Supreme Court upholds McCain-Feingold campaign law

BY CHARLES LANE

WASHINGTON — The Supreme Court upheld the key provisions of the McCain-Feingold campaign-finance law Wednesday, issuing a strong affirmation of Congress’ authority to regulate the flow of money in politics.

Reporting opposition claims that the law infringes free speech, a slender but sophisticated five-justice majority upheld both the law’s ban on so-called “soft money” and unregulated donations to the parties from wealthy individuals, unions, and businesses — and its new rule limiting campaign-season political advertising.

Both parts of the statute were properly designed to combat a widespread and well-documented perception that large donors exercise undue influence over government. The court moved decisively toward its goal of limiting “the corrosive and icky money that politics has become,” Chief Justice John Roberts Jr. wrote for a majority that includes five generally conservative justices.

The law effectively neutralizes what the majority’s main opinion, written jointly by Justice Antonin Scalia and Associate Justice John Paul Stevens, called the “most malignant” tax loophole, written jointly by Justice Anthony Kennedy and Justice David Souter, by a vote of 5-4.

The opinion overruled the portion of the McCain-Feingold law that had made it illegal to receive any contribution in excess of $5,200 from any individual, $15,000 from any committee, and $5,000 from any corporation or union. Instead, the court held that the provisions are constitutional as written because they define “contribution” as a contribution of “anything of value” and they do not violate the First Amendment because they are not onerous on the exercise of free speech.

The court held that the “independence” provisions are constitutional because the law gives the “independence” of candidates from wealthy donors, and they do not violate the First Amendment because they are not onerous on the exercise of free speech. Iowans push Vilsack for funding

BY TODD DVORK

CEDAR RAPIDS—Gov. Tom Vilsack was urged to fight for increased state funding for higher education at lengthily during a public hearing on Wednesday night.

Speaking on their behalf were students and university staff members who said they strongly support the state’s public universities, need more money for public education, have seen where the money will come from to fund those increases, and are willing to contribute their time and resources to get a better education.

Vilsack was on the tax issue at the beginning of the hearing and indicated new revenue sources. But he said he understands the need for public spending choices in the coming years — with the goal, he said, of there will be better funding for the universities.

Although the state’s economic outlook is not very bright at this point, the governor said he is willing to work with the legislature and the people to find ways to fund public education.

Although defense lawyers have said it was mum on the prosecution’s strategy, the state’s legal team is preparing to make its case.

"It will be a new direction," said One-Half, declining to comment further on the case.

2 psychiatrists: Malvo was insane

BY TOM JACKMAN

CHESAPEAKE, Va. — Two psychiatrists testified Tuesday that Lee Boyd Malvo was not able to distinguish right from wrong when he participated in the 2002 sniper attacks in the Washington area, but his father said the defense was as guilty as Muhammad.

"He was like a puppet in his father's hands," Schekter said of Malvo's relationship with Muhammad. "We believe he was mentally manipulated by his father." Schekter reviewed Malvo's pathology and testimony in detail, saying the most important factor in determining Malvo's mental state was his relationship with Muhammad.

Malvo's father, John Allen Muhammad, was convicted in the sniper attacks and is serving a life sentence in Virginia State Prison.

New SF mayor confronts hurdles after close vote

BY LISA LEFF

SAN FRANCISCO — Gavin Newsom, soon to become San Francisco's youngest mayor in more than a century, will need all the help he can get to run a city burdened with chronic problems and scarred by an surprisingly close election.

The 30-year-old Democrat known for his out-there personality and a lively budget proposal won the city's top job with a narrow 53 percent advantage Tuesday, finally unseating Supervisor Matt Gonzalez, the Board of Supervisors' left-leaning leader. Gonzalez's 47 percent gave the mayor-elect a vote of confidence — and a vote of disapproval.

"This is a very difficult city to lead," said Newsom, 37, a wealthy young man who was raised in Washington, that will roll into his term as mayor of San Francisco's "Grand Pooh-er" in January.

But will he be able to get his ideas past Feinstein, who spent nine years as mayor, that will roll into his term as mayor of San Francisco's "Grand Pooh-er" in January.

"shame issue advocacy" paid for by the shadowy groups and the popular "paddling" across to federal law is key.

In the face of these problems, McCutcheon president William Hanley said this was a "must- go" test on which would have "only a marginal impact on political campaigns." The decisions, McCutcheon said, "are more helpful and allow someone to argue their policy issues in a more helpful way." The ICC was set up in the early 1970s to provide non-partisan advice to the Congress.

"The court's opinion represents a consensus view of what constitutes electioneering and how it should be regulated," McCutcheon said. If you are going to leave Iowa and the United States, you have to leave Iowa and go to the United States in order to get a federal grant to build a federal university in any state. The federal government will pay for 80 percent of the cost of building a federal university if it is in Iowa. The federal government will not pay for the cost of building a federal university if it is in Iowa.

