Vandals hit labs; Spence, Seashore closed | UI lags behind Big

Lab animals roamed free Sunday, and bazardous substances were dumped

BY JESSICA SEVESKA THE DAILY IOWAN

Rats, mice, and pigeons scampered and swooped through the halls of Spence Laboratories on Sunday after the psychology department's animal labs were ransacked, forcing the university to close the building today to make way for cleanup efforts. A criminal investigation that includes the FBI was continuing Sunday.

More than 30 computers and three offices were also damaged, and hazardous chemicals were deliberately spilled, said Steve Parrott, the director of University Relations. Students and researchers found the damage when they arrived at Spence Laboratories on Sunday morning; they contacted UI police around 8:40 a.m., he said.

The Iowa City firefighters and police were called to the scene, as well as the Johnson County

Hazardous Materials Team. Police did not specify the type of chemicals spilled, but two firefighters were seen outside the facility, washing down with a fire hose — a decontamination

Breaking out of box to build

THE DAILY IOWAN

Brandishing hammers and wearing hardhats, 60 women volunteering for Iowa Valley Habitat for Humanity pounded away during mission "blitz build" — framing and weathering a home in two days - in an effort to construct a home for an Iowa City family.

The "Women Build" program of Habitat for Humanity - an international organization designed to provide housing for low-income families - is building a home for a local single mother of five children, Niemat Siddig. Approximately 60 volunteers gathered on Nov. 12-13 at 1027 Diana St., the site of Siddig's future house, to begin construction.

"Women Build" is centered on the concept that women will be responsible for soliciting the funding for the home, the home, and taking care of all the other vital details for the project, said Jan Taylor, a co-chairwoman of site coordination for Iowa Valley Habitat for Humanity.

In the typically male-dominated field of construction, Women Build is sending a message that "women certainly can do this work," said Jane Hagedorn,

Militants fire upon Gaza tent; Abbas unharmed

Palestinians set date for vote on Arafat's successor

BY IBRAHIM BARZAK ASSOCIATED PRESS

GAZA CITY, Gaza Strip -Mahmoud Abbas, the temporary successor to Yasser Arafat, escaped unharmed Sunday when militants firing assault rifles burst into a mourning tent for the deceased Palestinian leader, killing two security guards and wounding six other people.

The shooting raised grave concerns about a violent power struggle in the post-Arafat era. Some of the gunmen shouted slogans calling Abbas, a moderate who has spoken out against violence, an agent of the United States.

The bursts of gunfire came just hours after Palestinian officials set Jan. 9 as the date for elections to choose a new leader — the first vote in nine years.

The temporary Palestinian leadership, headed by Abbas, has been trying to send a message of unity since Arafat's death Nov. 11. Arafat's responsibilities were divided among several leaders, and officials held talks with rival factions in Arafat's Fatah movement and the militant opposition groups Hamas and Islamic Jihad.

However, those rivalries burst into the open minutes after Abbas, the new PLO chief, entered the Gaza City mourning tent, where some 10,000 people - including about 3,000 armed men, most of them police officers - gathered Sunday evening. Abbas, accompanied by Gaza strongman Mohammed Dahlan and surrounded by security guards, shook hands with mourners.

Moments later, a group of at least 20 gunmen barged into the tent shouting, "Abbas and Dahlan are agents for the Americans!"

Ten in grad rates

BY KATE MCCARTER

Students are lingering at the UI longer than their peers at most Big Ten schools, stretching their undergraduate stints to compensate for delays caused by transfers, changing or adding majors, and lopsided schedules, administrators and students said in interviews Sunday.

Their statements were backed by a recent National Center for Education Statistics study that ranked the UI's six-year graduation rate ninth among Big Ten schools.

"We would like to see our graduation rates improve," said Provost Michael Hogan. "Our six-year rate is up, but not where we want it to be."

A school's admissions standards are the greatest factor in determining graduation rates, he said, and they play an important role in the study.

We are comparing ourselves schools with more demanding admissions standards," he said. "Because they have more selectivity, they can take in students who may be more prepared."

