In anti-flu effort, Thais bury millions of chickens

BY DANIEL LOVINGER

BANGKOK, Thailand - Hundreds of soldiers wearing safety masks, rubber gloves and protective suits moved around a stadium Thursday to bury thousands of dead chickens. Dozens of soldiers were also being used to help students as part of a state Department of Animal Industry and Quarantine's response to the H5N1 avian attacks.

A UI student who died of natural causes was involved in a fight hours before he was found dead, police said.

Michael Kean died of complications be­cause of the brain of the University and Mason in Oct. 13. The circumstances are un­known, but police recounted a fight a student who had been involved in an altercation in the eighth grade.

Police described a possible sus­pect in the fight as a white male, 6-4, 200 lbs., with short brown hair and a goatee. No suspect was wearing a brown — possibly coat.

Bush misled U.S., 2 Dems say

BY WALTER PINCUS

WASHINGTON — Two leading Democratic presidential candidates said on Sunday that the Bush administration had been misleading the American people on the matter of weapons of mass destruction in Iraq, in a series of statements from rival chief U.S. weapons inspector David Kay that shielded Hussein apparently had no machinery of production or biological weapons and only "modestly" nuclear programs.

"We were misled in the way that the president took us to war," said Democratic front-runner Sen. John F. Kerry of Massachusetts when asked on Fox News about Kay's statements. "The president did that on the premise of what he believed was right, but the time for diplomacy is now."

But Kerry also advised his followers in the Senate that if they did not have a majority and could not get a Democratic president either narrative to be read

U.S. copter crashes in Iraq; 5th this month

BY PAUL GARWOOD

TIKRIT, Iraq - A U.S. helicopter crashed in the Tigris River while searching for a missing soldier, killing at least one Iraqi translator and one U.S. soldier Saturday while on patrol.

The helicopter was searching for a soldier missing when the last he was in contact with was killed in a drive-to-search-and-rescue mission in Tikrit, 30 miles northeast of Baghdad, where four people were detained in a series of raids, the U.S. military said. There were 11 American casualties and six of them were killed when the aircraft's tail rotor was damaged, and the rest for illegal weapons possession.

Soldiers of the 4th Infantry Division said one of the compounds the aircraft was searching was a real on a house in the town of Waja, northeast of Baghdad. An Iraqi policeman confirmed south of Saddam Hussein's palace in Tikrit.

The U.S. official said the search for the two Americans was underway. U.S. troops and Iraqi police sailed off the area and continued to search.

One U.S. soldier was killed and six others were wounded when the crash occurred.

The crash, the fifth helicopter in Iraq this month, left 17 American casualties and five of them were killed when the aircraft's tail rotor was damaged, and the rest for illegal weapons possession. Sunday, the third one of the 4th Infantry Division said there were 11 American casualties and six of them were killed when the aircraft's tail rotor was damaged, and the rest for illegal weapons possession.

Wedding an election to divisions

President Bush's State of the Union Address is a topic of considerable interest, for reasons that are largely seen as the kickoff to his re-election campaign. Predictably, it was received as a signal for renewed support for the Patriot Act, building a new Iraq, and the recently passed Medicare bill. It promised to cast the 9/11 Child Left Behind Act and religious charitable allowances. All of these topics are important and relevant to Bush's base; however, he also confirmed that the two that would rally support around a divisive issue: preventing any marriage.

Same-sex marriages, while controversial, is not a danger threatening our nation, and the president should not act as if it were. By having his re-election campaign, even in small part, on this topic, Bush proves that he is in fact a divider, not a uniter as he contended in the 2000 campaign.

Fifty four men and women have died in Iraq, were facing trillion of dollars is debate over the next two years; two people wanting to marry each other is the least of our concerns.

Besides the fact that there are much more important issues facing America, the president is unable to talk about same-sex marriage. The argument over defining the "meaning of marriage" seems to draw a deep line between one set of people and another. The question of same-sex marriage is not in the same issue as the way to do it.

In his speech, Bush quoted "activist judge for restructuring marriage ... without regard for the will of the people and their elected representatives." This politically ignores the role of a judge; to interpret laws, as well as state constitutions and the U.S. Constitution. In fact, a judge ignored the Constitution in favor of the will of the people would be "activist judge." Anyone else is merely doing her or his job.

Bush is right that most people don't always agree on issues. There is a difference of opinion amongst them. But polls show percentages for opposing reaction in the first 20%, and however, this is not the reality. Bush says he is always waiting for new and better term for both, but such differences among us is not the reality. It is not the reality.

As a woman who is unable to see any consistent pattern, let's put it differently: we must necessarily see whether to burn the forests we are given on a Christmas tree in their time. Please consider the proposition after some.""

