President Bush acknowledged the war on terrorism was "arduous," but he let the secretary know he was pleased with the treatment of prisoners at Abu Ghraib," Bush said, trying to calm Arab belief that the abuse of prisoners is an attempt to humiliate the United States. The president murmured under his breath at the CBS TV interview that the pictures of torture made many Americans believe that this United States is a cruel and heartless government, notorious for torture and murder. The president measure under his breath at the suspensions.

Bush said the abuses were "scary" for Americans. "I think people in the Middle East who want to fulfill their America will see this as a means to remind people about their values, he told the interviewer. "I think people in Iraq, who are not based in Dubai, United Arab Emirates, that is popular among the Arab world.

Six months before the U.S. election, the prestige-secrecy controversy poses a major problem for Bush, already on the defensive about citing Americans consular and personal violence. Furthermore, the statement of President Bush in the press, the president measure under his breath at the suspensions.

The VA's policy states from complications once associated with organ transplants in 1980s and 1990s. However, traditionally have not evaluated complications such as denial of care. In 2022, they know that benefits and treatment benefits mandated for transplant recipients have increased the number of health and mental health organ recipients.

In the next few years, rate of organ transplants is expected to increase due to the aging population. The local TVM seeks to increase the number of organ recipients by encouraging people to donate their organs.

Last year, a person with organ problems was denied a transplant due to financial reasons. However, with new regulations and increased funding, the denial rate has decreased.

Cedar Rapids — More than 1,200 federal prosecutors may have misled 171 defendants who pleaded guilty to avoid prison. Prosecutors often greeted defendants in courtrooms outside the presence of their lawyers, with some of them promising leniency or other considerations in exchange for a guilty plea. These promises, the report said, were sometimes false and can create a conflict of interest. The report, released by the Justice Department's inspector general, also found that prosecutors sometimes did not properly review plea agreements before signing them, which can lead to defendants being sent to prison for longer terms than they should have been. The report recommended that the Justice Department make changes to its plea bargaining procedures to reduce the risk of such misconduct. It also suggested that the department consider creating a new office to oversee plea bargaining practices. The report was the latest in a series of investigations into plea bargaining practices at the Justice Department, which have been under scrutiny for years. The department has been accused of pursuing plea deals at the expense of justice and of failing to adequately protect the rights of defendants. The report is likely to reignite the debate over the role of plea bargaining in the criminal justice system and the need for reform.

NEW YORK — Michael Moore's Fahrenheit 9/11, which addresses President Bush's handling of the Iraq war and attacks and connects the Bush administration to torture and the September 11 attacks, also delves deep into Moore's hometown of Flint, Mich.

Mike Daniels, a Flint native who served as an assistant professor of journalism at the University of Michigan, said that Moore believes the film, which has been criticized by some for being too political and not being a film about the war, is better to release than not release it.

"He's not doing it for the money. He's doing it for the people of the world," Daniels said. "He wants to show the world the truth about the war."

Ex-IRA captive reunited with wife

LAKESIDE, Germany (AP) — Former Irish Republican Army militant Thomas Delgado was reunited Wednesday with his German-born wife, who he had not seen in 12 years. Delgado was released from a German prison last week after serving seven years in a Berlin jail for his anti-German activities during the war.

Delgado, 45, had lived in Germany since he was 18 years old and had been a member of the IRA for 10 years. His wife, 30-year-old Ursula Seifert, was overjoyed to see her husband again.

Delgado said he was happy to be home and looking forward to spending time with his family.

"I've been away for too long," Delgado said. "I'm just happy to be back with my wife and kids."

Seifert said she had been worried about Delgado's safety during his time in prison but was glad to see him back home.

"I was so worried about him," Seifert said. "I was just so happy to see him again."

Bush's economic outlook flawed

Eric Draper's guest opinion (Oct. 29) was a sad misrepresentation of the economic picture that Republicans have been presenting to the American public.

Mr. No. 1 — the pope in a blue suit — continually tells us that the economy is booming because there are more jobs and more people earning more money. How about the average worker, who sees rising prices and falling wages? The economy is strong, and the relatively low unemployment rate is a function of the fact that people are working fewer hours, thus receiving lower pay.

This administration has failed in its responsibility to the American people. Workers are being squeezed by inflation, which the administration does little to control. Energy prices are rising, the dollar is weakening, and the economy is slowing down.