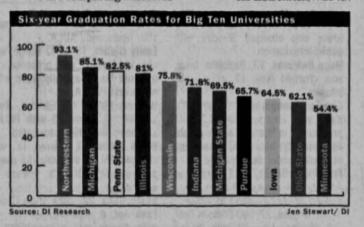

Northwestern University topped the list, graduating 93.1 percent of its students in fewer than six years. Of the 14,137 students who applied in 2003, the university enrolled only 1,941.

The state Board of Regents' policy requires the UI to admit Iowa high-school students who graduate in the upper half of Lola Lopes, the associate provost for undergraduate education, agreed that the broader admission standards put the UI lower on the Big Ten list.

"When you compare our rates with other schools with similar standards, it shows that we are doing a very good job," she said.

Engineering students band together to try to help environment

BY TRACI FINCH

Trips to Mexico, a campuswide career fair, and a Green campus initiative involving the "Turn off the Lights" campaign are all activities some UI engineering students have added to their résumés in the past two years. Engineers for a Sustainable World, a group made up of mostly UI engineering students that promotes sustainability locally and internationally, has only been officially active for a little over a year and a half. It consists of 25 regular members.

However, the students, described as "very dedicated," have already received national recognition for their efforts.

After hearing about students' international service work of what was then known as Engineers for a Sustainable Future, the national organization Engineers Without Frontiers changed its name to Engineers for a Sustainable World.

"Once they met us, they liked the sustainable concept, so they took our name," said Marcelo Mena, one of the founders of what then became the UI version of the group.

UIHC to step up food-allergy fight

Approximately one in 25 Americans suffer from at least one food allergy

BY HEATHER LOEB THE DAILY IOWAN

Because food allergies have more than doubled in the past five years, the UI Hospitals and Clinics will open a cutting-edge food-allergy clinic in early 2005 to better serve those who suffer from the affliction.

There is a need here to be able to provide better diagnostic and treatment services to foodallergic folks in our community," said Mary Beth Fasano, a UI associate professor of internal medicine.

The clinic will implement double-blind, placebo-control oral-food challenges, which Fasano called the "gold standard of diagnosis."

The hospital uses a blood test to determine whether patients have allergies, but the doubleblind challenge goes even further to conclude exactly what the patient is allergic to.

"Approximately 50 percent of people need more information [about their allergies] and go to the challenge model," Fasano

REDWOOD CITY, Calif. - The jury that convicted Scott Peterson saw a man with two faces: in public, a loving father-to-be with a steady job and stable home and in private, a cheating husband who yearned for bachelorhood and was willing to kill for it.

Convicted on Nov. 12 of murdering his pregnant wife and her fetus, Peterson must now present a unified image on two fronts - he must convince jurors that his life is worth sparing while arguing to the courts that he was wrongly convicted.

Some experts said he might have a chance to win an appeal, given the dismissal of two jurors during deliberations. After his sentencing, defense investigators are likely to interview panelists, looking for any signs of misconduct.

"These jurors are about to go under the microscope," said Loyola Law School professor Laurie Levenson.

Peterson faces life in prison or the death penalty for the first-degree murder of his wife, Laci Paterson, and seconddegree murder of the fetus.

While the first part of the trial focused on evidence, the penalty phase, beginning Nov. 22, will be laced with raw emotion as rules of evidence that prohibit inflaming jurors are cast aside.

Blockbuster testimony is expected from Laci Peterson's mother, Sharon Rocha, who will testify about losing a 27-yearold daughter and the grandson she was waiting for.

"She's going to get up there, and she's going to break down. Her voice is going to crack," said Daniel Horowitz, a criminaldefense attorney and regular trial observer.

Scott Peterson is unlikely to take the stand and beg for mercy - doing that would require him to admit to the murders and throw away any chance of arguing his innocence. Instead, testimony will likely include pleas from his parents to spare his life.

Jury consultant Ed Bronson said Scott Peterson's defense attorney, Mark Geragos, will try to tap any lingering doubt over whether Scott Peterson was a calculated killer. The defense is expected to remind jurors that the 32-year-old former fertilizer salesman has no criminal record or history of violence.

But even if jurors unanimously vote for death, Peterson might not be executed for decades, if ever. Only 10 executions have been carried out since California brought back capital punishment in 1978. On appeal, Peterson's attorneys will likely focus on two key issues during the jury's deliberations, said former San Francisco prosecutor and trial observer Jim Hammer.

