Kinnick project gets $5 million

Family's gift marks one of the largest donations to athletics program ever

BY ALEX LANG
THE DAILY IOWAN

The Krause family of Des Moines has given the UI $5 million for the renovation of Kinnick Stadium, providing half of the total private funds for the project. W.A. "Bill" Krause, who is co-founder and owner of more than 420 Kum & Go stores in the Midwest, said he donated the money to give back for all the memories the university has provided him. His gift marks one of the largest donations to the athletics program ever.

Krause spent most of his speech during a Sept. 10 press conference thanking the members of his family for their continuous support.

The 1957 UI graduate said he was a manager of the Iowa football team during his years at the university and this was his way of thanking the school.

"There isn't any better Hawkeye family," said Athletics Director Bob Bowlsby. "This isn't about giving to me or to the university, it is about giving back to the fans."

Bowlsby, who described himself as a close friend of the Krauses, said the university initially went to the Krause family with a proposal and reached an agreement on their donation within a few months.

"This gift is an enormous step forward for us," Bowlsby said, SEE KINNICK, PAGE 8A

JAMES ARTHUR TRIAL

Remorseful ex-UI student gets 25 years

Sentencing closes a vehicular-homicide case stemming from a September 2003 car crash

BY SEUNG MIN KIM
THE DAILY IOWAN

If James Arthur could take back the events of Sept. 28, 2003, when he drove drunk and killed best friend Brian Barry, he would.

The former UI student tearfully apologized to Barry's parents, William and Jean Barry, and other victims of the crash on Sept. 10, before 6th District Judge L. Vern Robinson sentenced him to 25 years in prison for vehicular homicide and two counts of serious injury by vehicle.

"I'm so, so sorry," a handcuffed and orange jumpsuit-clad Arthur said, his voice breaking. "I know what I say won't bring him back. Brian was my best friend, and he is with me in spirit today, watching over me."

The sentencing closed the criminal case stemming from a crash that stunned the community, the UI, and West High School, from which Arthur and Barry graduated in May 2003.

Arthur
"I'm so, so sorry" he said at his sentencing Sept. 10

Lawyers reached a plea agreement shortly before the case went to trial in July.

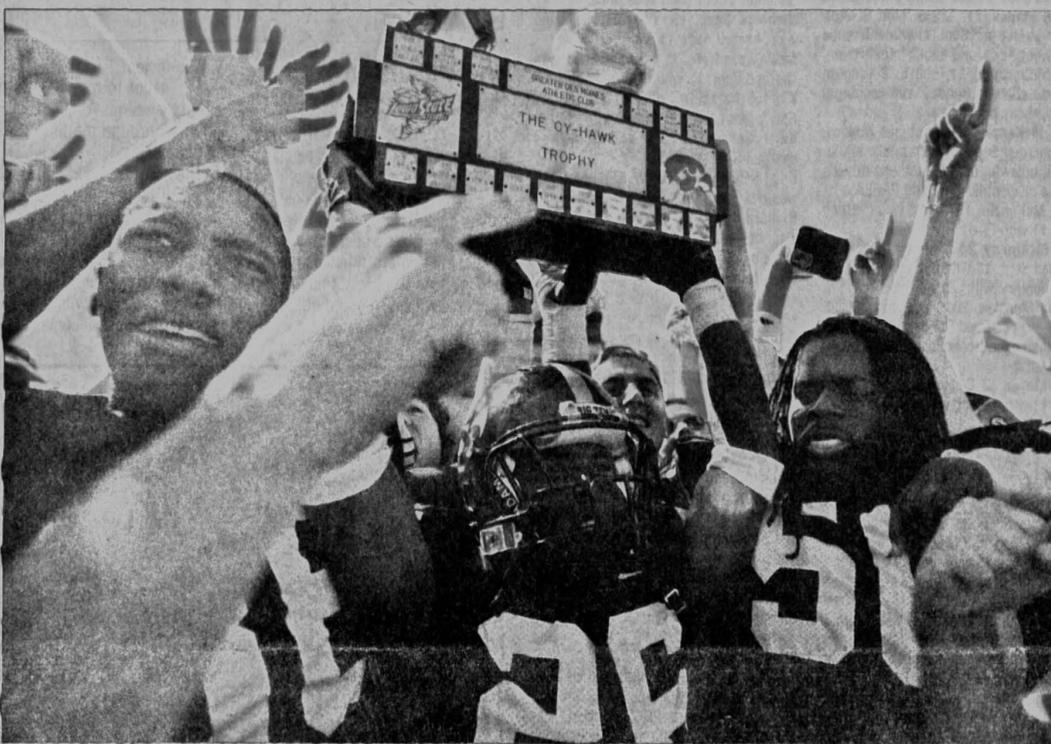

Authorities said Arthur, now 19, had a blood-alcohol level of .163 when he sped down Taft Speedway and smashed his 1997 Ford Thunderbird into a tree at 2:19 a.m. on Sept. 28, 2003.

He ignored pleas from Barry, West High student Mackenzie Sedlacek, and UI student Betsy Sweeting to slow down, driving at 61 to 74 mph in the 25-mph zone.

Barry suffered a blunt force injury to the head, reports show. "In the future, I'll be sure to help others not make the same choices," Arthur said. "I'm sorry to everyone affected

Officials probe Sept. 11 crash that killed teen

Authorities believe a 13-year-old was driving

BY JIM BUTTS
THE DAILY IOWAN

The Iowa State Patrol on Sunday continued to investigate a crash east of Iowa City that killed a local teenager and that authorities believe involved a 13-year-old driver.

Madison Brigham, 16, of Iowa City died at the scene of the accident. The driver of the Chevy Tahoe in which he was a passenger lost control and crashed into a ditch at 8 p.m. Sept. 11. Mitchell Slocum, 13, of West Branch, was reportedly driving north on White Oak Avenue Northeast when he allegedly crossed into the oncoming lane before rolling over.

Mitchell, who was not wearing a seat belt, was airlifted to UI Hospitals and Clinics after the crash. A hospital official said Sunday she was unable to report on his condition. A call placed to the Slocum residence was not immediately returned Sunday.

Madison, known by family as a caring, shy, and patient "country boy," was riding in the passenger seat of the SUV with his seat belt on.

A junior at City High, he was a tennis player who was fond of riding horses. Typically clad in Converse shoes and jeans, he loved to listen to such rockers as AC/DC and Van Halen and eat grilled-cheese sandwiches.

Students' bus use in Iowa City skyrockets

BY MEGHAN SIMS
THE DAILY IOWAN

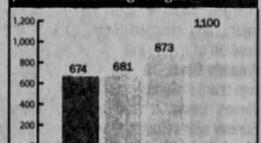

The city and university parking departments' endeavors to encourage students to use the public bus system, thus driving less, appear to have taken hold, according to statistics.

The two worked together to give discounts to students who bought semester bus passes and did not buy a day parking permit. Since parking officials reduced ticket costs two years ago, students are consistently riding more and driving less. Students paid the regular rate of $25 a month before negotiations between Iowa City Transit and the UI Parking and Transportation Department dropped the rate to $16 a month in the fall of 2002.

"Hey, we get them for $16, we'll sell them to you for $16," said Michelle Ribble, the UI Parking and Transportation commuter-programs manager, about the idea behind the discount.

Ribble and UI Parking and Transportation searched for ways to encourage students to leave their cars at home and decided on an additional monetary incentive to reward students who did not buy the $80-per-semester day parking permit. The semester bus passes cost students $80, but if they pass on the parking permit, they pay $50 for five months' worth of rides. Ribble said the department recognized "demand and supply for parking going in opposite directions" as a result of development downtown that occupies former parking areas, such as Marc Moen's Plaza Towers, which will sit next to the Iowa City Public Library, 123 S. Linn St.

Woman charged with embezzlement

An Iowa City woman is the second Paul's Discount employee to be charged in a month

BY SEUNG MIN KIM
THE DAILY IOWAN

An Iowa City woman has been arrested for allegedly embezzling money from Paul's Discount Store, marking the second time a former employee has been charged with theft from the shop in less than a month.

Mary Alice Saylor, 1816 Seventh Ave. Court., faces charges of first-degree theft and first-degree fraudulent practices. Both are Class C felonies that carry penalties of up to 10 years in prison each.

Saylor, now 53, began working at Paul's in January 2000 as a bookkeeper, which required moving cash from registers and documenting how much money each register contained.

On the documents where Saylor was supposed to enter the numbers, she allegedly falsified the amount of returns a register yielded. She allegedly would then steal that amount of money.

She allegedly took the money from Paul's "because it was easy," police reports show. According to the reports, she said she began the embezzlement in 2001, but police said owners say Saylor started stealing the year before.

The amount embezzled totaled $58,754. Saylor's job at Paul's ended in June.

She has been released from the Johnson County Jail on her own recognizance with travel restricted to Iowa.

Her predecessor, Joanna Igo, was arrested last month on a first-degree theft charge. Police alleged that Igo, 34, also known as Joanna Wilson, embezzled $77,290 during her two years of employment at Paul's.

Igo, an office manager and daytime bookkeeper, allegedly would take money from the register that she was supposed to deposit elsewhere and put it in her purse. She began working at Paul's in June 2002 and also stopped last June.

She has since pleaded not guilty.

Iowa City police Sgt. Bill Campbell said he did not know whether the allegations brought against Saylor were related to Igo's charges.

New absentee-voting laws in effect

DES MOINES (AP) — Returning absentee ballots by mail will be cheaper beginning Monday thanks to a new state law, but new regulations also require strict ballot-handling measures officials fear may surprise many voters.

Absentee voters must use a new request form to obtain a ballot from election officials, according to the law. Previously, a handwritten letter was sufficient.

The ballot forms are available at county auditor's offices or on the Internet through the Iowa Secretary of State site.

The absentee ballots must also be received by Oct. 29. Before the new law, voters could request them right up to Election Day.

Completed ballots can then be mailed back to the auditor's office for free, which will save voters between 70 and 90 cents in postage.

City watching for over-occupancy

KATE MCCARTER
THE DAILY IOWAN

Affordable housing is important to college students, and adding more roommates to split the rent is often a solution.

Yet many don't realize that their living arrangements may not be sanctioned by city laws.

"Over-occupancy is a year-round issue that primarily involves students," said Norm Cate, Iowa City's senior housing inspector.

Iowa City's Housing and Inspection Services Department discovered approximately 30 to 40 cases of over-occupancy during routine rental license inspections over the past year. When the city finds a case of over-occupancy, it gives the tenants a notice of up to 60 days for someone to move out.

"Many tenants do not know they're over-occupied, so it comes as a surprise," Cate said.

Iowa City is mapped out by zoning laws that prevent overcrowding. Families are allowed in any zone, but households may only have between one and three non-related tenants depending on where they live.

"Some landlords know the zoning laws, but they still rent to more tenants and keep it secret," said Doug Boothroy, the director of the housing and inspection, adding that landlords who violate the law may lose their rental permits.

Boothroy said it is the landlord's responsibility not to over-occupy the building, but tenants should also inform themselves about the laws.

"We encourage renters to check with the city to ask about the legal occupancy of their property and to make sure they have the right amount of parking," he said.

The department is also aiming to reduce over-occupancy by changing its procedure for granting and renewing rental permits. They now require landlords and tenants to sign a document that acknowledges that they know the legal occupancy limit.

"When we make them sign, they can't claim that we sprung it on them if we tell someone to move out," said Boothroy.

The majority of the department's knowledge of over-occupancies comes from routine rental inspections, but they also find out from neighbors who call to complain. The department has received 21 public complaints about over-occupancy since January 2003, typically regarding noise, trash, and illegal parking.