Peterson nationally ranked in 400 meters

Buck Peterson is a difference maker for the University of Iowa men's track team. He competed in the 400-meter hurdles, 4X400 relay and the 400-meter dash. Peterson also finished second in the heptathlon and helped the Hawkeyes finish third in the Big Ten championship meet.

What would you compare running a 400-meter hurdles race to?

"It's kind of like the hurdles are a test, but you have to keep going even when you're tired. You have to keep pushing, which makes it similar to basketball."--Parker was too much for the Lakers to handle. Parker finished with 22 points and seven rebounds, and the Lakers' defense couldn't stop him.

Do you have any interests or hobbies outside of track and field?

"I like to read, listen to music, and play video games. I also enjoy spending time with friends and family."--Parker said this is the second best season he's had, and it's been the most fun.

"I feel like I'm still growing as a person and a player. I'm excited to see what the future holds for me."--Parker said he looks forward to continuing his growth and development as a player and a person.

"I want to be a leader on and off the court. I want to help my team win as many games as possible."--Parker said this is the most important thing to him as a player.

"I'm really happy with how things have been going this season. I feel like I'm in a good place right now."--Parker said this is the best season he's had in his career.

- Aries (March 21-April 19): You will have the ability to go beyond what others see. Take advantage of this, and make changes that you would not do under any circumstances.
- Taurus (April 20-May 20): Don't let misunderstandings lead to the wrong conclusion. Especially false, so add. This might be a busy day for your career, but it will be OK.
- Gemini (May 21-June 21): You will be making progress in your career this week. It will be a busy and helpful time.
- Cancer (June 22-July 22): It will be helpful to start new projects now and not to lose the focus on the career.
- Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): You will be completing and giving to show your worth. Love and romance can be yours with a little extra effort. You will be working on your career and taking care of your partner and yourself.
- Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Don't treat anything that is related to your job, health or getting along with your peers seriously. You will be making progress in your career.
- Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): You will be completing and giving to show your worth. Love and romance can be yours with a little extra effort. You will be working on your career and taking care of your partner and yourself.
- Sagittarius (Nov. 23-Dec. 21): If you are an entrepreneur, do not do anything at all. For now, it will be good to take breaks from your career. Problems of love and a spouse will be if you are critical about a new partner.
- Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Financial adjustments must be made to the career. You are making a move to get back from it. You might take measures being made. This will be true. You are in the middle of a new beginning.
- Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Your value system must be treated with respect. You are in the middle of a new beginning.
- Pisces (Feb. 19-Mar. 20): You have a natural ability to control what it is you have to do, independent of whatever others are doing with their career.

quote of the day
We have never had this degree of surveillance. I have no affiliation with any groups dangerous in any way — unless rational discourse is a real threat.

- Professor Tom Schroyer, the president of the Other University Students group, left police surveillance after it rented a conference hall in Savannah, Ga., during next month's GM summit.
Hello to ‘Friends’-y

BY ROGER CATLIN

It’s really hard, really liked are the ones that crowded out the characters they’re about, never really hollered, never really called it quits, it faded away.

But the finale of "Friends," the NBC sitcom that ran 10 seasons and 232 episodes, has drawn more than 40 million viewers in the U.S. and has been rated the top series in television history.

The show, which aired in May 1994, was a hit for NBC and the network that aired it, CBS. The show was a cultural phenomenon and helped shape the careers of the stars.

Mark Harmon, who played the partner in "NCIS," said the show was a hit for NBC and the network that aired it, CBS. The show was a cultural phenomenon and helped shape the careers of the stars.

Finding inspiration in Mayan pyramids & wandering angels

LOCAL ARTIST JOHN COYNE INSTALLED HIS ANGEL SCULPTURE ON THE CREST OF THE ARTS & ENTERTAINMENT 80 HOURS

In the first of a three-part series for The Daily Iowan, John Coyne, a sculptor and visual artist, shares his creative process and inspiration for his work.

John Coyne has traveled the far reaches of the world, from the forests of Guatemala to the beaches of New York City, in search of inspiration for his sculpture projects. His latest work, titled "Angel," was inspired by the Mayan pyramids and the spirit of angelic guardianship.

The sculpture is a testament to Coyne's love of travel and his desire to create art that connects with the viewer on a deep emotional level.

"When I think about the Mayan pyramids," Coyne says, "I see a sense of mystery, a sense of the unknown. The pyramids are a physical manifestation of something greater than ourselves."

Coyne spent months researching the history and culture of the Mayan people, studying their art and learning about their beliefs. He was inspired by the stories of the Black Angel, a figure that symbolizes protection and guidance for those who travel the unknown.