"The biggest issue is juror removals," Hammer said. "Kicking someone off the jury is one of the riskiest things you can do in

Grassley, Leahy push to protect whistleblowers

Senators ask SEC for tough enforcement of new corporate whistle-blower law

BY MICHAEL J. SNIFFEN ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — Two senators who wrote a tough but little-understood law to protect corporate whistleblowers are pressing the Securities and Exchange Commission for aggressive enforcement just as a case emerges that could determine how companies are policed.

Spurred by scandals at Enron, WorldCom, and other large corporations, Congress passed the Sarbanes-Oxley Act in 2002. The law required chief executives to swear that their company's books are accurate. But it also gave corporate whistleblowers more protection than any previous federal law has extended to insiders who report wrongdoing.

Sens. Charles Grassley, R-Iowa,

Leahy, D-Vt., who wrote the whistle-blower section, said they wanted to change a corporate culture that "valued profit over honesty."

In addition to making it easier and safer to report corporate misdeeds, the requires corporate lawyers to report any misconduct they · exposes executives and companies that punish whistleblowers to civil lawsuits under the Racketeer Influenced and Corrupt Organizations Act.

· provides the first criminal penalties — up to 20 years in prison and $5 million in fines for firing a whistle-blower in retaliation.

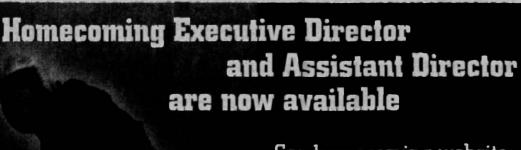

"Congress noticed there was a whistleblower in most major scandals, such as Sherron Watkins at Enron and Cynthia Cooper at WorldCom," said Stephen M. Kohn, a director of the National Whistleblower Center.

Kohn said Congress' plan to use conscience-stricken company insiders as important players in reforming corporate culture can succeed "only if the

SEC does its job."
The SEC has been silent about the whistleblower provisions. Last week, Grassley and Leahy wrote SEC Chairman William Donaldson for details of the agency's enforcement plans.

The senators were prompted by a Labor Department finding on Oct. 7 — the first under the law — that a publicly traded company retaliated against a whistle-blower.

Asking for "aggressive enforcement," Grassley and Leahy noted that the law says any violation of its provisions "shall be treated for all purposes ... as a violation of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934," which the SEC is charged with investigating.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. — As Bill Clinton's library is unveiled at a gala opening this week, one thing is certain: His messy legacy will be on full display.

One alcove will be dedicated to impeachment, and organizers have promised not to sidestep even Monica Lewinsky or Paula Jones. The 58-year-old political superstar is expected to draw hundreds of thousands of visitors a year to his library.

"Bill Clinton is a rock star," said Skip Rutherford, the head of Clinton's nonprofit foundation that built the $165 million library. "He is Elvis."

The William J. Clinton Presidential Center, a metaphorical "bridge to the 21st century" cantilevered out over the bank of the Arkansas River, will open Thursday as the highlight of a week of programs, exhibits, and

The week will include an Aretha Franklin concert, a science discussion by astronaut and former Democratic Sen. John Glenn, dedication of new sculptures on the riverfront and at the airport, and a reception to which Whoopi Goldberg, Cicely Tyson, and Quincy Jones have been invited.

At Thursday morning's grand opening, speakers will include Clinton, his wife, Sen. Hillary Rodham Clinton, D-N.Y., President Bush, former President George H.W. Bush, and former President Carter. Some 30,000 guests have been invited to gather on the library lawn, and U2's Bono and the Edge will perform.

Visitors to the 150,000square-foot glass and steel center, designed by architect James Polshek, will get to see how Clinton, his closest advisers, and exhibit designer Ralph Appelbaum tell Clinton's story.

Clinton has promised to give scholars early access to previously private policy advice and other documents he isn't required to release until 2006. He already has written about the Lewinsky and Jones sex scandals, impeachment, and his political missteps in his memoir, My Life.