Yet some Iowa City residents who live near students say over-occupancy can go unnoticed or ignored if the tenants are not disruptive.

"If an over-occupied house is filled with quiet, tidy people who own just a couple of cars between them, nobody knows or probably cares," said Iowa City resident Tim Walker. "If a property is over-occupied by noisy people who keep late hours, then neighbors cannot sleep well, can't send their kids to school well-rested, and cannot enjoy their own homes."

Franken campaigns for Kerry

OTTUMWA (AP) — Comedian and liberal radio talk-show host Al Franken launched into his trademark biting satire as he staged a pre-emptive campaign stop on John Kerry's behalf a day before Vice President Dick Cheney is to appear in the same southeastern Iowa town.

"He's going to announce tomorrow that if Iowa goes for Kerry, Al Qaeda will hit Ottumwa with a nuke," Franken said in a telephone interview with the Associated Press.

WOMAN IN WHEELCHAIR HIT BY VEHICLE

A woman in a wheelchair was hit by a car when she attempted to cross Linn Street at its intersection with Burlington Street around 6:50 p.m. on Sunday.

Witnesses said the vehicle driven by Jacob Conner, 19, of Iowa City struck the woman and knocked her off of her wheelchair, causing her to hit her head. One bystander said the woman was responding and talking to paramedics.

Iowa City police Sgt. Bill Campbell said the woman was "seriously injured," but the injuries were not life-threatening. He said no charges will be filed against Conner, although charges against the pedestrian are still pending.

The driver was not injured. His car suffered a minor dent on its right front corner.

The intersection is the same crossing at which UI junior Amanda Skolnick was fatally injured in September 2003.

The high cost of staying in touch

BY DREW KERR
THE DAILY IOWAN

UI senior Carrie Hutchison got her first credit card a couple of months ago, not because she wanted to, because she had to.

Her fiancé is stationed in Fort Gordon, Ga., and in order to plan their upcoming wedding, the couple intends to meet twice before December. Because she was unable to pay for the $600 plane tickets up front, she reluctantly opted to pay the monthly balances instead.

She isn't alone in fighting the high costs of staying close to friends and loved ones in the military.

UI sophomore Colleen Crossett said spending $60 a week on phone cards to call her boyfriend in Baumholder, Germany, has eaten away at her savings. The Macomb, Ill., native worked three jobs this summer to help finance her relationship with Jeremy Rutledge, whom she calls "her soldier."

Carissa Swanstrom, whose boyfriend Lanon Baccam left Iowa City in March, says she has spent up to $300 in shipping thus far to send her boyfriend the "sentimental" things he can't pick up at the Postal Exchange at his base in Kandahar, Afghanistan. Homemade cookies, DVDs, and newspapers head the list of offerings sent via the U.S. Postal Service.

Sen. John McCain, R-Ariz., is hoping to help soldiers stay in touch by sponsoring the bill "Troops Phone Home Free Act of 2003," which would give those serving in Afghanistan or Iraq access to a monthly $40 calling card.

"It's a good idea and everything, but personally, I'd rather have them spend $40 to armor another Humvee so he can come home and we can talk in person," Swanstrom said.

Because Crossett's boyfriend is stationed in Germany, the bill would not apply to him. She said the government should extend the offer to all serving in order to keep them "in the right frame of mind."

Hutchison has thus far been able to cope with the additional $50 a month on her cell-phone bill with her parents' financial assistance and by cutting back in other areas, but she fears that her fiancé's move to Korea in April will bring shortened conversations.

The North Liberty resident recalls hearing stories from friends of $2,000 to $3,000 monthly phone bills to Korea. Additionally, plane tickets will cost up to $1,000, she said.

"I'm afraid I'm going to be in debt then," Hutchison said, adding that their nightly calls will become weekly once the move is made.

UI sophomore Tiffany Cheng said her only experience with high phone bills came in the form of an April Fools' joke in which her twin sister called her pretending to be from the phone company asking for $700 for calls to Baghdad.

In reality, Cheng has spent more than $60 in shipping for the monthly packages sent to boyfriend Bobby Brennan, who is stationed in Fallujah, Iraq. She takes the expenses in stride, saying the shipping costs have replaced the costs of dating.

"I figure, I can't go to dinner with him Friday night, so I'll send him a package instead," she said.

Besides the packages, the Freeport, Ill., native says the couple's routine Wednesday phone conversations are Brennan's "only way to realize that there is more going on in the world than war."

Despite the struggles to finance their relationships, all interviewed agree the benefit of having a conversation with their healthy counterpart far outweighs any imposing financial burden they may face.

"You're trying to create a reservoir of time to live off of while they are away," Swanstrom said.

After graduation in 1968 from Grand Rapids' Calvin College, Paul Schrader attended UCLA's film school, quickly becoming a film critic for the L.A. Free Press and an editor of Cinema magazine. His thesis on Ozu, Bresson and Dreyer was published as Transcendental Style in Film by the University of California Press. Schrader's first success came with this screenplay for THE YAKUZA, directed by Sydney Pollack in 1974. This was followed by his classic screen play for Martin Scorsese's TAXI DRIVER (1976). In 1977 Schrader began his own directorial career with BLUE COLLAR (Harvey Keitel, Richard Pryor). In 1997 he adapted and directed Russell Banks' AFFLICTION (Nick Nolte, James Coburn and Willem Dafoe), which was released to critical acclaim in late 1998. In 2001, he directed his fourteenth film entitled AUTOFOCUS (Greg Kinnear and Willem Dafoe), which was followed quickly by EXORCIST: THE BEGINNING (Stellan Skarsgaard and Gabriel Mann). Schrader lives in New York with his wife, actress Mary Beth Hurt, and their two children.

Ivan veers west, missing Keys

The hurricane has killed at least 60 as it has roared through the Caribbean

BY HILARY ROXE
ASSOCIATED PRESS

KEY WEST, Fla. — The only whooshing sound Hurricane Ivan stirred in the Keys and populous South Florida on Sunday was a sigh of relief from residents no longer fearful the 150-mph storm would make a direct hit.

But even as Ivan veered west on a course that would take it away from the 120-mile island chain and Florida's eastern coast, forecasters warned that the state, already slammed by two powerful hurricanes in a month, was not out of the woods yet.

Ivan's forecast track across the eastern Gulf of Mexico could take it ashore on the Florida Panhandle, which took a glancing blow from Hurricane Frances, or parts of the state's west coast that are recovering from Hurricane Charley.

Ivan battered the Cayman Islands on Sunday, flooding homes, ripping off roofs, and toppling trees three stories tall as its powerful eye thundered past just offshore.

Ivan has killed at least 60 people in its path of destruction across the Caribbean, and it was headed next for western Cuba, where it was expected to hit today. "It's creepy," said Amanda Morrow, sipping frozen coffee at a Tampa restaurant that still had windows boarded up against the earlier storms. "No one knows where it's going to go. That's what is stressful."

At 7 p.m. CDT Sunday, Ivan had top sustained wind of 150 mph, down from 165 mph on Sept. 11, and it was centered 210 miles southeast of Cuba's western tip, the National Hurricane Center said. The minimum for Category 5 status is 156 mph wind.

10 dead in suspected Ohio arson

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A suspected arson fire raced through an apartment complex in suburban Columbus on Sunday, killing 10 people who lived in the same apartment and forcing others to jump from third-story windows to escape.

At least 53 people were left homeless by the blaze in Prairie Township, which destroyed the building's roof and third floor, melted siding, and left its wooden skeleton exposed.

Antonio Noriega said firefighters pulled him from a ladder as he tried to rescue his brothers and nephews. "My family is dead," Noriega said.

Eight of his relatives and two friends lived together and Noriega did not believe any of them made it out of the building. Authorities wouldn't say whether others were still missing.

The fire came just six weeks after three fires were set in the same building in an empty apartment and hallway, said Fire Chief Steve Feustel. There were no suspects and no known witnesses to Sunday's suspected arson, he said.

The victims, including a child, lived on the third floor and tried to escape, Feustel said. "They were out of their beds. They didn't die in their sleep," he said.

Two people, including a woman who jumped from a window, were treated and released from a hospital, a nursing supervisor said.

Crime rate remains low

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's crime rate last year held steady at the lowest levels since the government began surveying crime victims in 1973, the Justice Department reported Sunday.

The study was the latest contribution to a decade-long trend in which violent crime as measured by victim surveys has fallen by 55 percent and property crime by 49 percent. That has included a 14 percent drop in violent crime from 2000-01 to 2002-03.

"The rates are the lowest experienced in the last 30 years," Justice Department statistician Shannan Catalona said in the report. "Crime rates have stabilized."

The 2003 violent crime rate — assault, sexual assault, and armed robbery — stood at 22.6 victims for every 1,000 people age 12 and older. That amounts to about one violent crime victim for every 44 U.S. residents.

US Airways files 2nd bankruptcy

ARLINGTON, Va. (AP) — US Airways Group Inc., the nation's seventh-largest airline, filed for bankruptcy protection Sunday for the second time in two years. The company's president vowed to continue restructuring the airline into a low-cost carrier during the bankruptcy process.

"We have come too far and accomplished too much to simply stop the process and not succeed," said Bruce Lakefield, US Airways' president and chief executive. "A restructured US Airways with low costs and low fares will be a dynamic competitor."

The Chapter 11 filing in U.S. Bankruptcy Court in Alexandria came after US Airways was unable to obtain $800 million in annual cost cuts from its workers' unions that the airline said it needed to stay afloat.

On Sept. 6, a deeply divided pilots union refused to allow its membership to vote on a company proposal that would have cut pay by 20 percent and retirement-plan contributions by 50 percent.

As recently as Sept. 10, US Airways made a last-ditch effort to reach a deal with the pilots, offering a proposal with minimum pay cuts that would have required more flight hours each month, putting more pilots at risk of furlough.

Some pilot representatives who opposed the new deal said the pilots and other US Airways workers had made enough concessions during the company's first trip into bankruptcy in 2002. Then, the unions collectively agreed to contract concessions of more than $1 billion a year.

Iraqi insurgents pound Baghdad

Thirty-seven are killed in the capital, 59 across Iraq on a chaotic day

BY ROBERT H. REID

BAGHDAD — Insurgents hammered central Baghdad on Sunday with one of their most intense mortar and rocket barrages ever in the heart of the capital, heralding a day of violence that killed nearly 60 people nationwide as security appeared to spiral out of control.

At least 37 people were killed in Baghdad alone. Many of them died when a U.S. helicopter fired on a disabled U.S. Bradley fighting vehicle as Iraqis swarmed around it, cheering, throwing stones, and waving the black and yellow sunburst banner of Iraq's most-feared terrorist organization.

The dead from the helicopter strike included Arab television reporter Mazen al-Tumeizi, who screamed, "I'm dying! I'm dying!" as a cameraman recorded the chaotic scene. An Iraqi cameraman working for the Reuters news agency and an Iraqi freelance photographer for Getty Images were wounded.

Maimed and lifeless bodies of young men and boys lay in the street as the stricken U.S. vehicle was engulfed in flames and thick black smoke.

Across the country, the death toll Sunday was at least 59, according to figures from the Health Ministry, the Multinational Force command and local authorities.

Nearly 200 people were wounded, more than half of them in Baghdad.

Strong detonations again shook the center of Baghdad after sunset Sunday. There were no reports of damage or casualties.

As the early morning barrage was under way in Baghdad, insurgents attacked the infamous U.S.-run Abu Ghraib prison on the city's western edge. Several mortar shells exploded outside the complex about 6 a.m., and about 20 minutes later a pickup truck packed with artillery shells crashed through the chain-link fence on the outer perimeter.