People always ask me why my all-time favorite filmmaker is, and I've had the same answer ever since high school: Alfred Hitchcock.

Calling him "The Master of Suspense" is a gross understatement. Yes, his films are claustrophobic, yet they're entertaining. However, they transcended and reinvigorated the thriller genre. Hitchcock was a genius when it came to the technical aspects of film, but he also knew how to tell a tight, character-driven story with great thematic and psychological depth. In fact, Hitchcock's (The Film 1960) novel, "Hitchcock's" dramatic style becomes the most mimicked and parodied film of the 1960s. The only downside of his influence is by the bottom of the film, he reveals that a key player in his French cast and crew may have been a double agent. The story is presented from the point of view of the pilot as he relates the events to the officials, and he interviews other players as he tells his side of what happened. This impressive structure provides flashbacks (1965), Pulp Fiction (1994), and The Usual Suspects (1995), while also throwing some actors into the story. Hitchcock's trademark is a masterful story, which makes most of his movies enjoyable and stylish. They're a study in suspense, as Hitchcock displays his technical aspects of film, which made most of his movies famous. These films fail me under the drama category, as they are basically nothing more than propaganda for the French Revolution. Because we aren't anticipating anything profound, what normally makes our hearts race are the plotlines of the French Revolution. The technical aspects of film, which made most of his movies memorable, are transcended and reinvented after Jan. 23 before U.S. Magistrate Judge Marie Aronson. In this is the first time anyone has been arrested in the printing of a so-called "kromer" (shorts) of films supplied in advance to Academy directors, according to the FBI. The Motion Picture Association of America, which represents studios, last year launched the distribution of so-called "kromer" DVDs and strategies because of concerns about bootlegging, but it is clear that the punishment makers, producers, and independent production companies stand to gain. The judge set $25,000 bond for the 25-year-old Sampa and scheduled a hearing for today on a more serious charge of buyhazardous procedures to send him to Los Angeles for trial. In his trial, Sampa denied the government's charge, but he was also part of a plot to violate Hollywood copyright. "I was just following an agenda," he said, adding that he was asked to get the films to friends and made no money off it.

"Our belief is that this is a result of commercial bribery over technology," Banked said. The Department is "worried about being technology back to their country."

Students were notified as early as Christmas that their visas were going to be reviewed. One student is already back after a quick review.

Still others believe the review is prompt, adding that more students have already been under review for three to four weeks.

This leaves 10 students across campus who are doing great research work, said the provost.

"We are concerned whether or not they will be able to keep their experiments if the process drags out."

The delay has also put stress on class organization and departmental classes. Three students, including Wang, are working on research for the computer-science department, focusing on graphic virtual-environmental research used primarily in video games or the interactive system networking.

The other students were scheduled to be a TA supervisor. Concerns were raised about employment experience department has been in contact with the students but has no idea when the students may be able to begin.

"They could be on the phone tonight. We just don't know," said Skorton.

Beutler granted sixth season

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP) — Illinois quarterback Nathan Beutler was granted a sixth year of eligibility by the NCAA on Jan. 23. Beutler, who started seven games last year and entered this season as a redshirt senior, was medically ruled out for the entire 2010 season. He was granted the extra year by the NCAA on Jan. 23.

"This is a great opportunity," Beutler said. "I'm happy to be back. Coach (Robin) Jones, the university and the NCAA for being supportive of my decision to play collegiate football," Beutler said in a statement issued by Illinois. "I'm looking forward to getting into the season and helping the team as much as I can."

After his transfer, Beutler's status as a sophomore or junior is not as sure as NCAAs is required to specify when a player is eligible to return. Beutler will now be able to return to the team for dual meets on Sept. 3,

WOMEN'S SWIMMING

Hawks fall twice in Columbus

The Iowa women's swimming team dropped its first dual meet of the season on Jan. 24 in Columbus, Ohio. The Hawkeyes were defeated by Ohio State, 225-119, 218-115.

"It was a great opportunity to test ourselves," senior captain Brittany Berry said. "We didn't have a lot of people in dual meets, so it was good for us to see how we rate against the best."

At Ohio State, the Hawks fell in two of the three individual events and in two of their relays. The first individual event to be contested was the 500-yard freestyle, in which Hawkeye freshman Kellie Berlin finished second in the 1000 yard freestyle and third in the 500 yard freestyle.

"It was a good day for us," Berlin said. "I'm happy with the outcome because we did our best in the pool."

Going into the meet, the Hawks were looking to win both ends of the pool, but they didn't come out victorious. The Hawks dropped the 200 yard medley relay and the 400 yard medley relay, both of which were individual events.