Rodham Clinton has said controversial subjects shouldn't be kept out of the library

A poster showing former President Bill Clinton is displayed near a neon sign at the Clinton Museum Store in downtown Little Rock, Ark., on Nov. 11. Clinton's drawing power as a celebrity will be on full display this week, when the current and former U.S. presidents, foreign leaders, and celebrities are expected to be among 30,000 invited guests gathered for the dedication ceremonies of his presidential library.

because "this is part of history." On Nov. 12, she said the library would be "a comprehensive accurate story of the eight years of the Clinton administration.'

Because Clinton is still so topical, Rutherford believes the nation's 12th presidential library will establish a new model for presidential libraries. Officials hope the center will draw more than 300,000 visitors a year to Little Rock and help drive the area's economy

Other presidential libraries have struggled to draw admission-paying visitors. Rutherford said that's because they are either in sentimental locations too far off the beaten path or are lost in larger metropolises. Downtown Little Rock is a happy medium, he said.

The library has already had an economic impact. Since the site was chosen in 1997, the depressed surrounding warehouse district has been reinvigorated, and downtown Little Rock is suddenly the place to be, with shiny new condos, hip renovated lofts, and swanky restaurants.

The library has directly or indirectly inspired $800 million in new downtown development, 2,000 new or refurbished hotel rooms, cultural events in the nearby River Market District, a streetcar line that opened Nov. 1, and the selection of Alltel Arena as an opening-round venue for the 2008 NCAA basketball tournament. There are plans for a new minorleague ballpark, talk of a $100 million arts and entertainment district, and efforts to start a nonprofit corridor.

Cheney has nothing more than a cold

WASHINGTON (AP) - Vice President Dick Cheney, back home after a brief hospital visit, has nothing more than a bad cold, and his heart is fine, his wife and an adviser said on Sunday.

Cheney, who has had four heart attacks, had three hours of tests Saturday after experiencing shortness of breath. They showed no problems with his heart - "none whatsoever," said Mary Matalin, a former top White House aide to the 63-year-old vice president.

Cheney's most recent heart attack was in November 2000, just before he assumed the vice presidency. He had a pacemaker implanted in his chest in June 2001.

CERVICAL DYSPLASIA STUDY

Healthy, non-pregnant females age 18 to menopause with a diagnosis of LSIL or ASC-US are invited to participate in a 2-3 month study. In this study we will be evaluating the safety of an intravaginal experimental gel in women with mild dysplasia. This study would require that participants come to the clinic a minimum of 8-10 times including some hospital stays. Participants must be currently using either Depo-Provera or an oral contraceptive pill. All study-related exams and hospital expenses will be provided. · Compensation provided.

Death-row population dwindling

BY LAURA MECKLER ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON - The number of people sentenced to death reached a 30-year low in 2003, when the death row population fell for the third year in a row, the government reported

Last year, 144 inmates in 25 states were given the death penalty, 24 fewer than in 2002 and less than half the average of 297 between 1994 and 2000, according to the Justice Department.

Death penalty opponents say the report shows how wary the public is of executions, heightened by concerns about whether the punishment is administered fairly and publicity about those wrongly convicted. Illinois emptied its death row in 2003 after several inmates were found to be

What we're seeing is hesitation on the death penalty, skepticism, reluctance," said Richard Dieter, the executive director of the Death Penalty Information Center. "I do think there is some concern about the death penalty, and it's reflected in death sentences from juries."

Opponents also point to other possible reasons, including continuing fallout from Supreme Court decisions requiring that juries be told that life in prison without parole is an alternative to Dieter said 47 states now offer a life-without-parole sentence as an option for at least some convictions, compared with 30 in 1993.

Supporters doubt whether the decline signifies a major shift in public opinion about the death penalty, which is in effect in 38 states and the federal justice system.

"I don't think the numbers mean a lot quite frankly," said Dianne Clements, president of the victims-advocacy group

At the end of last year, 3,374 prisoners awaited execution. 188 fewer than in 2002, according to the Bureau of Justice Statistics. Illinois accounted for 91 percent of the decline, the result of then-Gov. George Ryan's decision to commute the death sentences of 167 inmates to life in prison and to pardon four others.