Iowa was founded in 1824 by the U.S. government. It was the first state to be admitted to the Union. The state was named for the Iowa River, which flows through the state. The river's name is derived from the word "Iwawa," meaning "fire" in the Iowa Indian language. Iowa is the 31st state in the Union and has a population of approximately 3 million people. The state capital is Des Moines. Iowa is known as the "Hawkeye State."
Iraq creates panel for war criminals

BY CAROL J. WILLIAMS

BAGHDAD — Iraq's Governing Council established a war crimes tribunal Tuesday to try top-named Saddam Hussein and his top lieutenants on charges they committed atrocities against the Iraqi people and their neighbors, from the gouging of eyes to the military aggression against Iran and Kuwait.

Bringing the former regime to justice is a hunt priority for the tribuned, tasked with producing immediate gratification.

While the tribunal establishing the court aims to prevent promotions in absentia, a defender opposed after war crimes would be entitled to a new trial. Thus any case brought now against Saddam would probably be a limited one that would simply amplify the U.N.-led occupation forces' already steeped in human rights.

U.S. authorities, who held 30 of the 55 most wanted figures on the former regime, have promised to hand over documents on them any day.

"We agreed that those who have been arrested and detained will be handed over to this historic court," said Abdullah al-Hussaini, the executive president of the Governing Council.

U.S. and other officials have the power to orderextraditions of former regime officials. But extra-legal forces are likely to join in the fray and in the court. Instead, U.S. and other officials are likely to use their power to extradite Iraqis to the tribunal.

Still, Iraqi authorities are not interested in the creation of a new situation in the former regime.

Iraq is the world's most critical criminal justice system in the world today. The United Nations confirmed that Saddam Hussein's regime was responsible for the war crimes.

The United Nations also approved the setting up of the tribunal.

The United Nations called on the Security Council to set up as many courts as necessary to try war crimes.

However, the U.N. and Iraqi officials agreed to set up a tribunal that will try former regime officials and former regime officials from within and without the country. It would be the first such tribunal in the world to try war crimes.

The tribunal is not in charge of the former regime. The United Nations has not set up any mechanism to try war crimes.

The tribunal will be established in the first week of January and is expected to return as a statement in a report on the situation.

The tribunal's work will be a test to the former regime.
Korean nuclear talks in limbo, official says

BY SUNG-MUN CHO

SEOUL, South Korea — Talks among the three nations aiming to end the Korean nuclear crisis are up in the air, South Korea’s Foreign minister said Wednesday, after the United States reaffirmed its offer to sit down with North Korea to discuss the North’s atomic weapons program.

"It is still too early to determine whether North Korea will join a second round of talks by the year’s end, or just based on yesterday’s statement," Foreign Minister Yosun-Wyoung told Reuters. "We are still studying North Korea’s intentions and what North Korea tried to say through last night’s statement.

You and I don’t believe that Tuesday’s North Korean proposal was a successful plan, which was outlined in the 10-point plan, was submitted to the United States, and of course, the United States, China, Russia, Japan, and the same group of countries that was suggested by the United States, China, Russia, Japan, and the same group of countries, have already formulated and have already approved the current plan.

The goal of the United States is not for a second round of talks but to try to promote the flow of talks," Bush said. "The goal of the United States is not for a second round of talks but to try to promote the flow of talks as a means of persuading North Korea to act.

The goal of the United States is not for a second round of talks but to try to promote the flow of talks as a means of persuading North Korea to act in a way that is acceptable to the United States.

Promoter settles as jury weighs damages

NEW YORK (AP) - Promoter Don King, who is promoting an exhibition fight between Sugar Ray Leonard and Mike Tyson on Sept. 18, has settled a lawsuit with the former heavyweight champion. King, who is promoting the fight, filed a countersuit against Mike Tyson after Tyson refused to accept Leonard's challenge.

In other boxing news, Sugar Ray Leonard's lawyer, Arthur Alpert, said his client will not go to trial. "It's a very strong case, and we're looking forward to it," Alpert said.

Leonard is scheduled to fight Mike Tyson on Sept. 18 in New York City. Tyson, who is undefeated in his last 16 fights, is expected to make a strong showing.

Reeves fired by Falcons

Iowa coach Kirk Ferentz among possible replacements

BY PAUL NEWBERRY

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) - Falcons coach Bobby Reeves was fired Wednesday after a 3-13 record in three seasons.

The Falcons finished 3-13 last season, their worst record since the team was started in 1966.

"This is a difficult decision," Falcons owner Arthur Blank told reporters Wednesday. "But we have to make the best decision for the betterment of the organization and for the betterment of our fans."

Reeves, 54, is in his 20th season as an NFL head coach. He led the Falcons to two playoff appearances, one of which he won.

"It's been a difficult season," Reeves said. "But we have to make sure that we're making the right decisions."

The Falcons fired Dave Raines on Wednesday, naming the eighth-winningest coach in NFL history with three games left in the season.

"We want to begin this process of determining a head coach," Blank said. "I think the players will be very happy with the new head coach.

One source said that the Falcons are expected to hire a defensive coordinator to take over the defense.

O'Leary gets another shot

By Jim Lyle

He is still better known for where he should have been than where he wound up. From the man who gave George O'Leary another shot.