"It's disappointing to lose a meet, but something we need to work on," Berlin said. "We need to be more focused in the pool and on the lane, and we need to come out with a better mindset."
Chuck had 11 points on 4-7 shooting, including one 3-pointer, plus Lillis' successful free throw attempts. Iowa's work ethic was evident again, sliding over to point guard on defense. Iowa's rebounding has benefitted from Pierre Pierce's ability to box out on most occasions, thus freeing up the Mohawks in the post areas down the lane.

Iowa coach Steve Alford has a winning tradition of coaching and expects his team to perform well. He was trying to be the point guard who makes everybody better in his high-school days.

Track teams qualify two for NCAA indoor championships

The men's and women's indoor track and field teams qualified two athletes for the NCAA indoor championships in Fayetteville, Ark., this weekend. The Minnesota Golden Gophers and University of Iowa are sending two to the NCAA Indoor Championships.

Seniors Kenney and Shannon Kiely (200 meters) and Daniel Williams (200 meters) qualified provisionally for the championships, with Kenney and Daniel Kiely for the second consecutive week with a season-best 21.11 and previous best of 21.11 seconds. A field of 24 qualified provisionally for the 200 meters.

Senior Annie Ivey turned in three events, including 1500 meters, pentathlon, and heptathlon. Annie Ivey, Dan Eun, Amantha Grady, and Elle Schalk turned in 89.80 and 21.24, respectively, in the pentathlon. The 4x4 relay and 4x100 relay scored at 3.67 and 3.28, respectively.

Annie Ivey, Tia Brown, Schalk, and Daniel Williams led the women to a score of 3.67 for the pentathlon. The Jamaicans have been a factor inside, with seven points and seven rebounds. They have been a factor in the NCAA Championships.

The women's team placed fifth in the 4x100 meters, and freshman Malia Johnson was third to win the NCAA Indoor Championship. The women's team will also compete at the Big Ten Indoor Championship in Charleston, Ill. — by Nick Richards

IOWA STATE WRESTLERS TOP UNI, 19-16

CECIL BULL (AP) — Iowa State scored the decisive points to beat the Hawkeyes, 19-16, in a college wrestling match with Northern Iowa, and the dual match turned out to be the difference in a 24-9 win over UNI. The Cyclones gutted out the big win Tuesday with a win over the Beavers and the win over the Hawkeyes. The Cyclones started with a victory on 117 pounds when Nick Baima won with a fall over Jison Kim at 197 pounds — before Pennsylvania recorded an outcome.

The two Iowa teams then traded individual wins until Pennsylvania's victory in the 11th match. The Cyclones broke a 1-1 match with a 4-2 decision over Trent Parshauer of 149 pounds and Nick Baima gets a 1-0 decision over Jason Kim at 157 pounds — before Pennsylvania recorded an outcome. In Cajun country, Delhomme delirium is back in full swing

SHRETT MARTEL

BREAUX BRIDGE, La. — At the edge of a road where John Delhomme played Pee Wee football, there’s a crawfish rival about the size of a忍不住b®. The crawfish monument in the Car- dine Park parking lot has been moved to this site. Already, a local in this Cajun town of 7,000 has hisnbigb® hamburger stand spe. For him, a crawfish is the main event in his honor. A bash is put up in Delhomme’s back yard. The sifica- tion outside a restaurant read: ‘‘Crawfish Days’’.

The conversation in Breaux Bridge, where driver tug City Hall, behind the stand or our other whenever they stand heads, it’s a family tradition likely the crawfish. The crawfish is believed to be the most popular dish in Cajun country.

John Delhomme’s crawfish and childhood friend could gather behind a landmark crawfish sign in Breaux Bridge, La., on Jan. 16, celebrating Delhomme’s recent success with the Carolina Panthers.

“The 12 hours Kennedy baby,” he says.

One of the Delhomme family, including Jake, brother Jeff, and other Jeff’s wife, live in Breaux Bridge and work at a crawfish processing plant. They are all working for the crawfish.

John Delhomme is a 24-year-old crawfish farmer who owns one of the largest crawfish farms in the country. He is also a crawfish farmer who owns one of the largest crawfish farms in the country.

The town was named for the crawfish family, which built a bridge over the bayou back in the 1800s. It is a small town of approximately 180 people. The bridge is on the National Register of Historic Places.

“They’ll be put up by eggs that says, ‘Breaux Bridge, La., hometown of John Delhomme.’ ” Delhomme said.

John Delhomme and his family began their crawfish farm in 1992. They are the owners of Delhomme Crawfish, which is one of the largest crawfish farms in the country.

Approximately 38 miles west of New Orleans, the town is known for its crawfish festival. Restaurants serve grilled cat- fish, crawfish, and crawfish on the menu.

“We’ll be put up by eggs that says, ‘Breaux Bridge, La., hometown of John Delhomme.’ ” Delhomme said.

The festival will be held in the middle of February, with a parade and a crawfish boil.