Nationally, 267 people were removed from death row last year. That was the largest drop since 1976, when the Supreme Court reinstated the death penalty, according to the report by the Bureau of Justice

Both sides dig in on gay marriage

ASSOCIATED PRESS

BOSTON — The fight for gay marriage appeared to be gaining ground a year ago. Although dozens of states had passed laws defining marriage as a heterosexual institution, advocates took heart in state-sanctioned civil unions in Vermont, expanded domestic partnership benefits in California, and a Supreme Court decision striking down the Texas

Then, in a ruling hailed by supporters as the start of a new era, the highest court in Massachusetts made the state the first to sanction same-sex marriages.

As supporters celebrate the first anniversary of that ruling Wednesday, both sides are digging in for tougher, longer battles.

Opponents of gay marriage are bolstered by this year's elections, when 11 states pushed through constitutional amendments banning gay marriage, joining six others that had done so earlier. And President Bush has promised to make a federal anti-gay-marriage amendment a priority of his second term.

"I think what we're seeing now is a visible manifestation of the momentum that has been building and will continue to build, said Mat Staver, president of the Liberty Counsel, a conservative, Orlando, Fla.-based law group, which is involved in 30 cases around the nation.

But advocates aren't giving in. "Backlash simply means that you're making forward progress," said Josh Friedes, spokesman for

in Boston. The Goodridges were the lead plaintiffs in the Massachusetts gay-marriage lawsuit. the Massachusetts Freedom to Marry Coalition. "I think that people who say it suddenly seems like the radical right has momentum on their side, they're not looking at the broad brushstroke of history."

In April 2001, seven gay and lesbian couples who were denied marriage licenses in Massachusetts filed suit challenging the state's gay marriage ban. Two and a half years later, a deeply divided Massachusetts Supreme Judicial Court found there was "no rational reason" for such a ban under the state's constitution and ordered the state to start allowing gays to marry six months later.

In reaction, officials issued marriage licenses to gay couples in San Francisco and New York state, conservative and religious groups spent millions of dollars to support constitutional bans, and politicians called for removal of "activist judges."

College presidents' earnings are increasing

Top pay for college presidents up again even as tuition rises

BY JUSTIN POPE

Tuition is rising sharply, and many schools are still fighting through budget cuts. But the salaries of the highest-paid college presidents are also increasing, according to a survey out Monday.

The number of university presidents earning more than half a million dollars jumped again this year — though overall they remain a small minority.

Seventeen presidents of public universities and systems will earn more than $500,000 this year, up from 12 last year and six the year before, according to The Chronicle of Higher Education's compensation survey. Tuition at four-year public colleges rose 10.5 percent this year.

At private colleges and universities, the number of presidents earning more than $500,000 rose from 27 to 42 in fiscal 2003, the last year for which data are available for the private institutions.

Johns Hopkins University President William Brody's total compensation of $897,786 topped all college presidents. The University of Washington's Mark Emmert is the top earner among public presidents, with a package that will total $762,000 in pay and benefits.

Several education experts said the figures aren't necess ily a sign of excess, given the competition for strong leaders, who are at least as valuable in tough times as in flush ones.

"Certainly in the private sector, you'd be paying four, five, six times more for the same function," said David Ward, the president of the American Council on Education which represents universities. Jim Boyle, the president of College Parents of America, said high salarie aren't necessarily a problem, because finding a strong leader can hold tuition down in the long run.

Still, the figures concern some observers.

'I don't underestimate the important work they do," said Roger Bowen, the general sec-retary of the American Association of University Professors and a former president in New York's state university system. "But I think they're starting to look more like CEOs than college presidents, and I think public trust is a real issue."

The median salary for presidents at public institutions was $328,400. This is the first year the Chronicle has computed a median salary for those presidents, so it can't say for sure whether the median increased.

Deficit skyrockets, and dollar hits a new low

Worries about possible dollar crisis as trade deficit soars, euro rises

BY MARTIN CRUTSINGER

WASHINGTON - America's trade deficit is soaring, and the to record lows against Europe's common currency. But the Bush administration has reacted with remarkable calm to developments that raise worries about a possible dollar crisis.

Treasury Secretary John Snow, when asked, sticks to his standard comment that the administration's position in favor of a strong dollar has not wavered.