Marines opened fire, and the vehicle exploded before reaching the main security wall, killing the driver, a military statement said. Seven people were later arrested, it said.

Tawhid and Jihad, a militant group linked to Al Qaeda and led by Jordanian terror mastermind Abu Musab al-Zarqawi, said it carried out Sunday's coordinated campaign of violence in Baghdad.

In an Internet statement, the group boasted that it holds the initiative in the Iraqi insurgency and possesses the "capability to surprise the enemy and hit its strategic installations at the right time and place."

The statement's source could not be verified, but the scope and intensity of the attacks raised serious questions about the state of security, which has deteriorated since the June 28 transfer of sovereignty to the interim Iraqi government.

In Basra, interim Prime Minister Ayad Allawi vowed to pursue insurgents.

"We are adamant that we are going to defeat terrorism," Allawi said. "We intend to confront them and bring them to justice."

Interior Minister Falah Hassan al-Naqib suggested the attacks could be in response to a government operation against the Adel neighborhood of west Baghdad, an insurgent hotbed. However, the scope of the attacks suggested they had been in preparation for some time.

Secretary of State Colin Powell acknowledged that the U.S.-led coalition faced a "difficult time" in Iraq but said the United States had a plan to quash the insurgency and bring those areas under control in time for national elections in January.

The insurgency "will be brought under control," Powell said on NBC's "Meet The Press." "It's not an impossible task."

But Iraqi Foreign Minister Hoshiyar Zebari said the level of security in his country will dictate whether the national elections are held when scheduled.

"The timetable really depends at the end of the day on the security situation," Zebari said in Cairo, Egypt. "But we are going in this direction [of elections] without hesitation."

Near Hillah, 60 miles south of Baghdad, three Polish soldiers were killed in an ambush — raising Poland's death toll in Iraq to 13 — and a bomb killed three Iraqi national guardsmen. A district police chief was killed in an attack in Baghdad's Yarmouk neighborhood.

Meanwhile, 10 people were killed and 40 were wounded in fighting in the insurgent stronghold of Ramadi, 70 miles west of Baghdad, said hospital director Abdel Munim Aftan.

Russia declares right to pre-emptive strikes against militants abroad

BY VLADIMIR ISACHENKOV
ASSOCIATED PRESS

MOSCOW — Russia reserves the right to carry out pre-emptive strikes on militant bases abroad in the wake of the school hostage seizure, Russia's Defense minister said Sunday, adding that Moscow and the United States see eye to eye on fighting terrorism.

Sergei Ivanov did not say what countries might be possible targets for a strike, but Russian officials in the past have said Chechen separatists have bases in nearby Georgia, and Moscow has had friction with that country's pro-U.S. government over the issue.

President Vladimir Putin has blamed international terrorism for the school hostage crisis at Beslan in southern Russia where at least 330 hostages died on Sept. 3. He lashed out at those in the West who continued to advise Russia to conduct peace talks with rebels in Chechnya, sneering that they should negotiate with Osama bin Laden.

President Bush visited the Russian Embassy in Washington on Sunday, signing a book of condolence for victims of the school hostage seizure and expressing outrage at the actions of "evil terrorists."

"The atrocities took place in the school were beyond comprehension," the president told reporters.

Ivanov told the NTV television channel he had spoken twice with U.S. Defense Secretary Donald Rumsfeld last week, adding the U.S. administration was more receptive to Moscow's arguments on how to fight terror than some European officials.

"The Americans and the U.S. military have a better understanding of the seriousness of this threat since we and the United States have both been targeted in powerful terrorist attacks," Ivanov said in the television interview.

Officials: Mushroom cloud over N. Korea not a nuclear bomb test

BY CHRISTOPHER TORCHIA
ASSOCIATED PRESS

SEOUL, South Korea — A huge mushroom cloud that reportedly billowed up from North Korea was not caused by a nuclear explosion, South Korean and U.S. officials said Sunday, but they said the cause was a mystery.

Secretary of State Colin Powell confirmed that unusual activity had recently been detected at some of North Korea's atomic sites, but he said there was no concrete evidence the North's secretive communist regime was preparing for its first nuclear-test explosion.

The South Korean news agency Yonhap reported Sunday that a mammoth explosion in North Korea produced a mushroom cloud more than 2 miles across Thursday. It said the blast was stronger than an April explosion that killed 160 people and injured an estimated 1,300 at a North Korean railway station when a train carrying oil and chemicals apparently hit power lines.

"There was no indication that was a nuclear event of any kind," Powell said of Thursday's incident. "Exactly what it was, we're not sure."

Kim Jong-min, spokesman for the South Korean presidential office, told Yonhap: "Currently, we are trying to find out in detail the exact character, cause, and size of the accident, but we don't think North Korea conducted a nuclear test."

China's government, which has the closest relations with North Korea, had no immediate comment about the reported explosion.

Before Yonhap's report, the New York Times Sunday edition said senior U.S. intelligence officials had seen signs of activities that some analysts thought might indicate North Korea was preparing a nuclear test. Other experts were more cautious in their assessments, but the developments were considered worrisome enough for the White House to be alerted, the Times said.

Appearing on ABC's "This Week," Powell said there were "some activities taking place at some sites that we are watching carefully, but it is not conclusive that they're moving toward a test or they're just doing some maintenance at that site."

Later, on "Fox News Sunday," Powell expressed skepticism North Korea would stage a nuclear-test explosion.

The North Koreans "know this would not be a sensible step for them to take," he said. "And it is not just the reaction that they might see in the United States; it's their own neighbors."

On Sept. 11, North Korea said recent revelations that South Korea conducted secret nuclear experiments involving uranium and plutonium made the communist state more determined to pursue its own nuclear programs.

The South Korean experiments in 1982 and 2000, which the South said did not reflect an attempt to develop weapons, are likely to further complicate six-nation talks aimed at dismantling North Korea's nuclear development. Another round of talks involving the United States, Russia, Japan, China, and the two Koreas is tentatively scheduled this month in Beijing.

Washington is pushing for North Korea to fully disclose all of its nuclear activities and allow outside monitoring before it receives any assistance for its struggling economy. North Korea wants energy aid, an end to economic sanctions, and removal from Washington's list of state sponsors of terrorism.

"North Korea is looking for assurances that we're not going to invade it, [that] we have no hostile intent," Powell said. "They're looking for benefits for giving up their nuclear capability and their nuclear infrastructure. And what we're debating is what will it take to give them the assurances they need and what benefits would they expect over the long haul."

But, he said, the United States will not "reward them for doing something they should've been doing in the first place. So we're into a very intense period of negotiations."

Yonhap said the explosion occurred at 11 a.m. Thursday in Yanggang province near North Korea's border with China.

"We understand that a mushroom-shaped cloud about 3.5 to 4 kilometers [2.1 to 2.5 miles] in diameter was monitored during the explosion," Yonhap quoted an unidentified diplomatic source as saying in Seoul, South Korea's capital.

Thousands protest Sharon plan

The Israeli leader's intention to vacate Gaza has stirred warnings of civil war

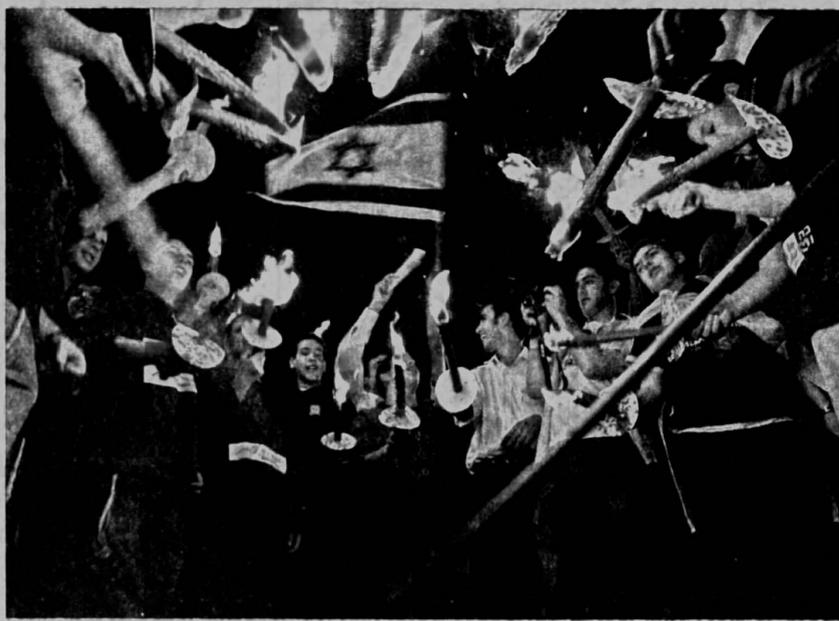

BY JOSEF FEDERMAN
ASSOCIATED PRESS

JERUSALEM — Tens of thousands of Jewish settlers and their backers demonstrated in Jerusalem on Sunday against Prime Minister Ariel Sharon's plan to evacuate all settlements from Gaza and four West Bank enclaves in a rally held against a backdrop of assassination threats and warnings of civil war.

The withdrawal plan has upset the Israeli political scene since it was announced last year, turning Sharon's backers into opponents and detractors into supporters. Skeptical Palestinians believe the whole plan is a trick to annex large parts of the West Bank to Israel.

The demonstrators filled downtown Jerusalem, shutting down much of the city, to protest the planned pullout.

Most of those filling downtown were Orthodox Jews, many of them teenage girls in long skirts or youths wearing knit skullcaps. A huge banner behind the stage set the theme: "Disengagement tears the people apart." Many waved blue-and-white Israeli flags.

Organizers pledged to prevent incitement to violence, but there were also some ominous signs.

One placard warned that the head of Sharon's disengagement committee would "not be forgiven." Another showed a picture of Sharon under the words, "The Dictator."

Another sign said, "A time to love, a time to hate," quoting the biblical Book of Ecclesiastes.

After the demonstration, hundreds of participants, many holding candles, marched to a square near Sharon's official residence, where they called on the prime minister to resign. The rally dispersed peacefully.

Karzai move provokes Afghan riots

KABUL, Afghanistan (AP) — Protesters angered at President Hamid Karzai's sacking of a warlord governor in the west of the country ransacked U.N. compounds and clashed with security forces Sunday, leaving as many as three people dead and dozens wounded, including three U.S. troops who were hit with stones.

Interior Minister spokesman Lutfullah Mashal said there were no deaths.

The U.S.-backed interim leader, facing a fresh security crisis ahead of Oct. 9 elections that already are threatened by Taliban militants, denounced the rioting and said he would deal with it "strongly."

Angry protesters took to the streets after the Sept. 11 announcement that Gov. Ismail Khan, the regional strongman, had been "promoted" to a Cabinet post in the capital.

Mobs chanting slogans against the government and in favor of Khan turned their wrath on the United Nations, storming and looting two of its compounds and forcing its staff to flee to an American military base. At least one U.N. vehicle and a guard house were set ablaze, spokesman Manoel de Almeida e Silva said.

The U.S. soldiers were injured by rocks as they helped evacuate dozens of U.N. staff and relief workers to their small base in the city, U.S. Ambassador Zalmay Khalilzad said.

Afghan police and soldiers trying to control the crowd fired shots and wounded as many as 10 people, Mashal said, claiming the soldiers fired into the air and killed no one.

But the provincial health chief said later that three people were fatally injured, including a 15-year-old boy.

"His family came to the hospital this afternoon, and we handed over the body," Mohammed Omar Samim said.

Samim said 51 more were wounded, including one patient in a critical condition. Most suffered bullet wounds, he said. "The surgeons will work through the night."

The deputy director of the city's main hospital, Khalid Ahmad Tawakul, said he had seen the bodies of two young men.

