Uninsured level hits decade high

BY CECI CONNOLLY

WASHINGTON — The number of Americans who lack health insurance climbed by 5.7 percent in 2002, to 43.6 million, the largest single increase in a decade, according to figures to be released today by the Census Bureau.

Overall, 15.5 percent of Americans were uninsured last year, up from 14.6 percent in 2001. The largest jump came among people who had received health benefits through their jobs, as some firms laid off workers and others reduced coverage.

Young adults and people once again were the least likely to have medical coverage. Particularly because of government-run health programs, children and the elderly have the highest rates of coverage.

Coupled with a report last week showing a similar rise in poverty, the health insurance data help to illuminate the human toll of the nation's stalled economy, an issue that dominates to bring President Bush political headaches as he gears up to seek re-election.

When Bush took office, the United States has lost 2.7 million jobs, and household incomes have fallen for three years in a row. Administration officials argue these trends have begun to turn around, but Democrats have cited an economic cross in their quest to defeat Bush next year.

Advocates of comprehensive health coverage and leaders in both political parties need to focus more on the history of the local site, 605 E. Gilbert St. The senior assessment is to find landlords to disclose information about potential hazards to renters. "If you're going to sell property, there are supposed things you've got to do. I think it should be the same when you rent," he said.

A landlord must disclose to a tenant any defect in a property that would not be easily discovered in a reasonable inspection, said UI law Professor Stephen Kote. It is added that a landlord is obligated to provide tenants with property that is habitable.

The land occupied by the Iowa-Illinois Manor has been under investigation since the discovery of the "Sensored manufactured gas plant sites" on Dec. 12, 1990.

The 84-unit building houses 130 tenants; it was built in 1980 on the location where gas was produced from coal between approximately 1867 and 1897.

White House denies Rove behind Wilson-CIA leak

BY MIKE ALLEN AND DANA MILBANK

WASHINGTON — President Bush's chief spokesman and Minister that the allegation that administra- tion officials leaked the name of a CIA officer is "a very serious matter" and vowed that Bush would fire anybody responsible for such actions.

The view is as serious as Demo- ncratic leaders demanded the adminis- tration appoint a special counsel to investiga- tion. However, administration officials have repeatedly been unable to reach senior officials in the White House to seek out the story.

White House, while refusing to confirm his role in the investigation, has suggested publicly that he believes Bush's son, John, has been exposed to the matter.

Monday they have been asked to testify on whether an administra- tion official violated the law by telling journalists that the wife of for- mer ambassador Joseph Wilson IV, a prominent critic of Bush's use of intel- ligence related to Iraq, worked for the CIA. Wilson has denied a story that President Bush was seeking to get to the bottom of this story.

"There's been nothing, absolutely nothing, brought to our attention to suggest any White House involve- ment, and that includes the vice- president's office, as well," said Britton McCullough, Bush press secretary. He said that "if anyone in this administra- tion was involved in it, they would no longer be in this administra- tion."

State is finding more meth labs

4 face discipline in junior-high brawl
Cedar Falls (AP) — Four students involved in last week’s brawl at a junior-high football game face suspension or expulsion, Wisconsin schools officials have announced. Seven people, including three adults, have been arrested on 15 meth lab charges. The lab was cleaned up in 2002. The task force has also seen a 25 percent rise in the number of meth labs this year compared to the year before that. The labs also create a lot of waste, he said. That’s why police want students to stay away and call or help if they find a meth lab, “We don’t want people who are in the lab to deal with the disposal of it,” said state police Capt. J.R. Reif, who oversees the Johnson County Narcotics Task Force.

Father arrested in son’s kidnapping
Dover (AP) — A father arrested for kidnapping his 17-year-old son, who was dropped off at an abortion clinic, was found in Des Moines, authorities said in a release Wednesday. Jacob Deter, a 21-year-old man from Polk County Sheriff’s Department, is in custody. Jacob Deter was arrested by Polk County Sheriff’s Department, a sheriff’s dispatcher said. No other details were immediately released. The 15-year-old, Matthew Deter, was taken from his mother in Lafayette on Sept. 27. Colorado authorities issued an Amber alert, which they credit in part for the child’s safe return. "We knew for a fact that the boy’s father heard the Amber alert and that caused him to drop off the boy at his son’s home," Lafayette police Capt. Rick Rucker said Sunday. "He knew there was a nationwide search." State reports 19 more West Nile cases
DES MOINES (AP) — Nineteen more human cases of West Nile virus were reported, raising the total to 86 for the year, state health officials announced Monday. Human cases of West Nile virus have been reported in 26 states, including Iowa. People get the virus from mosquitoes that have bitten infected birds. Most people who become infected do not develop symptoms, but the virus can cause disease and death in others. Three people have died from the disease this year in California, one in New York and one in Illinois. Patients in 31 states have been diagnosed and sickened 52 others last year. "It’s a constantly evolving and sequenced virus variant," Kansas health official Dr. JoAnne Lefvert said last week. Recall turns into 2-man bruiser

Davis recall slips to 55 percent vs. 43 percent — results more in line with previous polling.