Beyond such utterances has come no single government action. During its four years in power, not once has the administration intervened in currency markets to support the dollar or done anything else to stop the dollar's slide.

At one point last week, the greenback hit an all-time low when it took $1.30 to buy one euro, the common currency used by 12 European nations. That rate was down 8 percent from where the dollar stood in relationship to the euro just three months ago.

The slide means that a vacation for Americans in Europe is now more expensive, and European products coming into this country will cost more.

Most economists say the dollar, already down by about 10 percent over the past two years against a market basket of foreign currencies, has yet to reach its lowest point. In fact, some think the dollar needs to decline by 10 percent more to deal with climbing U.S. trade deficits.

"The trend to a weaker dollar is going to continue. The trade is just too big," David Wyss, chief economist at Standard & Poor's in New York.

The dollar's record low against the euro coincided with the government's report that the United States was running a trade deficit through September at an annual rate of $592 billion. That compares with last year's record $496 billion.

As a result, the country is having to borrow almost $600 billion from foreigners this year to pay for the imported cars, televisions, and other items Americans are buying.

Foreigners so far are more than willing to lend the money. The unsettling worry, however, is what could happen if foreigners suddenly lost interest in holding dollar-denominated investments. The outward rush from U.S. stock and bond markets could send stock prices crashing and interest rates soaring.

Iran says it will suspend uranium enrichment

Diplomats: Iran also agrees in writing to suspend related activities

> BY GEORGE JAHN ASSOCIATED PRESS

VIENNA, Austria - Iran notified the U.N. nuclear watchdog in writing Sunday that it would suspend uranium enrichment and related activities to dispel suspicions that it was trying to build nuclear arms.

With its move, Iran appeared to have dropped demands to modify a tentative deal worked out on Nov. 7 with European negotiators, agreeing instead to continue freezing enrichment

- the process to make either nuclear fuel or the core for nuclear weapons - and also to suspend related activities, diplomats told the Associasion," said one of the diplomats, speaking on the condition of anonymity. "It's what the Europeans were looking for."

Shortly after diplomats revealed the Iranian move, Tehran's top nuclear negotiator, Hossein Mousavian, confirmed that his country was giving its "basic agreement" to a temporary suspension.

"We accept suspension as a voluntary measure on the basis of agreement with the European Union," Mousavian said on Iranian state television, emphasizing that his country viewed the move as a concession for "confidence building" and not a

"legal obligation."

As part of the agreement, "Europe will support Iran's joining the international group of states possessing the ability to manufacture nuclear fuel" once the suspension ends, Mousavian said, signaling yet again that Iran viewed the freeze as temporary. State Department spokeswoman Darla Jordan said Sunday: "We are awaiting a briefing by the EU three on Monday. We continue to believe

N. Korea: Solution to nuclear dispute possible

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — North Korea said on Nov. 13 that it was "quite possible" to settle the international standoff over its nuclear-weapons program if the United States allows for the existence of the communist regime.

The statement from Pyongyang's Foreign Ministry marked North Korea's first official comment on the prospects of six-nation nuclear talks since President Bush was re-elected to a second four-year term earlier this month.

"If the U.S. drops its hostile policy aimed at 'bringing down the system' in the [North] and opts for co-existing with the latter, in practice, it will be quite possible to settle the issue," a Foreign Ministry spokesman was quoted as saying by the North's official news agency, KCNA.

The spokesman made the comment while clarifying "some misinformation about the prospect of the resumption of the six-party talks afloat in the United States after the presidential election," KCNA said.
The two Koreas, China, Japan,

Russia, and the United States have held three rounds of six-nation talks on the nuclear dispute since last year, but no breakthrough has been reported.

A fourth round was slated for September, but Pyongyang refused to attend amid speculation it was waiting to see who would win the U.S. presidential election.

Some analysts believed the North was holding out for a possible victory by Bush challenger John Kerry, who was more open to bilateral U.S.-North Korean talks.

On Nov. 13, the North Korean spokesman reaffirmed that the communist state would not insist on bilateral talks with the United States to resolve the nuclear dispute.

various occasions the DPKK clarified that it stands for settling the nuclear issue between the DPRK and the U.S. through dialogue and negotiations, and it does not stick to the form of the talks aimed to solve it," he said.