One of the wounded told an Associated Press Television News reporter in the hospital that his leg and facial injuries were caused by shrapnel.

"I was standing in the street with a few others when national army and American troops were running along the street. Suddenly, someone of them threw a hand grenade at us," said Bismillah, a 41-year-old man who goes by one name.

But a U.S. spokeswoman dismissed his claim, saying that the protesters had thrown grenades.

"I can tell you with authority that U.S. soldiers did not fire a shot," Lt. Col. Pamela Keeton said.

Keeton said three American soldiers suffered minor facial or shoulder injuries, while one Afghan soldier was more badly hurt. She didn't elaborate.

Karzai condemned the rioters, who also burned the office of a Danish aid group and wrecked the local branch of the Afghan human rights commission, saying they were damaging Afghanistan's fragile peace process.

"That's not what this country wants, and that's not what the people of Herat want," he told reporters in the capital, 360 miles to the east. "We will deal with that strongly."

Iran to keep uranium program

A confrontation with the U.N. Security Council is possible

BY GEORGE JAHN
ASSOCIATED PRESS

BERLIN — Iran's refusal to give up uranium enrichment — and banish suspicions it seeks nuclear arms — set the stage Sunday for confrontation before a U.N. atomic watchdog agency, with the United States lobbying to have Iran taken before the Security Council for possible sanctions.

Washington appeared unlikely to get its way immediately at today's meeting in Vienna, Austria, but its stand was bolstered for the longer term after European allies agreed to set a November deadline for Iran to meet international demands to suspend uranium enrichment and clear up other concerns about its nuclear program.

In a draft resolution prepared by France, Germany, and Britain and made available to the Associated Press, the three European powers warned of possible "further steps" by November, the next meeting of the Vienna-based International Atomic Energy Agency's board of governors.

Diplomats said "further steps" was shorthand for referring Iran's case to the U.N. Security Council if the Tehran regime hindered the atomic agency's nuclear probe or if it refused to suspend uranium enrichment.

A top U.S. official said the Bush administration hoped for "a peaceful and diplomatic solution" in its effort to ensure Iran does not obtain atomic weapons in violation of its commitments under the Nuclear Nonproliferation Treaty.

During a visit to Israel, Undersecretary of State John Bolton said Security Council sanctions were "not inevitable," but suggested they were likely.

He also hinted that all options remained open for dealing with Iran. "We're determined that

"We're determined that they're not going to achieve a nuclear weapons capability."

— John Bolton,
undersecretary of State

they're not going to achieve a nuclear-weapons capability," he said.

Iran's government remained defiant ahead of the Monday meeting.

Speaking in the Iranian capital Sunday, Foreign Ministry spokesman Hamid Reza Asefi said his country would not give in to demands that it abandon uranium enrichment — a process with applications in both generating electricity and making nuclear warheads.

Asefi repeated that Iran was willing to provide guarantees it is not seeking nuclear arms, assurances that have been dismissed in the past by the United States and its allies as inadequate.

Enrichment does not fall under Iran's obligations under the nonproliferation treaty, but the Tehran regime has been under international pressure for more than a year to fully renounce enrichment to counterbalance suspicions that arose from the discovery two years ago that it had hidden some nuclear activities for nearly two decades.

A U.S. official, who spoke to AP on condition of anonymity, said Iran's defiance was helping Washington. He said Bolton, the U.S. point man on nuclear nonproliferation, was pressing the Europeans on Sunday to toughen their language in the draft resolution for the atomic agency meeting.

With the Americans pressuring their allies, the draft drawn up by France, Germany, and Britain was likely to undergo changes before being submitted to the board. Other countries also might submit proposals, and adoption of any resolution would require approval by two-thirds of the 35 board members.

The draft put the three European countries the closest they have been to the U.S. position on Iran. Up to now, they had resisted U.S. attempts to have Iran taken before the Security Council or even hint on a date for such possible action.

While the last atomic agency board meeting in June censured Iran for past cover-ups and warned there was little time left to prove it didn't have a nuclear-weapons program, the agency didn't impose a deadline or even indirectly threaten sanctions.

Vehicular homicide draws 25 years

by my poor and immature decision."

Approximately 50 people — victims and their families, Arthur's relatives, and West High students and alumni — packed the courtroom for the 35-minute hearing. They heard county prosecutor Iris Frost read statements from victims and their families, detailing their pain and anguish stemming from last fall's crash.

Mackenzie's mother, Lori Carter, said she has forgiven Arthur and believes in his potential to positively influence others.

"I'm blessed to have my daughter here today," Carter said. "Mackenzie and I are closer today than ever before ... unfortunately, it takes tragedy to bring people closer together."

For her daughter, disbelief surrounded the fact that Barry was gone. It took people dressed in black and wearing white ribbons in her hospital room for Mackenzie, then 16, to truly realize her best friend had died.

She often blamed herself for the crash, adding, "I was the only sober one that night."

"I was angry with Jim that he did not think about what could've happened, but he never intended on hurting anybody," she said. "I know he'd take it back ... I don't think Brian would want Jim to go through a lot of jail time."

Sweeting, then a UI freshman, and her family said life has been a challenge since last September. She was reportedly in a coma for almost a month and hospitalized for almost three months.

She won't go swimming, embarrassed about her scars, said her father, Ron Sweeting. She can't mow the lawn, nor can she manage time and money. She also suffers from short-term memory loss.

"I don't believe I can tell you how bad things really are," Ron Sweeting said.

But despite it all, Betsy said she is "very happy to be alive."

"I think some time in jail would be a good thing for Jim," Betsy Sweeting said. "He needs to feel pain like we all did."

While many pleaded for leniency, Barry's parents asked Robinson to impose the harshest sentence under the July plea agreement to deter others from committing similar mistakes.

Not a minute passes without the Barrys thinking of their son and his "gentle smile," they said. Now, they won't see Brian graduate, marry, or have children.

"No parent should be awakened in the middle of the night to have police tell them of their child's death," their statement read. "No parents should have to see their child's damaged body in the morgue."

Arthur could not have grown up in today's society without realizing the devastating effects of drinking and driving, Barry's parents said.

He will not serve mandatory minimum time for the prison term. He is also eligible for parole now, his attorney David Brown said, but "it'll probably be some time before he applies for it."

Initially faced with six charges, Arthur pleaded guilty to the three felonies and had additional charges dropped. He was charged with a drunken-driving count and a reckless-driving count for each person killed or injured.

The sentence also ordered him to pay $150,000 in victim restitution to the estate of Brian Barry, plus court costs and $1,500 in fines. He got credit for 51 days served in jail. Arthur has 30 days to appeal.

"I've been doing this a long time," Robinson said. "I've never seen anything more tragic."

Students riding bus more

Students have responded to these efforts positively over the past three years. In 2001, students purchased 789 fall semester passes, 1,113 in 2002, and 1,267 in 2003. As of August, the department had already sold more than 1,100 passes.

Students are riding the buses more as well, not simply buying more passes each year. In the fall, Iowa City Transit logged 85,578 student rides in 2001, 113,086 in 2002, and 120,744 in 2003, said Manouchehr Amin, the city operations supervisor. The number of rides for this August were 4,451. Amin added that this value represents only rides logged through Aug. 20, before fall session began and all students were back in town.

Ron Logsdon, the city transit manager for 10 years, said the increase in bus use may reflect a recent student fad of living live outside the city's center.

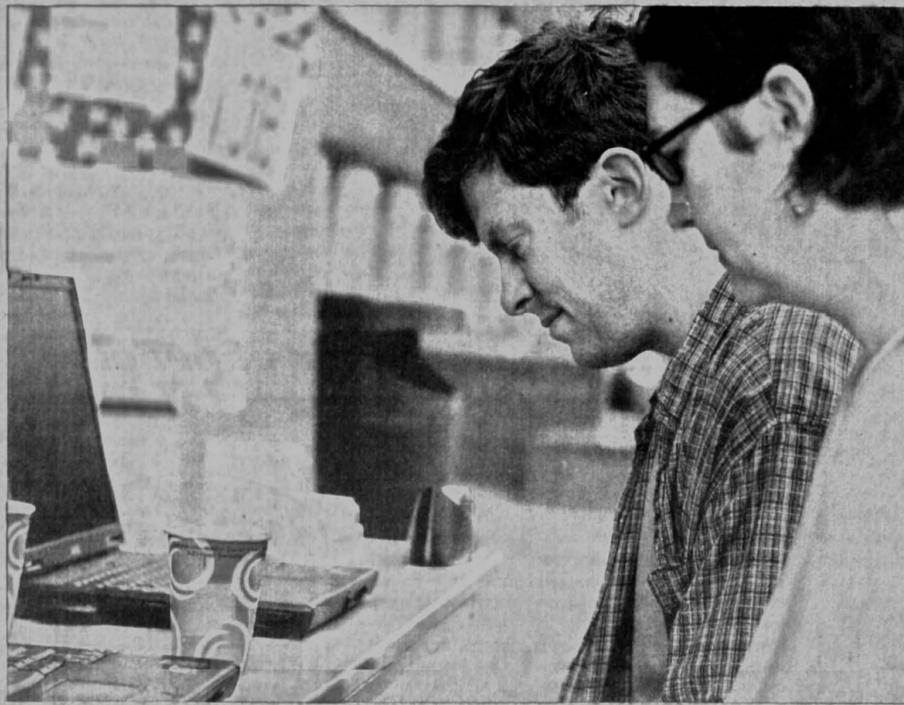

"There was a trend to live downtown in previous years," he said. "That's changing."

Real-estate appraiser Casey Cook conducts the Iowa City area apartment rent survey of the city's competitive rentable property every two years. His firm, Cook Appraisals, surveyed four zones last year including Coralville, the areas within one mile of the Pentacrest, and areas more than a mile from the Pentacrest.

He found that the heavily student-rented area of the Pentacrest experienced an increase in vacancies from roughly 1 percent in 2001 to roughly 3.5 percent in 2003. He added that this may be because of the increase in rentable property in the area, such as the apartment complex above Akar Art Gallery at 4 S. Linn St.

Ribble suggests that the relationship between the number of students using public transportation and the number living farther from campus may not be quite as causal, saying "I think it goes hand-in-hand." But she added that their efforts have "opened up opportunities as to where students can live."

adding the donation allows the university to keep Kinnick Stadium and its tradition alive for years to come.

The Krause family also gave $500,000 to the UI in 1993 to help construct the Kinnick weight-room facilities. They have also donated to the Tippie College of Business.

"If I take a minute or two to look into the past when I was making $10 a week as a farm hand, I would have never thought I'd be here," Krause said.

UI Foundation President Michael New said the gift is significant because it will allow the university to meet its $10 million goal quicker than expected. He added that large gifts such as the Krauses' help raise national awareness of the project and can encourage other people to give to the renovation.

Plans include renovating Kinnick Stadium's press box and adding suites, along with redesigning the south end zone seating and plaza in front of the stadium. The project is slated for completion in 2006; the price tag is estimated at more than $80 million.

"It is one of those things where the gift has to feel right," Bowsby said. "I know this feels right for a lot of different reasons."

This isn't the first tragedy for the Brigham family—Madison's father died 10 years ago.

"His dad, who he's in heaven with right now, was named Thomas Brigham," Caroline Brigham said. "Madison was my teammate after my dad died, and he helped my mom so much."

Caroline Brigham said that

Conductor returns to Iowa football train

put his gold-labeled conductor's cap on and returned to work the rails. As he often did in the beginning of his 28-year railroad career, Owens is helping Hawkeye fans commute to the football game on Saturday mornings.

"The train would go right up to Kinnick Stadium from West Liberty; some of the trains came from Minneapolis," said Owens, recalling the times he conducted passenger trains to Hawkeye games in the 1960s. "There would be six or seven cars, and there wouldn't be any room on it."