McClintock’s campaign captivated the poll. John Burns, his deputy campaign manager, said that all the internal polls for the Davis recall have McClintock leading by 5 percentage points and about 35 to 40 for the vote and McClintock about 5 percentage points behind. "We certainly think we are still within arm’s reach," Burns said.

Davis has other troubles. This week, many Californians will be getting out the vote, but this final week is likely to be a showdown between embattled Democratic Gov. Gray Davis and Republican州长 Arnold Schwarzenegger, strategists in the two camps said. As each side goes on the offensive, the stakes are rising round by round. The most vicious of all, each other, as much as $20 million could be spent on TV in the next seven days by the major candidates and interest groups, such as California’s Indian tribes with some native, union, environmental and liberal interest groups are all preparing major campaigns.

Schwarzenegger received the unanimous endorsement Monday night of the California Republican Party’s board of directors, becoming the first senator to have received the nod from most of the ranking Republicans in Sacramento and the Republican congressional delegation from California. The California GOP has been turned by conservative movements, many of the party’s potential candidates are state Sen. Tom McClintock, a conservative budget hawk from Thousand Oaks, but the GOP hierarchy contends that McClintock’s congressional experience would be major an edge over the Republicans’ other major candidates, Sen. LOS ANGELES — With one week to go, California’s recall election appears more and more a referendum on two Republican governors — Davis vs. Schwarzenegger.

There are 136 races on the ballot, the final week is likely to be a showdown between embattled Democratic Gov. Iran admits to more enriched U

BY GEORGE JAHN

VIENNA, Austria — Iran acknowledged Monday that additional uranium enrichment activities have been found on its nuclear sites, but said the work was done for testing purposes. Iran said that while it has not started producing enriched uranium, it has increased its enrichment capabilities.

The International Atomic Energy Agency (IAEA) has been monitoring Iran's nuclear program since 2003. The agency has previously reported that Iran has been enriching uranium to a level that could be used for nuclear weapons. Iran has consistently denied that its nuclear program has any military purpose.

Iraqi ambush sets off 8-hour battle

By TAREK AL-GISSAWI

KHALISAB, Iraq — Iraqi security forces and Shi'ite militia fighters relied on snipers, tanks and rocket-propelled grenades Monday to repel an attack by al-Qaida's Saddam Hussein Trailers division near the capital of Baghdad. The clashes, involving more than 500 fighters, were the biggest of the week in Baghdad's eastern district of Sadr City.

Iraqi police said they had been warned of a possible attack by al-Qaida's local cell in the last 24 hours. They added that the attack was aimed at damaging infrastructure and communications.

US troops searched a house near a key targeting site on Monday during early morning raids in Tikrit, Iraqi police said, adding that they were targeting suspected al-Qaida fighters. The searches were carried out in response to intelligence that the group was planning new attacks in the region.

Ex-official: Palestinians suffer from the intifada

By ISRAELI BARZAK

Gaza City, Gaza Strip — An ex-defense chief said Monday that the Palestinians were better off before they launched their uprising, but a jailed leader of the group held on Israeli court as he may face charges.

Despite such conflicting views, there was little public debate among Palestinians on the intifada — which has killed thousands, brought economic ruin, and set all but sealed off hopes — entered its fourth year. In Gaza, several thousand rallied Monday to support the Palestinian Authority, despite Israeli bans.

Also Monday, Hamas leader Ismail Haniyeh, reflecting Israeli and international fears that the intifada could spread, called for elections in the Gaza Strip by his group, the Islamic Jihad.

Abbas suffers from the intifada

By TAREK AL-GISSAWI

Arafat suffers from the intifada, the Palestinian leader has acknowledged, in a statement that set the stage for new talks aimed at strengthening those efforts.

The move was expected to strengthen those arguments. Some experts say that the Palestinian Authority is facing a serious crisis and that it needs to make some tough decisions in order to survive.

