sunday. Deputy Prime Minister L.K. Advani, in a Tuesday appeal to Pakistan and the自称 Muslim group LeT, which has been involved in terrorist activities in India, was quick to blame the neighboring nation.

"I would say that our neighbor’s war of terrorism continues to be a destabilizer to Kashmir, to Jammu and Kashmir, to the stability of the whole region," Advani said during a tour of the damage. "There is an attempt to destabilize the situation in Kashmir."

Though local officials had been quick to suggest on Monday that the blast appeared to be an act of terror aimed at the country’s political leaders, national leaders had initially been cautious about blaming their neighbors. Officials also denied the involvement of any foreign power in the blast.

"There were high explosives, no doubt. But it looks like a couple of duds," said a senior police official. "It’s easy to see and not much to say about what went wrong."

Israel continues raids on militants

BY LAURA KING

JERUSALEM — Israeli soldiers entered the city of Laskha-e-Taiba, a known Hamas stronghold, in the early hours of Tuesday, according to reports. Israeli forces entered the area after receiving information that a group of Hamas militants was hiding in the city.

The two incidents drew sharp criticism from Israeli human rights activists, who accused the military of targeting civilians in violation of international law.

"It’s a dark day in Laskha-e-Taiba," said a senior Hamas militant. "We have been warned to stay away from the area.

Israel launched a wide-ranging offensive against Palestinian militant groups such as Hamas, Islamic Jihad, and the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine, which has been involved in the recent wave of attacks.

The Israeli military, however, defended both operations as part of an "imminent threat assessment" to its own security, saying that it had been ünterminated an imminent threat assessment to its own security, saying that it had been determined that the threat was real and imminent.

Smoke clears for ailing MSU team

BY DONOVAN BURBIA

There are no smoke alarms in East Lancing, so Smoke Tate won't have to administer them for the next several games. At least not in a competitive setting.

The line-calling official told Tate he was going to be moved to No. 2 in Michigan State's defensive hierarchy, and that he would serve as the depth chart's No. 1 option in case of injury.

"That's why I'm here," Tate said about his move to No. 2.

"I'm not going to lie to you, I've been waiting for an opportunity for a long time," he added.

"I'm just excited to see how I can help out the team and contribute to the defense."
HAWKEYE CROSS-COUNTRY PREVIEW

Hawkeyes seek depth in lineup

BY JASON BRUMMOLD

The Hawkeyes, looking to bring a new cross-country team this season to the University of Iowa and the Big Ten, are focusing on bringing on new talent with the hopes of improving their team's overall performance.

In recent years, the Hawkeyes have struggled to find consistent depth on their team, which has hindered their ability to compete at a high level. However, the team is hoping that by implementing new strategies and bringing in more experienced runners, they can improve their overall performance and compete more successfully in the Big Ten.

The team is also looking to improve their consistency throughout the season, as they aim to bring out their best performance in every race.

Claret practices while waiting to play

COACH (AP) - Illinois' Rob Claret practiced a week ago and did not play in the team's 61-30 loss to Michigan State. The forward, who was out with a knee injury, is expected to return to the lineup for Saturday's game against Minnesota.

Claret, 6-foot-9, had six points and 10 rebounds in the loss to Michigan State. He is averaging 12.4 points and 7.1 rebounds per game.

Pen State football player Anneke Phillips was expelled yesterday for severe assault charges involving another student.

Phillips was accused of being involved in a fight with a student, and the incident occurred during the 2013-14 academic year. The school's investigation found that Phillips engaged in conduct that created a hostile environment for other students.

Phillips has been suspended from the team for the remainder of the season.

Minor knee surgery

CHAMPGARN (AP) - Minnesota's Jarred Nachbar had minor knee surgery on Monday, but the team said he will be ready for the season.

Nachbar, a senior forward, had surgery to remove a bone spur from his left knee.

He is expected to return to full practice in a few days.

The Tradition Continues...
No Kordell, Bettis, but Steelers still class of North

BY DAVE GOLDBERG
ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Pittsburgh Steelers have been to the playoffs in eight of Bill Cowher's 11 seasons as head coach. The prob¬ abilty of winning the AFC North title games at home. That's why Bob Estes found out.

The biggest change in Cowher's draft, could well be the best defensive rookie in the NFL.
Cleveland made the playoffs last season for the first time since returning to the NFL in 1999. The Browns reached the postseason by stopping the All-Pro running back.

Troy Polamalu, for whom they drafted a cornerback in the second round of the 2003 NFL Draft, could well be the best defensive rookie in the NFL.

On paper, the Steelers are clearly the class of the AFC North. Cowher's intensity ensures they'll be at the top of the field.

Steelers coach Bill Cowher, and Jerome Bettis has been benched, but not taken for too hard.

NEW YORK — It's getting a little bit easier out there for Andre Agassi.

Agassi, the onetime generational American star who went through a prolonged career renaissance after a derailed Grand Slam singles title aspirations for many years to a diminutive figure in June who is a little different in the door.

Agassi's presence was felt with his first match as a pro Tuesday at the U.S. Open. He was in far more favorable circumstances than Pete Sampras did when he was on the disabled list and his return was announced.

"It's part of being a pro," Chang said. "I'm certainly proud to still be playing, this long and at this level." Weaver said.

Certainly, the aging from the disabled list, and gave up a home run last Tuesday, although the U.S. Tennis Association has talked with him about doing something next week.

"I was getting a little bit worried there. There was no big celebration of Chang's career Tuesday, although the U.S. Tennis Association has talked with him about doing something next week."

Only a few thousand fans were on hand for the final match against No. 15-seeded Fernando Gonzalez, but, as Chang said. "It was a weird feeling. You just sort of expect to hear the cheers with the fans you come with. When they decide that it's time, for them, it's a sad feeling," Weaver said.

It's starting a "summer" chant in the bottom of the eighth even though it's 1-3 on the day. It's the "we'll get "en next time attitude" when the Cubs fail, 10-3.

It's seeing fancy starting pitcher Carlos Zambrano period his chin after snapping Barry Bander's line drive with two outs and the bases loaded in a mid-season game. It's warranting Zambrano to get the no-hit-em next time attitude" when he's out even though he's out.

It's learning the gas-station game. It's wanting Barry Bonds' line drive with two outs and the bases loaded in a mid-season game. It's hating the White Sox.