On Saturday, Owens was one of 18 volunteers, seven of whom have worked for a railroad, on the 11-car Hawkeye Express. In its second outing, 1,900 people bought tickets to ride the Hawkeye Express to the game. Additional loading space erased last week's delays.

In the side pocket of his sports coat, Owens still keeps a worn hole punch he used to punch tickets with.

He said the local "football special" train line, which ran to the stadium on game day, was discontinued in 1967 because so many people were driving their cars to the games. In the following years, most of the other passenger lines in Iowa were shut down for the same reason.

"Interstate highways killed passenger business," said Dan Sabin, the owner of the Iowa Northern Railroad. "It's surging now, but there are whole generations that have never ridden a train."

Today, Iowa only has two passenger trains, which stop at a handful of towns in southern Iowa.

Owens said he is suiting up in his old uniform because it gives the Hawkeye Express the look of the old-time passenger trains that used to carry Iowans between towns.

"I had one guy ask me if that was a real uniform," Owens said. "I said, 'It's real; I wore it when I was on the Rock Island.'"

Karen Huerter worked on the railroad with Owens and now volunteers on the Hawkeye Express. She also dresses in authentic railroad clothes, a black vest and a cap labeled "brakeman" on Saturdays.

"It's history; it's part of our heritage," she said. "Don't you find it kind of exciting to ride a train? It's something you don't get to do anymore."

Pulling the trigger on weapons ban

The 1994 federal assault weapons ban is set to expire today, a depressing casualty of an election season in which facts and honest debate have been abandoned for shameless political pandering. This ban should have been renewed, and our government's failure to do so is a sad commentary on the state of current public policy.

The ban has serious drawbacks, most seriously its limited scope. Numerous exceptions and a somewhat illogical set of criteria for defining an "assault weapon" make it fairly easy to purchase a deadly semiautomatic rifle. But this is no reason to make the 19 specific weapons — such as the AK-47 and AR-15 assault rifles — commercially available again.

While the ban's overall effectiveness is subject to dispute, that it has reduced the number of crimes committed with assault weapons is not. If the problem is that not enough heavy-combat weapons are banned, the sensible solution is to ban more of them, not to make more legal. Tellingly, this is the position held by a huge number of law-enforcement officials, who must deal with gun violence head-on; police chiefs and sheriffs across the country have spoken out for strengthening the ban.

There is no shortage of public support, either. Studies consistently show that at least two-thirds of Americans favor the ban (a study by the Annenberg Public Policy Center shows that 68 percent of Americans support renewing the ban). Unfortunately, their opinion carries less weight with our government than the tremendous lobbying power of such groups as the National Rifle Association, which has taken an almost frenetic stance against the ban.

If the problem is that not enough heavy-combat weapons are banned, the sensible solution is to ban more of them, not to make more legal.

Curiously, this is an issue on which President Bush and Sen. John Kerry supposedly agree. When he was campaigning for president in 2000, Bush said he would support the ban's renewal, and he maintains that he still does. Yet the president has not lifted a finger to accomplish this goal, even though the Republican Congress has not even held a vote on the issue. This president has shown no reluctance to lobby Congress in the past; at best, his silence is a tragic failure of leadership, and at worst, it is a cynical attempt to have it both ways, claiming to support the bill while quietly killing it.

Kerry's position is only slightly better. He supported a Senate effort to renew the ban, but he was silent on the issue for months when the effort stalled. Three days ago, he attacked Bush for not pressuring Congress hard enough. We welcome his words on the matter, but where were they a month ago? For most of the campaign, Kerry seemed to think it was more important to be photographed in swing states with a rifle in his hands than to make an issue of gun control. Perhaps concerned about offending the gun lobby, he has decided his best option is to let the bill die and then attack Bush for not saving it — a double game that accomplishes nothing.

Our law-enforcement officials and the general public are the losers in this game — a ban is about to disappear that the courts have refused to strike down and that a huge majority of Americans support. The ban has created no problems that will be solved by allowing more assault weapons on the streets, and it has certainly not canceled the right to bear arms. There is no good reason not to renew this ban, and those leaders who have denied the ban a fair chance to be evaluated on its merits ought to be ashamed. We are and Peter Sollogub, the chief architect, to learn more about it. After our discussion, they gave a presentation to the faculty and students at the UI College of Engineering. I was impressed with the presentation and convinced that this project would create many opportunities for both college students and researchers. When completed, students will gather from all over the country to share their knowledge and enthusiasm for a greener environment. Academic conferences and symposiums will be organized on environmental topics. In a short time, Iowa will have a historic opportunity to be the capital of the green design, renewable energy, and environmental studies.

The Eden Project in England, which has concepts similar to Coralville project, has made significant contributions to the academic world by supporting educational and environmental studies. The Iowa Environmental Project will have the same huge effect on the region, making remarkable contributions to science and education. I am optimistic about the future of this project and tremendously excited for the grand opening day. When a visitor asks me if this is heaven after seeing the indoor rain forest, I will reply, "No. It's Iowa."

Indoor rain forest will be boon for region

An indoor rain forest known as the Iowa Environmental Project will soon be constructed in Coralville. This unique facility will not only be a tourist attraction, it will also be a center for education, culture, and research activities and will have positive economical and social effects on the daily lives of Iowans. The project will especially offer great opportunities to students and researchers in the environmental sciences and related disciplines.

Before I joined the community advisory board of the project, I met with David Oman, the director,

Don't blame U.S. for Russian massacre

I feel it necessary to point out that Jay Miller's letter ("Anti-communism efforts evil, too," DI, Sept. 7) is in error regarding the pedigree of Russia's Chechen insurgents. These rebels are not the same as the mujahideen and their successors, Al Qaeda.

Although links between the two have been alleged, they have never been concretely proven. More likely, these charges are an attempt to draw American support for Vladimir Putin's bloody little war in the Caucasus.

Furthermore, even in the context of the Afghan insurgency, not all mujahideen were created equal. Countless factions existed, among which Osama bin Laden's militia was only one. Although many of these militias received aid and weaponry from the Central Intelligence Agency, bin Laden's was not among them. As even left-wing luminary Gore Vidal admits in his book Perpetual War For Perpetual Peace, bin Laden proudly and resolutely refused any funding from "The Great Satan."

Stop complaining about The Ledge

In response to recent letters about the offensiveness of Josh Bald's humor in The Ledge, I'd just like to tell people to lighten up. I happened to enjoy the comment about violence toward Chinese and the comment about Judas.

I can't believe people would get so upset over this. There are more important things to worry about, such as your grades, the upcoming presidential election, and how much beer is left in the keg.

As far as these comments encouraging violence, how many Chinese students were murdered this week after the joke about angry white miners killing Chinese strikebreakers in Wyoming in 1885? A little side comment in a little local newspaper is probably not going to make somebody commit a hate crime.

Let Bald do his job. If you're so offended by his comments, try skipping over The Ledge next time you pick up a paper.

More speeding tickets, not fewer

Apparently Ted Brigham doesn't feel that exceeding the speed limit by 13 mph should be punishable by law (DI, Sept. 8). Most streets in Iowa City, including many major thoroughfares such as Burlington Street, are posted 25 mph. Brigham should be reminded that this is 52 percent over the limit and that speed limits are not arbitrary suggestions in densely populated areas. They take into consideration pedestrians and cyclists who share the roadways and sometimes even cross them.

If Brigham exceeded the speed limit on Interstate 80 by 52 percent, he would be traveling almost 99 mph — which, if caught, might result in him spending the night in a county jail. That Brigham actually believes that the size or horsepower of a vehicle should have something to do with whether a traffic fine is levied adds to the silliness of his argument. If anything, Iowa City police can't write enough speeding tickets for my satisfaction as a driver, cyclist, and pedestrian.

Driving is not a right nor is exceeding posted speed limits. Driving is a privilege extended to citizens by the state, dependent on drivers' willingness to follow traffic laws. Unlike the right of free speech, the state can revoke your driving privileges. Fast traffic that is tolerated by law enforcement is bad for communities — in this city that prides itself on its pedestrian- and bike-friendly nature, fast-moving traffic actively discourages more environmentally friendly transportation by making those modes less safe.

I welcome Brigham to fight all the traffic tickets he can, and I hope the judges levy the appropriate court costs on top of Iowa's ridiculously low fines for violating traffic laws (some of America's most inexpensive traffic fines, by the way). I also hope Iowa City writes more speeding tickets and considers writing tickets for drivers who fail to yield to pedestrians in crosswalks.

Progress, George W. style

A FEW WEEKS BACK, the Republican Party shocked and awed the Democrats with a convention right in their backyard, New York City. John Kerry's preferred choice for VP, Sen. John McCain, gave a rousing defense of our war on terror in Iraq; Arnold Schwarzenegger, the California governor with widespread bipartisan support, explained what it means to be a Republican; Democratic Sen. Zell Miller, asked if defense-and-intelligence-budget-slashing Kerry wants our military to defend us with spitballs.

No wonder Vietnam veteran (oh yeah, and senator) Kerry was bleary-eyed, panicky, and disoriented in a mid-night speech in which he criticized Dick Cheney for applying for a student deferment out of Vietnam (Kerry applied for one also), saying, "And now that the president is finally finished his speech [sic], I have five words for America, 'This is your wake-up call.'"

KEVIN WHITE

For those of you who missed Lt. Kerry's speech, don't worry. You've seen a panicking bleary-eyed man make irrelevant accusations at midnight on a Thursday night — it usually happens at Third Base Bar when the cop pulls out that drunken freshman.

But without a doubt, the most intriguing speech of the convention is one that relatively few people saw. Hollywood actor Ron Silver told the crowd:

"Even though I am a well-recognized liberal on many issues confronting our society today, I find it ironic that many human-rights advocates and outspoken members of my own entertainment community are often on the frontlines to protest repression, for which I applaud them. But they are usually the first ones to oppose any use of force to take care of these horrors that they catalogue repeatedly. Under the unwavering leadership of President Bush, the cause of freedom and democracy is being advanced by the courageous men and women serving in our armed services. The president is doing the right thing."

Strong, but not unfounded words, from a Hollywood liberal.

We, along with the largest coalition assembled in the history of the world, have liberated the terrorist hotbed of Afghanistan. Ten million Afghans have registered to vote in the upcoming October election. Afghans are now able to educate themselves. They will no longer be executed for questioning the government.

Al Qaeda is on the run. These terrorists no longer have a country of safe haven. Rather, they run from cave to cave, evading American and Pakistani forces. Many of the leaders, including 9/11 mastermind Khalid Shaikh Muhammad, have been captured and are being interrogated. On top of this, American and Pakistani forces are closing in on Osama bin Laden.

Much of the same progress is occurring in Iraq. The Iraqis have a government accountable to the people, not vice versa. Universities are educating the people, and a freedom of the press has resulted in the formation of numerous newspapers. No one will deny that there is still work to be done, but our military and the Iraqi people are making tremendous progress. Let's keep in mind that it took a decade to get Germany under control after World War II.

President Bush has pledged billions of dollars to fight AIDS in Africa. Over time, this contribution should help to lower the number of deaths due to the disease on that continent.

The president identified an economic recession that began in the tail end of the Clinton presidency. As such, with the support of both houses of Congress, he enacted tax relief and opened our goods to new foreign markets. Therefore, in spite of the 9/11 attacks, we have had the fastest rate of economic growth since the Reagan presidency. As the impact of the tax cut has set in, the Bush recovery has created 2 million new jobs; more are created each month.

These are stunning accomplishments for only four years as president. How are the Democrats reacting?