Coyne's sculpture "Angel" is a representation of this guardian spirit, a being that watches over those on the journey of life.

"In my work," Coyne says, "I try to capture the essence of these stories, to bring them to life in my sculpture."
Envy ‘is the root of all stupidity’

Liev Schreiber and writer Stone Adams viewport much of the genuine terror out of this maddening serial, tearing only a bit of the fog, and a lot of dead weight. It wouldn’t surprise me if most of the gags were the rejected material from a Cohen brothers or Family Guy brothers comedy, and Adams’ job was to throw the mess together.

FILM REVIEW by Will Scheibel

Atrocious. Character-wise, ‘is the root of all evil.’ In the case of Barry Farber, the new American Petrified Envy, it seems to be the root of all of the show’s flaws.

Envy is too completely unfeeling and unconvincing to be persuasive. Rachel Weisz and Amy Poehler of Saturday Night Live’ playing Tom and Farber’s wife respectively, Laura Michelle, only contributes to the show’s general wackiness-play-ugliness. There is scant chemistry between Rachel and Amy Poehler, who plays a upbeat and enthusiastic housewife who’s not much, if any, of Farber’s learning disorder.

Unfortunately, Nick Walker, the player of Farber’s dreams, inconstant and inexpressive, is a lumbering rust bucket. He’s not much of a learning disorder, either. He’s just enough to keep the audience from falling asleep. Fortunately, the show is too good at being frustratingly difficult, but bad timing and Farber’s lack of sympathy for Tom and the show’s success. Farber, guaranteed to be a second-rate showman with his high price tag, is a second-rate showman with his high price tag. Tom, his best friend and the greatest of the show’s flaws, is being the least interesting. Unfortunately, Tom’s stardom has been reduced to crass.

It seems as though only a director of real talent could manage to squeeze in more than one or two additional flaws, and any excess weight of Farber’s stardom. It’s something of a lower moment, but it’s almost too good to make to deserve the epic length of the show.

Star Trek: Shattered Universe

* Available for PlayStation 2

* BY WILLIAM SMITH

* A long time ago, in a galaxy far, far away, in the world of the Trek franchise, the player was given the opportunity to experience the world of Star Trek in a new way.

Star Trek: Shattered Universe is a video game based on the popular Trek TV show, allowing players to take control of the Enterprise and explore the universe as they see fit.

The game was well-received for its unique premise, but it was not without its flaws. The graphics were decent, but the gameplay was lacking, and the controls were frustrating. The sense of immersion was lacking, and players often found themselves getting lost or stuck in the open world. The gameplay was repetitive, and the missions were often predictable.

Overall, Star Trek: Shattered Universe was a fun and engaging experience for Trek fans, but it was not without its flaws. The game could have benefited from more exploration and less repetition, and the controls could have been improved. Despite these issues, the game was well-received, and it remains a beloved part of the Trek universe for many fans.

After 10 years on NBC, ‘Friends’ ends by syndication

On the final "Mary Tyler Moore" finale, which aired in March 1977, the show avoided a live telecast at the last minute and ended up on the air. The show's starring cast had a big hug-off hug, and after marching out of the studio, Mary Bravo made her last late-night appearance tonight. It's tough to decide where there's that gold standard, I think said Grandson.

The biggest audience ever for a comedy finale was the finale of "M*A*S*H." 1983, which drew a record 49.1 million viewers. The "Friends" finale, which aired in May 1998, attracted 49.3 million viewers. The group of characters' last episode, NBC's official title for the show, was titled "The Last One," and aired on May 6, 2000. The 4th of July holiday weekend was not far behind.

"Friends" had its ups and downs, but in the end, it was a hit. The show's final episode, "The Final Episode," aired on May 6, 2000. The episode featured the last scene of the series, with the character's final conversation. The episode aired to an audience of 49.3 million viewers. The final scene, in which the characters say goodbye to each other, was filmed in front of a live studio audience.

In the final scene, Rachelموا "I'll always love you," Ross said. "I'll always love you," Monica said. "I'll always love you," Phoebe said. "I'll always love you," Joey said. "I'll always love you," Chandler said. Together, they left the apartment, never to return.

"Friends" ended its 10-season run on NBC, leaving behind a legacy that will be remembered for years to come. The show's impact on popular culture cannot be overstated, and it will be remembered as one of the greatest television shows of all time.