Patriotically stripping away rights

At the Sept. 27 Johnson County Democratic fund-raiser, Howard Dean ran down the list of those he wants in his Cabinet — including Secretary Donald Rumsfeld and Defense Secretary Paul Wolfowitz. On Sept. 25, Sen. John Kerry, D-Mass., was the first to call Rumsfeld to task. While those bold-sounding statements have not put the growing number of Americans frustrated with the U.S. military in Iraq, it's little more than furtive, campaign-season rhetoric.

Calling for Cabinet-level resignation from the Bush administration fails short of blaming the public where it has done so, has said, and knowingly punts "America in peril," so Kerry said. If these accusations were to have any veracity, the bank would stop with the president. If either Kerry or Dean were serious in their cries for resignations, they would finger the man in the chair. Calling for a Cabinet member and his deputy to step down reveals these half demands for what they are — emotion-based campaign rhetoric.

However, the fact that Dean and Kerry are playing it safe when demanding Bush administration resignations is understandable. Early last summer, Sen. Bob Graham, D-Fla., intimated that congressional leaders saw a vote for resignation of a president and that current circumstances exceeded that.

Graham's statement caused loud political uproar by Alito-kind-endorsing-looking-at impeaching Bush. Now, gleeful, some of the candidates have the nerve to come to the flame again. Instead, a simple, crude demand for resignations for the resignation of a Cabinet member and his deputy to inspire a partisan fever on the left without being noticed in the right.

To Democratic candidates, including the two calling for Rumsfeld's and Wolfowitz's resignations, are voting for the highest elected office in the country. Nic picking which Cabinet member and his deputy to step down doesn't reveal any competency as a potential politician. What does doing so make any campaign renegotiations against Bush more believable. If Kerry and Dean mean what they say, they should call for Bush's resignation. If they don't have the guts — or feel they'd cost them too much in the polls — they should confine their focus to the Oval Office — by overruling voters they believe in

The newest addition to the Citizen Kane of games

BY WILLIAM SMITH

Trying to write about Final Fantasy Tactics Advance is like writing about a song that’s made out of the same notes as the ones used in Meadowlark Lemon’s “Makin’ Babies.” It’s a welcome addition to the game industry, but the genre is already crowded with similar titles. Almost anyone will agree that Super Mario World is a classic video-game and for good reason. Many games have followed, but you’ll find that the final fantasy franchise is almost as important. The Final Fantasy series is considered the crown jewel of the gaming world, and it has represented the pinnacle of video games for more than 15 years. When gamers see the Final Fantasy title on a game, they expect no less than one of the best games of the year.

Final Fantasy Tactics Advance, which was recently released for Nintendo’s Gamecube, lives up to those lofty expectations. Final Fantasy Tactics Advance is the sequel to Final Fantasy Tactics, which was released for the Play Station in 1997. Final Fantasy Tactics has long been considered one of the best games ever released for the original Play Station, and this sequel retains all the same gameplay elements of the original. The game consists almost entirely of evolving a small group of characters around a grid-based battlefield in a strategi-cal, turn-based system. This system is similar to grid-based board games such as chess, where players are limited to certain kinds of movements and attacks. In between battles, players can carry out missions that contain the characters that have gathered and their equipment, and create their job. The battle system is done perfectly crafted, and the combinations of different job exhibitors and character classes makes the best hit of the game incredibly strategic.

The job system, which has expanded from the previous title, proves to be the most creative and addictive part of the game. The player can change each of the character’s jobs, depending on her or his previous skills. There are dozens of different jobs to choose from, and the fun is in trying to find them all. The characters can also change jobs with each other.

The story line, which is not related to the previous game, is surprisingly well-written. The player assumes the role of Marle, a boy who moves to the town of St. Julian after his parents divorce. He soon befriends a couple of other outsiders from his new school, and they become a tightly knit group of heroes. A mysterious girl then transports the kids to the fictional world of Final Fantasy, where they become beloved and respected heroes. Although the plot is a direct takeoff of The Neverending Story, it is nonetheless enchanting.

The only fault that can be found in the game is the cam本市ure menu system, which can take a couple of hours to get the hang of. New players will find themselves wanting quite a bit of time just trying to equip their characters with basic items.

Final Fantasy Tactics Advance is one of the best games of the year so far, equalled only by Star Wars: Knights of the Old Republic for the Microsoft Xbox. Although the game can be completed in 30 to 40 hours, it will take most players between 100 and 200 hours to find and unlock everything. While the incredible depth of the game is a testament to the Final Fantasy veterans, casual gamers hoping for the fast-paced action should definitely look elsewhere.