Last week, former Sen. John Glenn, D-Ohio, compared the GOP convention to Hitler's Third Reich. And at a rally, Lt. Kerry told the crowd that Bush will "lay off your mules, tax your shovel, kick your ass, and tell you that there is no promised land."

The American people, including Silver, see right through the Democrats' partisan criticism. We want progress here and abroad regardless of our president's political party, and progress is exactly what George W. Bush has given us. ■

Hiroiyuki Sanada, Miki Ito, and Erina Hashiguchi star in The Twilight Samurai. The film won a dozen awards at Japan's version of the Oscars, including best picture.

Unlike most American films these days, The Twilight Samurai finds the simple poetry in silence and understatement. This is a subtle movie that slowly and painstakingly builds toward a great sense of beauty and power that will do nothing short of wiping you out.

As much fun as The Last Samurai (2003) and Kill Bill (2003/04) were, director Yoji Yamada has given us something that maturely transcends the samurai genre and reaches a visual and thematic level comparable with Akira Kurosawa's world-famous works of the 1950s and '60s.

The Twilight Samurai (or Tasogare seibei) took last year's Japanese Oscars by storm. Garnering 12 awards in its 14 nominated categories — including best picture — the movie then went on to be honored with a nomination for best foreign-language film at the American Academy Awards ceremony earlier this year.

Hiroiyuki Sanada plays Seibei Iguchi, the aged, weary samurai to whom the title refers. Left to care for his mother and two young daughters after his wife passes away, he finds himself getting sloppy now that his career is reduced to farming and serving his clan through tedious office work.

Things begin looking up for Iguchi when he is reunited with a girl from his childhood, Tomoe Inuma (Rie Miyazawa), who has now blossomed into a lovely woman. In return for protection from her abusive, alcoholic husband, Inuma pays frequent visits to Iguchi's house and almost serves as a surrogate mother for his children. Iguchi and Inuma wordlessly flirt with the idea of a romance, but an assignment from his clan to kill a fellow samurai causes Iguchi to reassess his life and values.

This last act features some of the most honest and purely authentic details in the film. The scene in which Iguchi sharpens his sword in haunting quietness, for instance, is rich in dramatic subtext. And, after she helps groom and dress him for the final duel, Inuma listens to Iguchi confess his love for her in a moment of aching poignancy.

I also loved the climactic fight sequence between Iguchi and Zenemon Yogo (Min Tanaka), the renegade samurai who has disobeyed the clan. Though only one of two major onscreen battles, the scene is brief, violent, and feels completely real. What's even more intriguing is how much telling dialogue is exchanged between the two men before they clash swords.

The Twilight Samurai is set around 1868, during the time of the Meiji Restoration and the end of feudal Japan. Like Sergio Leone's brilliant Once Upon a Time in the West (1968), the elegiac story is a meditation on myth and the end of an era. Just as Leone's characters were clinging to the dated, romantic ideals associated with the Old West, Yamada's warriors are still bound to the Bushido Code as progress and technology loom their threatening heads on the horizon.

Both films are classic archetypes centering on men out of their time and up in years, which further illustrates the indelible link between the samurai picture and the Western. This may just all be the stuff of legends, but old legends die hard.

Sensuality and whimsy with a bite

BY SARA CONRAD
THE DAILY IOWAN

Blending nature and sex hasn't been a major trend in poetry since the classics — probably because audiences now want something a little edgier, and reading about the birds and the bees just doesn't get us hot anymore.

But poet Michele Glazer, the winner of the Iowa Poetry Prize for her new collection of poetry, Aggregate of Disturbances, has found a way to combine both the natural and sensual in a way that will make the reader feel frisky in that modern-day way, no blushing involved. With such titles as "Conjunction," a poem involving a vacuum cleaner, breathing problems, and trusting, she demonstrates that sensual poetry isn't passé and still has a bite.

She layers her casual, friendly voice with whimsical and sensual undertones, throwing in a curve ball every once in a while to snap the reader out of the flow. Written mostly in free verse, with a dappling of prose poetry, Aggregate of Disturbances is a compilation of uniquely constructed, almost experimentally developed poems, all different in form but tied together by one stationary, cunning voice. And although her poetry is in no way stuffy, she offers a bit of philosophy for the intellectual, with "On So" and a little science with "Matter" and "The Mathematics of Fire." Her poetry is complex and enigmatic in content but simple in form and easily accessible. "Early

The answer to a heart problem isn't always as obvious as it seems. So shouldn't you see the region's leading heart experts right from the start?

Specialists at University of Iowa Hospitals and Clinics are practicing heart care on the leading edge. They're innovators in their field, introducing procedures many hospitals have yet to see.

They're using minimally invasive surgery to repair tiny holes in the heart. They're performing the region's first robotic surgeries to repair mitral valves, helping patients recover sooner. And here, the region's foremost experts in arrhythmia are doing amazing things to help hearts beat normally again.

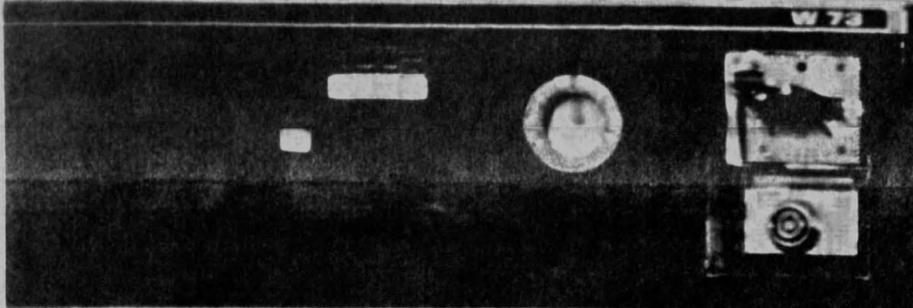

With a cardiac rehab program and chest pain center that are second to none, this is simply the most comprehensive heart care in the state. That's the academic difference.

Federer wins Wimbledon

Federer beats Hewitt easily in third major

NEW YORK (AP) — Roger Federer is at his best, when he is perfect in the U.S. Federer became the world No. 1 in 1998 to win in a year, thoroughbred Lleyton Hewitt (6-0) Sunday. American Grand Slam titles he took at Open and Wimbledon. There hadn't been a match since 1884. "It was a perfect day, but for me, a great day," Federer said. "Tough for Lleyton, but for me, a great day."

While No. 1 Southern California and No. 2 Oklahoma State were holding on to spots with lopsided teams fell out of the Kansas State and the Big 12 and the Atlantic Coast Conference. Oregon from the Pac-10. They were replaced by Fresno State, which was No. 23 Boise State, No. 24 Louisville and Memphis from the SEC. Fresno State's win on Sept. 11 followed Washington six days later. With Kansas State, which lost at Troy, falling out of the race, Oklahoma and No. 10 Oregon were the only Big 12 teams left. Back at the top, Michigan picked up one point (52), Oklahoma State No. 3 Georgia, which rallied from 16 down, Carolina, lost a game and now has three wins. Miami is No. 4 after a time victory over Virginia Tech, which fell four spots. LSU is fifth, Tennessee and West Virginia are tied for sixth. Ohio State and Iowa State are out of the top 10.

WINNER

Federer beats Hewitt easily for third major of year

NEW YORK (AP) — Roger Federer is at his best against the best, when it counts the most, and he was pretty much perfect in the U.S. Open final. Federer became the first man since 1988 to win three majors in a year, thoroughly outclassing Lleyton Hewitt (6-0, 7-6 [3], 6-0) Sunday to add the American Grand Slam title to those he took at the Australian Open and Wimbledon. There hadn't been two shutout sets in the event's championship match since 1884. "It was a perfect start," Federer said. "Tough for Lleyton, obviously, but for me, a great start."

Upsets shake up college football poll

(AP) — The upsets have begun, and the little guys are moving into the Associated Press poll. After ranked teams started the season 21-0, five fell to unranked opponents this weekend, shaking up the media poll released Sunday. While No. 1 Southern California and No. 2 Oklahoma had no problems holding on to the top two spots with lopsided wins, four teams fell out of the rankings: Kansas State and Missouri from the Big 12 and Clemson from the Atlantic Coast Conference and Oregon from the Pac-10. They were replaced by No. 19 Fresno State, which won at Kansas State, No. 23 Boise State from the Western Athletic Conference, and No. 24 Louisville and No. 25 Memphis from Conference USA. Fresno State's win in Manhattan on Sept. 11 followed a victory at Washington six days earlier. With Kansas State and Missouri, which lost at Troy on Thursday, falling out of the rankings, it leaves Oklahoma and No. 6 Texas as the only Big 12 teams in the poll. Back at the top of the poll, USC picked up one first-place vote (52). Oklahoma still has 10 and No. 3 Georgia, which needed to rally from 16 down win at South Carolina, lost a first-place vote and now has three. Miami is No. 4 after an overtime victory over Florida State, which fell four spots to No. 8. LSU is fifth, Texas is sixth, and West Virginia is seventh. Ohio State and California fell out the top 10.

DEFENDING KINNICK

BY JASON BRUMMOND
THE DAILY IOWAN

Iowa's defense stepped up again, and it needed to. The Hawkeyes denied a closing minutes Iowa State drive, and Iowa came away with a 17-10 victory at Kinnick Stadium on Sept. 11. The Cyclones were 25-point underdogs, but three missed field goals and a 29-yard touchdown grab by Ed Hinkel to closeout the half were too much for Iowa State to overcome. "We're not going to accept this," Cyclone coach Dan McCarney said. "We won't accept losing. Our expectations were to come in and win this football game, and that's exactly what we tried to do." Iowa State had the ball with 1:40 left in the game at its own 32-yard line. After a competition and quarterback scramble, a personal foul pushed the Cyclones to Iowa's 41-yard line. Quarterback Bret Meyer had a fourth-and-three from the 34, but he was flushed out of the pocked by defensive end Matt Roth, and linebacker Abdul Hodge stopped him to end the game.

"I feel like our defense stepped up and made some plays," junior cornerback Jovon Johnson said. "We gave up some plays, but we made stops when we needed them. We knew it was gut-check time at the end of the game." Iowa quarterback Drew Tate completed 16-of-22 passes for a career-high 220 yards and a touchdown and interception. He lofted a pass to Hinkel at the end of the half that appeared to be too long, but Hinkel closed in, leaped at the two-yard line, and made a full-extension grab before landing three yards deep in the end zone. "He's a tough, competitive guy," Ferentz said. "For playing as little as he has, he's done a great job. He gives us a chance out there." Senior running back Jermelle Lewis, who played in his first game of 2004 after serving a one-game suspension against Kent State, rushed for 102 yards and a touchdown — highlighted by a 16-yard run on the game's first play and a 34-yard scamper down the sideline late in the fourth

Tenacious D holds late-game ISU surge

BY RYAN LONG
THE DAILY IOWAN

On Sept. 11 against Iowa State, the Hawkeye offense displayed flashes of greatness but still failed to establish consistency. However, the Iowa defense further proved it is the backbone of the team. The defense, which is known for its tenacity, limited Iowa State to 66 yards rushing on 34 carries and allowed only two first-down conversions on third down. The Hawkeyes stood tall during key high-pressure situations. "We held in there, held our ground in the end, and that's all that matters," said linebacker Chad Greenway. "I think we did fairly well. They had their opportunities, and we won the game, obviously, because our defense stopped them in the last half." With 1:09 remaining, trailing 17-10 in the fourth quarter, Iowa State began its final drive of the game from its own 32, desperate for a game-tying touchdown and extra point. After a second and third conversion from the Cyclone 39, the

Ben Roberts/The Daily Iowan

Iowa running back Jermelle Lewis sprints past a Cyclone defender for a big gain on Sept. 11 at Kinnick Stadium. Lewis led the Hawkeyes with 102 rushing yards and 44 receiving yards in the Hawks' 17-10 victory.