AMSTERDAM, Netherlands (AP) -Dutch authorities have confirmed that 13 young Muslims arrested on terrorism charges in the Netherlands after the murder of filmmaker Theo van Gogh are members of a radical Islamic group with international links and a Syrian-born spiritual leader.

Dutch intelligence calls the group the Hofstad Network, and a Justice Ministry official says 43-year-old Syrian Redouan al-Issar, the alleged spiritual leader, has disappeared with-

Van Gogh was ritually slaughtered on an Amsterdam street Nov. 2, apparntly for criticizing Islam. His killing set off a wave of reprisals - attacks on more than 20 Islamic sites in the etherlands, including a mosque that as gutted by fire early on Nov. 13.

Van Gogh's alleged killer, 26-year-Mohammed Bouyeri, of Amsterdam, was arrested in a shootout with police minutes after the nimmaker died of gunshot wounds and a slit throat. Bouyeri had a will in his pocket saying he was prepared to die for Islamic jihad, or holy war.

In the days that followed, the govemment has come under pressure to lease details about Islamic radicals and terrorist recruiting in the etherlands. In a letter and notes sent to Parliament on Nov. 11, Interior Minister Johan Remkes, who oversees the secret service, gave the clearest picture yet of the Dutch cell allegedly chind Van Gogh's murder. Remkes said the Hofstad Network, composed mostly of young Dutch slims of North African ancestry, has links to networks in Spain and Belgium, several members of the group have traveled to Pakistan for training, and that its members were under the influence of al-Issar for

Insurgents attack in Sunni areas

Militants raid two police stations and set fire to the governor's house in Mosul

BY TINI TRAN ASSOCIATED PRESS

BAGHDAD - Insurgents stormed two police stations Sunday in the strife-ridden city of Mosul, killing at least six Iraqi troops as attacks spread throughout Sunni Muslim areas following the U.S.-led assault on Fallujah.

Marines found the mutilated body of a Western woman as they searched for militants still holding out in Fallujah, the former Sunni insurgent stronghold. The woman could not be immediately identified, but a British aid worker and a Pole are the only Western women known to have been taken hostage.

At least 38 American troops and six Iraqi soldiers have been killed in the fighting in Fallujah. The number of U.S. troops wounded is now 275, though more than 60 have returned to duty. U.S. officials estimated more than 1,200 insurgents were killed in the weeklong fighting.

Saboteurs set fire Sunday to four oil wells in Iraq's northern fields, setting off successive explosions in Khabbaza, 12 miles northwest of Kirkuk, oil officials said

Heavy explosions rattled central Baghdad near the Palestine and Sheraton hotels after nightfall Sunday, followed by bursts of sporadic gunfire. The U.S. military said initial reports indicated rockets or mortars had struck the area, killing two Iraqis and wounding another.

About an hour later, about four more large explosions rocked the Green Zone, headquarters of the U.S. and Iraqi leadership. At least one private security guard was killed. Clashes were also reported on Haifa Street, a center of insurgent support in the heart

U.S. Marine Maj. Gen. Richard Natonski on Sunday stands at the bridge in the western part of Fallujah, Irag, where the bodies of two American contractors killed by militants were strung up in March, sparking an earlier U.S. siege that failed.

More than a dozen insurgents attacked the Polish Embassy in Baghdad with automatic weapons Sunday, and embassy guards returned fire in an exchange that lasted for a half hour, a Polish Foreign Ministry spokesman said in Warsaw. No one was reported killed or wounded.

In Mosul, where an uprising broke out last week in support of the Fallujah defenders, militants raided two police stations, killing at least six Iraqi National Guards and wounding three others. One insurgent was killed and three others were wounded before Iraqi security forces regained control of both stations, witnesses said.

Insurgents also set fire to the governor's house, destroying it and damaging his car in northern Mosul. Governor Duraid Kashmoula also said the curfew will continue to be imposed on the city from 4:00 p.m. to 6:00 a.m. in the morning. A gunbattle erupted Sunday between militants and U.S. troops in the main market in the northern town of Beiji, killing at least six people and wounding 20 others, according to witnesses.