Final Fantasy Tactics Advance strengthes the lineage of Grid-based, turn-based strategy games. Although this portable game is not as good as its console counterparts, the mere reason to attend a family event or a concert is enough to recommend it.

CHICAGO — Nothing is more challenging than playing against the Chicago Bears, and nothing is more challenging than playing against the Chicago Bears on Monday Night Football.

Green Bay Packers quarterback Brett Favre was the only quarterback who could be counted on to perform well against the Bears, as he had 158 yards passing for 2 touchdowns and 2 interceptions.

Bears quarterback Jay Cutler had a rough night, completing only 11 of 26 passes for 149 yards and 2 touchdowns. His performance was compounded by a fumble that led to a touchdown for the Packers.

The Packers were able to build a comfortable lead early in the game, scoring on a 2-yard touchdown reception by wide receiver Greg Jennings. They added to their lead with a 4-yard touchdown run by fullback John Kuhn in the second quarter.

Favre and the Packers had a long drive early in the third quarter, which was capped off by a 1-yard touchdown run by running back John Georham. The Packers were able to maintain their lead throughout the game, holding the Bears to only 14 points.

The Packers, who are now 3-1 for the season, will look to continue their winning streak next week against the Dallas Cowboys. The Bears, on the other hand, will need to regroup and prepare for their next game against the New England Patriots.

BERKELEY Calif Southern California picked the wrong town and the wrong time for an early celebration.

It was the wrong day for a celebration, the wrong time for a celebration, the wrong body on the West Coast after bearing a 21-point deficit to beat California 34-31, in double overtime, and the wrong town and the wrong off week.

This day, naturally, was not a celebration. USC's 0-1 Pac-10 mark simply was not a celebration.

“I’ll just say we didn’t do anything. We were expecting more. We were expecting to get things in the running,” said USC quarterback Matt Leinart.

USC fans swarmed the field after California upped Southern California, 30-21, on Sept. 27. That sent USC tumbling from No. 3 to No. 20 in the rankings.

Leinart, Southern California's rally from an 18-point deficit against Cal was started on an 11-game winning streak. USC is the only team in the nation to come back against the Bears and ----------- Cal's previous West Coast power.

Now, USC is looking up at Cal (4-0) and Washington State, among others, in the Pac-10, at No. 12. The Trojans might be a Western power, but nobody knew exactly where they were against Cal's consistent defense, which had been shrugged off, my -- regulary this season.

There's a notion of the USC fans that they're devoted to John David Booty, the former Louisiana high school goodbye considered the team's quarter back of the future, but Leinart never considered replacing Leinart, not even after the quarterback fumbled his knee in the second half.

"I was just making mistakes. We didn’t have the lead in the first half, and that's why we were down," Leinart said. USC's vanquished run defense had allowed a 100-yard rush or in 36 games until Adamshick made 147 against them. Cal confused the Trojans with the underhanded formations and deep blocking schemes.

In the five-hour, self-breathing comeback, the Trojans were down 21-0 in the first quarter.

"You dont have any dice and you dont have a - you know, you just have to find a way to get in a heartbeat. We had no dice," USC defensive coordinator Robbアクス said.

"We didn't have an answer for anything that Cal was expecting. They were expecting us to run something out of certain formations. They just switched it on us."

The Trojans weren't the only team forced to react.

No. 8 Tennessee beat South Carolina, 25-23. Tim FrontsArkansas edged Arizona, 24-17, in overtime, and No. 19 TCU beat Arizona, 13-10. Washington State won the Bedlam title by fixing a first half game and open the season.

The Trojans’ 4-0 start was a losing effort earning ranked tomato. It was No. 4 Ohio State 20, Northwestern 0; No. 5 Virginia Tech 27, Connecticut 13, in Florida State 56, Duke 7, No. 7 LSU, Minnesota State 6, New York City 10, Washington State 50, No. 10 Oregon 6, Oregon 11, Missouri 36, No. 10 Illinois 24, Iowa State 19, No. 14 Texas 50, Tulane 10, No. 14 Georgia Tech 47, Texas A&M 56, No. 16 Washington State 50, No. 17 Notre Dame 24, No. 21 Kansas 23, No. 22 Minnesota 20, Penn State 29, and No. 25 Florida 24, Kentucky 21.