Hawkeyes committed a personal foul, moving the football to the Iowa 41. Shortly thereafter, it was near-perfect defense.

Redshirt freshman quarterback Bret Meyer tossed two-straight incomplete passes and finally completed a 7-yard sideline pass to receiver Jon Davis, who stopped the clock by running out of bounds. This brought up fourth-and-three at the Hawkeye 34, where Meyer ran a quarterback draw through an opening that was quickly collapsed by Abdul Hodge and Tyler Luebke. They held Meyer to a one-yard gain and a turnover on downs. "I think every defense wants [the game] to be on its shoulders," said defensive tackle Jonathan Babineaux. "We only had one play left and just give it your all. They only had three yards to make the first down, but we had to just go out there and give it our all so we could stop them and get off the field." Defensive end Matt Roth knew the importance of the defense having to step it up as well. "Our defense was saying the whole time, "We gotta stop 'em, can't rely on the offense to score another 7," and we went out with that two-minute drill, and we executed."

NICK RICHARDS

A new nightmare begins

With a win against Iowa State, new fears emerge as fans wonder: Can the defense carry a weak QB, offense?

All that ran in my mind in the third quarter were flashes of 2002, scenes that have haunted my dreams for two years. Austin Flynn, disguised as Seneca Wallace, leading an Iowa State comeback. An Iowa State unit revitalized by a touchdown. The Hawks running for their lives offensively. It was a scene straight out of my nightmares.

First of all, let's give Iowa State some credit. That team is much better than many people thought it would be. After last year's 40-21 laughter, I thought this edition of Iowa State football was going to be equally as fun to watch. Turns out this team's not going to roll over like last year's unit did. The Cyclones have a defense that is going to keep them in some games. If they get their offense going with Flynn and Bret Meyer, watch out. This team could surprise people.

Let's be honest. Are the Hawkeyes really the No. 12 team in the country? Not with this offense. The Hawkeyes are going to rely on that defense to keep the tag of "overrated" from being applied to this team.

"I'm not sure we made progress today, and that's certainly a little disappointing," head coach Kirk Ferentz said. "We came out of the gate in the first series, and we looked like we were a crisp offense and had some pretty good energy, and that seemed to wane. Then, obviously, in the third quarter, it was a little bit reminiscent of two years ago. If there's one positive, it's that we buckled down in the fourth quarter and did what we had to do to get the win."

Don't get me wrong, there is potential. Drew Tate, despite cramping up for the second-straight week, should be the least of anyone's worries right now. If it weren't for a second-quarter interception that bounced off the hands of Jermelle Lewis, he had an absolutely flawless game. He stood in there, took his lumps, and threw for an impressive 220 yards. The receiving corps, the one Ferentz described as having an unspectacular spring, is coming together. Scott Chandler and Clinton Solomon give Tate big targets with terrific hands who are both going to be game breakers. Ed Hinkel is stepping up as Tate's top target.

Matt Melloy is going to be another big, sure-handed weapon once he returns from injury. It's just that offensive line.

SPORTS DIGEST

Men's cross-country win triangular meet

The Iowa men's cross-country team beat Loyola-Chicago and Wisconsin on the Ashton Cross-Country Course on Sept. 10.

In the triangular meet, Iowa defeated Loyola handily, 39-17, and edged Wisconsin — one of the top programs in the nation — by a single point, 28-27.

Esche led Hawkeyes

Senior Matt Esche led the way for the Hawkeyes, finishing third behind Wisconsin's Ben Gregory and All-American Bobby Lockhart. Iowa defeated the Badgers thanks to Esche's third-place finish along with Hawkeye harriers finishing fourth, fifth, eighth, and ninth.

Women's cross-country dominates in triangular

The Iowa women's cross-country team defeated both Loyola-Chicago and Northwestern in a triangular meet Sept. 10 at the Ashton Cross-Country Course.

The Hawkeyes dominated on their home course, finishing 1-2-3 in the 4,000 meter race. Sophomore Nikki Chapple led the way, finishing 23 seconds ahead of teammates Shannon Stanley and Meghan Armstrong — and Stanley edged Armstrong by only a second.

In team scoring, Iowa topped Loyola, 33-22, and defeated Big Ten opponent Northwestern, 39-18.

The team now has a few weeks to prepare for its next meet, Oct. 2 in Orono, Maine, in the Murray Keating Invitational.

Field-hockey slumps to 1-4 standing

The Iowa field-hockey team lost its home opener Sept. 10th, falling to Stanford, 5-1. The team's record now stands at 1-4.

The Hawkeyes fell behind early in the game, with the Cardinal scoring at the 3:34 mark in the first half. Things got worse by halftime; Stanford scored twice more and led the Hawks, 3-0, at the break.

Stanford scored twice more before Iowa's Sarah Dawson scored her third goal of the season midway through the second half.

Women's golf finishes 13th at Lady Northern

The Iowa women's golf team finished 13th in a 15-team field at the Lady Northern Invitational over the weekend. The Lady Northern serves as a preview for the 2005 Big Ten championships — all the Big Ten schools participated.

Michigan won the tournament by five shots over Missouri on its home course, posting a three-round score of 881. Iowa carded a 54-hole score of 957.

The lone bright spot for the Hawkeyes was Shannon Flemings' third round one-over-par 73 on Sunday — tying a career best. The low score improved her individual standing from 55th to 39th.

Iowa will not compete for two weeks, when it will host the Hawkeye Intercollegiate at Finkbine.

Men's golf places 7th in Wolverine Invitational

A disappointing third round cost the Iowa men's golf team a seventh-place finish in the Wolverine Invitational over the weekend in Ann Arbor, Mich.

In fourth place after the first two rounds of the weekend, the top four Hawkeyes shot a combined 300 on Sunday. Two golfers double-bogeyed the 18th hole, when a pair of pars would have put Iowa in the top five.

"The guys know that we played awful today and shot 300, and for the last couple years, we had to play pretty good to shoot 300," Iowa coach Terry Anderson said. "The bar has been raised — they're out there knowing that to win you have to shoot par or better."

The 300 on Sunday was 10 shots worse than the Hawks did in round two and seven shots worse than round one.

V-ball team named champion of Cardinal Classic

The women's volleyball team was crowned champion of the Cardinal Classic this past weekend in Beaumont, Texas.

Iowa defeated Lamar, 3-0, in the title game on Sept. 11 and also earned an impressive share of accolades. Outside hitter Tiana Costanza and middle blocker Carolyn Giese were both named to the all-tournament team. Costanza was also named the MVP of the tournament.

The Hawkeyes also defeated Georgia State, 3-2, and Weber State, 3-1, on Sept. 10 and Grambling State, 3-0, on Sept. 11. Iowa's record sits at 6-1; at this time last season, the squad was 3-4.

Women's soccer team stays positive

BRYAN BAMONTE THE DAILY IOWAN

The Iowa women's soccer team had another tough weekend, but coach Carla Baker and her squad were able to earn their first point of the young 2004 season.

Following a disappointing 1-0 loss to Drake on Sept. 10, the Hawkeyes returned to Iowa City for their home opener Sunday against University of Wisconsin-Green Bay.

And just when it seemed that Iowa would grab the first win of its season, Wisconsin-Green Bay added to the Hawkeyes suffering by knotting the game in the 86th minute.

"It would have been nice to get out of here with a win," Baker said. "But at least we earned a point and can go forward from here."

The first half seemed like much of the same for the Hawkeyes, whose inefficient offensive attack has left them vulnerable for heartbreaking setbacks. The Hawks were unable to manage a shot on goal in a scoreless first half Sunday.

However, the adjustments Baker spoke of earlier in the week seemed to pay off, and the team had some of its best offensive series in the second half. And for a team that has struggled to find the net, getting the game's first goal was huge.

Junior forward Avery Bang recorded the first goal of her career in the 65th minute of the second half when teammate Lindsey Phillips toyed with the defense before setting up Bang, who blasted a shot over Wisconsin-Green Bay goaltender Brooke Wikgren.

"It's definitely a good step in the right direction for me and the team," Bang said.

A point is nice, but nice didn't wipe the frustration from Baker's face.

"It is unfortunate because we dominated the entire game, but to come out with a point is better than the alternative," Baker said. The alternative in this case would have been an 0-4 record heading into Big Ten play. The tie might not sit well with everyone, but getting on track is important for the team.

"Coach mentioned to us after the game that this wasn't a loss," Avery Bang said. "We just have to look forward, and for us the Big Ten is where it's at, and hopefully, we now have some momentum going into next weekend."

One reason the Hawks were able to walk away with a point was their physical play and offensive pressure. Wisconsin-Green Bay made a point of getting physical, and the young Hawkeyes were not impressed.

"If you consider the youthfulness of our team, that can translate to those frustrating scenarios," Baker said. "But at the same time, we didn't lie down or let them walk all over us."

The game was something to build on for the team, which was undermanned with senior leader Kitty Montgomery and Katelyn Quinn, the team's leading goal-scorer a season ago, both sidelined by injuries.

NFL ROUNDUP

Lions end road streak, beat Bears

Lions 20, Bears 16

CHICAGO (AP) — Finally, a road win for the Detroit Lions.

Detroit ended its NFL-record 24-game streak of futility away from home Sunday, rallying to beat the mistake-prone Chicago Bears, 20-16, in Lovie Smith's debut as head coach.

Bracy Walker, who earlier returned a blocked field goal 92 yards for a third-quarter TD, intercepted a third-down pass in the end zone by Rex Grossman with 18 seconds to go, preserving the win.

Joey Harrington tossed a 4-yard go-ahead pass to Az-Zahir Hakim in the fourth quarter, and Detroit held on for its first road victory since beating the Jets on Dec. 17, 2000.

Eddie Drummond's 41-yard kick-off return and Harrington's 30-yard pass to Corey Schlesinger set up the touchdown pass to Hakim with 9:54 to go, putting Detroit ahead, 20-14.

Jeff Roberson/Associated Press

Redskins 16, Buccaneers 10

LANDOVER, Md. (AP) — Clinton Portis ran for 149 yards and a touchdown, and Washington welcomed coach Joe Gibbs back to the NFL with a victory.

Portis went 64 yards for a touchdown on Washington's first series. But Washington's offense began to sputter, and it took John Hall's 30-yard field goal with 8:55 left to break a 10-10 tie. Hall added a 34-yard field goal with 16 seconds to play.

Vikings 35, Cowboys 17

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Daunte Culpepper threw a career-high five touchdown passes, two to Randy Moss, to lead Minnesota.

Against a depleted Dallas defense, Culpepper was both sensational and efficient, going 17-for-23 for 242 yards with no turnovers.

Forty-year-old Vinny Testaverde was 29-for-50 for 355 yards, one touchdown, and no interceptions for the Cowboys. His favorite target, Keyshawn Johnson, caught nine balls for 111 yards in his first game with Dallas.

Eagles 31, Giants 17

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Terrell Owens had three touchdown catches, Donovan McNabb threw for 330 yards and tied a career high with four TD passes, and Brian Westbrook ran for 119 yards for Philadelphia.

Two-time NFL MVP Kurt Warner had a lackluster debut for the Giants, who lost their ninth-straight game and first under new coach Tom Coughlin. Heralded rookie Eli Manning made his NFL debut in the final minutes, handing off to Tiki Barber for a 72-yard TD run on his first play.

Falcons 21, 49ers 19

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Aaron Beasley returned a goal-line interception 85 yards in the fourth quarter, and Rod Coleman batted down Tim Rattay's pass on a 2-point conversion attempt with 40 seconds left to secure a win for Atlanta.