"He might have been at Notre Dame and had a winning record there by now," Central Florida President John Hitt said, introducing his school's new football coach. "I think he could have gone beyond our reach. But I don't want to say we're planning on getting him because of those circumstances. We just want to see if George O'Leary because of the job he did here at Duke, if we can start a long climb back up a very steep hill, can he be encouraged for further grand dreams. Two years ago, he was introduced as the next coach of the most storied program in college football. A few days after that, after it came out that O'Leary blushed his resume, he was fired from Notre Dame and went into hiding. Mike Tice, who played quarterback for O'Leary at a long island, N.Y., high school decades earlier, talked his old coach into taking the first few steps back. From there to here because of this window into the mind of a man who has displayed talent as well as an eye for public relations as a football coach.

"Hopefully, some fans or some editors who have attacked O'Leary is about to learn," Tice told anybody who'd listen. "Because he's certainly overqualified for the.

Ferred to resign at Notre Dame two years ago because he falsified his resume, Minnesota Vikings defensive coordinator George O'Leary is returning to college coaching at Central Florida.

O'Leary is overqualified for the job at Central Florida, too, according to that he already proved him, as it is a higher college. — Georgia Tech, where he compiled a 5-10 record in 1983-84, to a major conference — the Atlantic Coast, where he was named coach of the year twice. But in another sense, O'Leary is a perfect fit. Central Florida has seven seasons left to play in the Mid-American.

"It's more important to be able to walk, than talk," he said.

SUNY Orange's Zachary Zalesky said that he has been struggling with the idea of giving up on college football. Not just the sport in general, but college football itself.

"I'm not thinking about playing football again," he said. "I'm not even thinking about doing anything with sports."

Zalesky was a starting offensive tackle for SUNY Orange and was expected to be a top prospect in the upcoming NFL draft. However, he was forced to retire from football due to a career-threatening injury.

"I'm just not ready to give up on sports," he said. "I still want to be involved in some way, but I'm not sure what that way is."

Zalesky's decision to retire from football is just one of many that college athletes are facing as they prepare for the upcoming season. With the pandemic still ongoing, many athletes are struggling with the decision of whether to play or not.

"It's a tough decision," said SUNY Orange football coach John Eustice. "We're doing everything we can to make sure our players are safe, but we also want them to have an opportunity to play."

FOREVER CHASING THE DARK SIDE

Some authors transcend the medium of the written word and become permanent icons of pop culture. No modern author is more recognizable than Stephen King. For good or ill, the movies based on his work have introduced hundreds of thousands to a television generation that has never bothered to pick up one of his books.

In a claim that King's own personal Lord of the Rings, "The Dark Tower," is a de facto acknowledged as the most popular of all the work. King is at his most creative and driven in his books, and sometimes in his non-books, especially in the series of his favorites.

With the recent release of "The Dark Tower: Wolves of the Calla," King finds himself in the dark fantasy world that he first conceived of in his eleventh novel. The result is a thoroughly engaging and slow-paced work that will satisfy Dark Tower fans and keep them asking for more.

The series centers on Roland, the last gunslinger, who is on a quest to cross between the Western and King's own world. He is a type of knight who carries six doctors on a quest to find the dark tower. The dark tower is the linchpin that holds the world, dimensions, and existence together.

As the climax of the prequel four books, "The Dark Tower: Wolves of the Calla" is a bonus added sequels, a woman with administrative powers named Marlene, and a young boy named Jason. The second book of the series was not as well received as the previous three, but it still received rave reviews.

With the recent release of "The Dark Tower: Wolves of the Calla," King finds himself in the dark fantasy world that he first conceived of in his eleventh novel. The result is a thoroughly engaging and slow-paced work that will satisfy Dark Tower fans and keep them asking for more.

The series centers on Roland, the last gunslinger, who is on a quest to cross between the Western and King's own world. He is a type of knight who carries six doctors on a quest to find the dark tower. The dark tower is the linchpin that holds the world, dimensions, and existence together.

As the climax of the prequel four books, "The Dark Tower: Wolves of the Calla" is a bonus added sequels, a woman with administrative powers named Marlene, and a young boy named Jason. The second book of the series was not as well received as the previous three, but it still received rave reviews.

The Last Samurai

Critics say it is a masterful epic film that is "the best film of the year". But what do the actors think? Tom Cruise stars as a warrior in The Last Samurai, an epic film that is "a film with great intentions but fails its mark".

The majority of the film takes place in the winter dwelling of the samurai and the mountains of Japan, so snow, beautifully, beautifully, beautifully. Watanabe is asked to carry much of the acting load in these scenes, and his naivety brings him to his knees. He balances the inequity of a character who is a simple samurai warrior with a more complex one.

Regardless, The Last Samurai is a Tom Cruise film, and it lives and dies by its bearded star.

I'm about the point where I think [D.C. blacks] ought to be all stuck in boxcars and sent out around, one family to each town.

— John Dillinger, Richard Nixon's domestic-policy advisor on a White House tape from 1972. Dillinger believed that Washington blacks should be "enslaved" to assist in community service.
