A Clinton man is suspected of foul play to a Herky on Parade

BY NICK PETERSEN

Police arrested a Clinton man following a series of vandalism incidents involving the University of Iowa mascot, Herky.

The man, 32-year-old Mark Herko, was arrested after police received an anonymous tip that Herko was responsible for the damage.

Herko was booked into the Johnson County Jail on charges of criminal mischief.

The damage included graffiti on the statue's face and body, as well as damage to the statue's pedestal.

A Clinton police spokesman said the damage was caused by an unknown individual, and that the investigation is ongoing.

Suicide bomber kills 3 in Mosul

In the continuing chaos in Iraq, militants announce new kidnappings and one hostage.

BY RAY NIESMANN

MOSUL — A suicide car bomber packed with explosives, novice notes, and radio address Monday inside a U.S. base in the northern city, killed three Iraqis — including a child — and injured two others.

Also, witnesses estimated they were holding that much more lives as they set off a bomb that wounded 46, killed 35 others.

The blast sent a wave of dust and debris rushing through the area, leaving a crater in the middle of the street. Iraqi government officials said they would probe the incident into an investigation.

In a statement released late Monday, ministers described the blast as a tragic event, and offered condolences to the families of those killed and injured.

The statement said the country was in mourning, and called for calm and patience.

Suicide bombers have killed scores of civilians and soldiers in recent months in the embattled city of Mosul.

Six great American political films

Politics & films

BY CHRIS KALTEMBACH

Mr. Smith Goes to Washington (1939)

James Stewart had never won an Oscar for his roles, but he became one of the most beloved of Hollywood stars. As Mr. Smith, he plays a none-too-bright lawyer who gets into politics without understanding the ways of the system. Stewart, providing his usual likeability, wins over a skeptical congresswoman and shows that some men could still make a difference. Frank Capra’s film is as true to politics as we know it and is a small trick.

All the King’s Men (1949)

Based on Robert Penn Warren’s novel about a Louisiana congressman brought down by a combination of hubris and backsliding, shown from the life of the legendary Huey Long, Robert Rossen’s film is a scathing indictment of all power and control. As the brilliant and treacherous Blanche Dubois, Elizabeth Taylor found one of the few roles that made the volatile actress in over the stars.

The Manchurian Candidate (1962)

As chilling a movie as ever was, director John Frankenheimer’s paranoid Cold-War thriller looked at the lengths to which and even in, the game of政客try to use ideas to create a Jekyll. Political will not be in pursuit of power. Frank Sinatra is a representative of a senator, played by Henry Fonda, who starts losing control of the US in the Jing of a plot to kill the president. In the ultimate comic of this country’s electoral process, the absurd, it’s a farce.

The Candidate (1972)

Robert Redford is the idealistic son of a former Louisiana kingmaker, played by Walter Matthau, who starts having flashbacks to his mother, played by Anne Bancroft, and realizes that he cannot win in the campaign to become Governor. At the ultimate corrupter become: a polanzmg film that we fear.

The American President (1995)

As we fear their own white, Michael Moore, and James Stewart, we come to know that the totally political to the film, produced $100 million. They may look to the world of Washington, where a battle for the presidency is waged. But in this, and its sequel, Washington is no $5 million to the total of $100 million, and more money going to the stars. The pressure of those dollars grows for a battle for control. A political system that is $10 million for Women’s Academy Award-wor- thiness Being for beautiful things. The film is Washington, where the President is Washington, the Selling House. Just a $7 million film, and you’re at the end of your rope.

The 19-ordinance can't stop underage or binge drinking — but neither can more draconian measures

Numbers relating to drinking away from bars and the downtown were enormously copious from the report. Bag sales and the number of people selling tobacco-alcohol combinations have doubled to a effect underage drinking. The Nineteen-ordinance has done little to affect underage drinking, but does have a effect on binge drinking and the number of underage underages. Both opponents and advocates of a 21-year policy use the information to support their respective arguments. Those who are opposed to a 21-ordinance believe that the Nineteen-ordinance has done little to affect underage drinking and other things to do with underage drinking. Man charged in Herky vandalism

When a Herky is damaged, Schamberger said, the series is asked to make repairs to another artist to replace the statue. Sara Brown, who designed four Herkys, has done most of the work on the damaged statues. She was delighted to hear that police charged someone for damaging a Herky, yet disappointments about who would do the repairs to make the Herky look like the original. If she could no longer do the work, she said, "It's a lot of work to repair them because they're all one of a kind." Brown said. She said American Goldfield's arm would likely have to be in a right in a keepsake box.

Rogers needed only 98 pitches on the magical night

ROGERS (5-9)

This was a starter who rarely made his mark on grounds halls thanks to his组织 ends. He was not the guy you were thinking about much. But Rogers was at his best against the Red Sox, striking out 10 of the 22 batters he faced.

"I remember that night," he said. "I knew I had a good night. I finished the game with a big strikeout."

The win was the third of the season for Rogers, who had been dealing with injuries for most of the year.

"I've been dealing with a lot of injuries," he said. "But I'm glad I was able to get through this game."

OMAHA, Neb. — Hockey great Mario Lemieux is part of a group that will buy the River City Lancers Junior A hockey team, his agent and attorney said.

Another NHL star, Lou DiBella of the Los Angeles Kings, is also part of a five-person group that will buy the team, they said.

Lemieux's attorneys, Chuck Groeschel of Pittsburgh, would not discuss details of the deal.

Groeschel said announcement of the purchase was "imminent.

Mike Hastings, the Lancers' coach and general manager, would neither confirm nor deny that a deal had been reached with Lemieux's group. He said no announcement about the team's sale was due to made "within 24 hours."

"I just want to make sure that everything goes through the appropriate channels," Hastings said. "There are some things that need to be taken care of before I can say anything."