Warrick Dunn rushed for two touchdowns, and Michael Vick was 13-of-22 for 163 yards in an uninspiring debut under coach Jim Mora, the longtime San Francisco defensive coordinator who took over the Falcons last January.

Steelers 24, Raiders 21

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Jerome Bettis ran for three touchdowns, Duce Staley had 91 yards, and Jeff Reed's 42-yard field goal with seven seconds remaining won it for Pittsburgh.

The Steelers, led 14-0 and 21-10, but the Raiders tied it on Alvis Whitted's fingertip catch of Rich Gannon's 38-yard touchdown pass and Gannon's 2-point conversion pass to an uncovered Whitted with 4:51 remaining.

Browns 20, Ravens 3

CLEVELAND (AP) — For the first time since their NFL rebirth in 1999, the Cleveland Browns opened the season as winners.

Jeff Garcia threw a 46-yard touchdown pass and ran for another TD in his Cleveland debut.

Cleveland stole the spotlight from Deion Sanders, who came out of retirement for a chance to win another Super Bowl ring, and NFL rushing leader Jamal Lewis.

Jets 31, Bengals 24

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — Curtis Martin ran for 196 yards and a touchdown, and added another score on a 3-yard TD reception to help New York ruin the regular-season debut of Carson Palmer.

Palmer, the No. 1 overall pick in 2003, commanded the offense well and made very few mistakes, going 18-of-27 for 248 yards with two touchdowns and an interception.

But Palmer could not do anything about Martin. The 31-year-old finished with 29 carries for the third-highest total of his NFL career.

Seahawks 21, Saints 7

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Shaun Alexander scored three touchdowns to get the Seahawks off to a good start on the road.

Playing behind one of the best offensive lines in the NFL, Alexander rushed for 135 yards on 28 carries. He ran for two touchdowns and caught another.

Matt Hasselbeck enjoyed playing behind that line as well, completing 19 of 29 passes for 246 yards and a touchdown. Darrell Jackson had seven receptions for 98 yards.

Rams 17, Cardinals 10

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Marshall Faulk ran for 128 yards on 22 carries while sharing time with first-round pick Steven Jackson in the Rams' victory.

The Rams beat the Cardinals for the fifth-straight time and sent Arizona to its 14th-straight road loss. Emmitt Smith, the NFL's career leading rusher, had a resurgent game with 87 yards on 16 carries, including an 11-yard touchdown run that put the Cardinals ahead, 10-9, in the final minute of the third quarter.

Chargers 27, Texans 20

HOUSTON (AP) — LaDainian Tomlinson ran for 121 yards and a touchdown, and the Chargers used a mistake-free passing game and an opportunistic defense to beat Houston.

Drew Brees, who might not have started if prized rookie Philip Rivers hadn't held out for most of training camp, was 17-of-24 for 209 yards and two touchdowns. He hit Eric Parker with a 19-yard TD pass in the fourth quarter that provided the winning points.

INDY RACING

Fernandez holds off Herta to win Delphi Indy 300

JOLIET, Ill. (AP) — When Adrian Fernandez has the lead late in a race, no one's taking it away from him.

Fernandez refused to give Bryan Herta any room as they raced to the finish line of the Delphi Indy 300 on Sunday afternoon, crossing the finish line 0.0716 seconds ahead to get his second win of the season.

Fernandez's first win, at Kentucky, came under similar circumstances, as he held off late challenges from Buddy Rice, Dan Wheldon and Kosuke Matsuura.

UNITED IN SPIRIT

Minutes before kickoff at Kinnick Stadium on the third anniversary of the 9/11 terrorist attacks, New Jersey firefighters hold an American flag that was pulled from the rubble of Ground Zero. The pregame ceremony included a 10-second moment of silence and an appearance by three New York firefighters who were at the World Trade Center site three years ago.

Iowa defeats Iowa State for first time in 8 years at Kinnick

Hawkeye junior Abdul Hodge loses his helmet while tackling Cyclone quarterback Austin Flynn during the fourth quarter of the Hawkeyes' 17-10 victory over Iowa State. The Sept. 11 win marked the first time Iowa has defeated the Cyclones at Kinnick in eight years.

quarter on his last run.

The 5-11, 215-pound back also caught two passes for 44 yards, and he had his first 100-yard game since Nov. 16, 2002.

"I thought he gave us some energy," Ferentz said. "We're real short on veteran guys who have played in big games. To get him back is going to be a lot of help for us, and now we need to get him a little bit more help."

Lewis carried 30 times on the afternoon, which can partially be attributed to the early departure of Albert Young. The redshirt freshman running back, who was the Hawkeyes' leading rusher last week, carried four times for just five yards and a 1-yard touchdown before leaving early in the second quarter with a knee injury.

Ferentz said further detail on the extent of Young's injury will be known after today's tests, but he said it did not look promising.

The Hawkeye offensive line struggled for the second-consecutive week, allowing four sacks and six tackles for loss. Iowa had only four runs go for more than 10 yards.

Ferentz said he wasn't able to tell from the sideline whether the line made progress from the game against Kent State, but he said he didn't "feel great about it right this second."

"I just think right now we don't have the cohesiveness, the tempo as a group," he said. "All we need to do is just work at getting a little better and realize that it's not going to be dramatic or radical in the next two weeks."

Iowa State kicker Brian Jansen missed field goals from 30, 46, and 31 yards — ultimately putting the Cyclones out of the game and drastically changing the momentum. Jansen said "everybody else did their job" with snaps and holds, but he just didn't come through.

"When you're grinding and driving and fighting and scratching and digging to get yardage and first downs, you've got to come away with points," McCarney said. "I was real disappointed we weren't able to do that."

The Cyclones were without punter and place-kicker Tony Yelk, who also missed the game against Northern Iowa with a pulled muscle. Jansen said he prepared to start the game, adding he can only use it as a learning experience.

"We don't have any choice," McCarney said. "I can't kick."

The Hawkeyes will need to make more progress on the offensive line and establish consistency with the offensive attack for Saturday's game against Arizona State, which beat Northwestern, 30-21, last weekend. But as in previous seasons, the offense did just enough to secure the win.

"This is a big win for us," Hinkel said. "We struggled a little bit offensively, but we made plays when we needed to."

Iowa has a scary road ahead of it

Sure, some of it falls on the Iowa State defensive line. That's a good unit, maybe just a notch or two below the Iowa front four. The Cyclones' defense front simply dominated the Iowa line. Tyson Smith was throwing people around (namely Pete McMahon) like rag dolls. Nick Leaders was all over the Iowa backfield, and he blocked a field goal. Can you imagine how good that unit would be if Jason Berryman wasn't still sitting in a Story County jail?

The Hawks' offensive line is young, and the members have only been together for a few weeks, so chemistry is understandably an issue. They can, and will, get better as the year goes on, much like last year's unit did. It doesn't help that David Walker and Brian Ferentz, two key pieces to the puzzle, are still out of action. The Hawkeyes, as a team, averaged just 1.9 yards per carry. If this unit was dominated by the likes of Iowa State, I don't even want to know what things are going to be like against teams like Michigan and Ohio State. Scary thought, isn't it?

Lewis did rush for 102 yards, but it took 30 carries to do it, and 34 came on a key run around the left end in the waning moments of the fourth quarter. He averaged 3.4 yards per carry, but if you take away that 34-yard romp, his average drops to a paltry 2.3. He had very few holes to run through, and when he did, they closed fast. Those numbers just aren't going to get it done. That is not going to work against Arizona State or Michigan.

This team has to improve by more than just leaps and bounds. We're talking long jumps here. This team will be 2-2 when they return to Iowa City for their Oct. 2 date with Michigan State if they play like they have been, a disheartening thought for a group of guys who have much more potential than they showed Sept. 11.

At least those terrifying replays from 2002 stopped running in my head.

IN MEMORY

Female baseball pioneer Gacioch dies

CLINTON TOWNSHIP, Mich. (AP) — Rosie Gacioch, whose baseball experiences during the World War II era helped inspire the 1992 movie A League of Their Own, died at 89.

Gacioch
female baseball icon

She died on Sept. 9 at Clinton-Aire Healthcare Center in suburban Detroit, the facility said Sunday.

Gacioch joined the All-American Girls Baseball League in 1944 and played for the Rockford Peaches from 1945-54.

She led the league in triples in 1946 as an outfielder and became a pitcher in 1948, winning 20 games in 1951.

Gacioch worked as a press operator for 20 years in Rockford, Ill., until her retirement in 1978, when she moved to Michigan.

A funeral service was scheduled for today in Utica, William & Son Funeral Homes said.

Ferentz: Strengths of team clear

TENACIOUS D

Roth said he believed that the game would come down to a defensive stop.

"We know it's going to be a dogfight in there, and we knew that we'd have to rely on our defense if it came down to it," he said. "That it was pretty likely that we would have to make a stop there."

Hawkeye coach Kirk Ferentz was quick to point out that his defensive squad played a big role in helping Iowa earn the victory.

"It really was. I think it's pretty clear to see right now that's where our strengths are. Defensively, we're playing pretty well," he said.

THINGS THAT OFFEND ME

— by Josh Bald

- Popsicle sticks without jokes on them.
- The shameless corruption that marred the presidency of Ulysses S. Grant.

• People who honk at me when I'm trying to take a nap at a green light.

• Anyone who doesn't recognize Super Troopers as the greatest cinematic achievement of our time.

• Pro-lifers who fumigate their homes and pull weeds in the garden.

• The way the Cubs toy with you, making you think they'll win and getting your hopes up, then blowing it at the last possible moment, making you break stuff in a blind rage.

• No one slaps you with a glove when they want to fight anymore. Show some etiquette, people.

• People who give me secondary smoke but get pissy when I give it back to them as third-hand smoke ... I get beat up a lot.

• No one will sign my petition to bring back Crystal Pepsi.

quote of the day

“He's going to announce tomorrow that if Iowa goes for Kerry, Al Qaeda will hit Ottumwa with a nuke.”

— Al Franken, speaking in Ottumwa about Vice President Dick Cheney.

horoscopes

Monday, September 13, 2004
— by Eugenia Last

- ARIES (March 21-April 19): Plan to work on the intricate projects you have begun. Keep yourself available to receive phone calls — something interesting could develop.
- TAURUS (April 20-May 20): This is the perfect day for perfection, so spend a little time and money on you. You will be on top of the world, and everyone will be happy to help you.
- GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Don't worry about the little things that people say. Know in your heart that you are doing your best. Problems with your home or someone you live with are likely, but stay calm.
- CANCER (June 21-July 22): Open up to friends. Let them know your story, and you will find solutions. Love is in a high cycle, so don't be shy.
- LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): You can make some changes regarding how you earn your living or how much you make. Prosperity is apparent if you are swift to invest in yourself and your future.
- VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Don't let the little things get you down. You can accomplish a lot at a personal level if you open up and let your true feelings be known.
- LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Secure your financial position. This is the perfect time to deal with legal or health issues. Keep everything out in the open so that you aren't accused of withholding information.
- SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): You can place yourself in a high-power position among your peers if you take charge today. Make decisions with confidence, and everyone will be willing to back your choices.
- SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You will be inclined to take on too much or lead people to believe that you can handle more than you can. Don't embellish, or you will end up losing the respect of the very people whom you are trying to impress.
- CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): It's time for you to mix business with pleasure. The more versatile you are, the better equipped you will be to handle greater responsibilities.
- AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): A move or change to your living arrangements is apparent. Opportunities for financial gains through investments and games of chance are looking positive.
- PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): You will be receptive to new experiences resulting in doors opening, romance flourishing, and new friendships developing. Your sensitivity and compassion will draw special people to your side.