The clash followed an attack in Beiji against American soldiers, who responded with tank rounds and Hellfire missiles, the U.S. military said.

A dozen explosions rocked an American base in the western part of Ramadi, about 30 miles west of Fallujah, after insurgents fired missiles. Witnesses reported seeing flames and smoke billowing from the base.

One U.S. soldier was injured when a suicide bomber blew up his car near a U.S. convoy traveling between Balad and Tikrit, the military said. A Bradley fighting vehicle was damaged by a road-side bomb in Baghdad, injuring one soldier, the military said.

NEAR FALLUJAH, Iraq -In April, 2,000 Marines fought for three weeks and failed to take Fallujah from its insur-gent defenders. This time, war planners sent six times the troops. They fought their way across the rebel city in just six days — far more quickly than expected, the Marine general who designed the ground attack said Sunday.

"We had the green light this time, and we went all the way," Maj. Gen. Richard Natonski told the Associated Press. Natonski said he and other planners took lessons from the failed three-week U.S. assault on the city in April, which was called off by the Bush administration after a worldwide out-cry over civilian deaths.

This time the military used swarms of aircraft - more than 20 types — that pounded the city before and during the assault. Troops also faked attacks before the assault to confuse enemy fighters.

"Maybe we learned from April," Natonski said. "We learned we can't do it piecemeal. When we go in, we go all the way through."

Privately, U.S. military officials say April's assault was botched by the Bush administration, which forced the Marines to attack with insufficient forces on just a week's notice and then called off the assault before the city was taken. For the latest assault, commanders had time to plan. Also, the Iraqi and U.S. governments were determined to wipe out the insurgent nest. And the Iraqi troops, who melted away in April, stood their ground.

Even the worldwide outcry was muted this time, by revulsion at an insurgency blamed for grisly beheadings of hostages.

Natonski described the first six days of ground war as a flawless execution of the plan we drew up. We are actually ahead of schedule."

As quick as the assault was, perhaps thousands were killed and maimed, most of them Iraqi defenders. Natonski put the toll of guerrillas killed at more than 1,200.

A military statement Sunday said that 38 U.S. troops had been killed and 275 were wounded so far in the operation.

There is still no estimate of civilians killed or wounded in the assault.

On Sunday, Marines and Army troops still battled pockets of hardcore defenders scattered inside the Sunni Muslim stronghold. Behind U.S. forces, Iraqi troops were engaged in the painstaking task of clearing weapons and fighters from every room of each of Fallujah's 50,000 buildings.

Bands of rebels were still roving neighborhoods crushed by tons of U.S. bombs and shells. The holdouts are harried by U.S. forces who occupy - but have yet to subdue — the entire city.

"There are groups numbering from five to 30," Natonski said. "They're trying to get

ABIDJAN, Côte d'Ivoire -African leaders backed an arms embargo and other immediate U.N. sanctions against Côte d'Ivoire on Sunday, isolating President Laurent Gbagbo's hard-line government even further in its deadly confrontation with its former colonial ruler,

As a French-led evacuation of Côte d'Ivoire builds to one of Africa's largest, French President Jacques Chirac denounced President Laurent Gbagbo's "questionable regime" — and said France would not tolerate much more.

"We do not want to allow a system to develop that would lead only to anarchy or a regime of a fascist nature," Chirac told an audience in the southern French city of Marseille.

Presidents from Nigeria, Senegal, Ghana, Burkina Faso, Togo, and Gabon, meeting in the Nigerian capital of Abuja, on Sunday backed a draft U.N. Security Council resolution calling for an arms embargo, a travel ban, and asset freezes against anyone blocking peace in Côte d'Ivoire.

The arms embargo "should be immediate," Nigerian President Olusegun Obasanjo - the current African Union chairman told journalists after the meeting at the presidential wing of Abuja's airport. The call gives African approval to a tough stand in Monday's expected Security Council vote on the Gbagbo's representative at the talks, parliamentary leader Mamadou Koulibaly, condemned the call for sanctions and complained African leaders had slighted him — barring him from most of the talks and dinner.

Anti-French protesters gather as African leaders arrive at Abuja International Airport, Nigeria, on Sunday. Nigeria convened an African summit on the Côte d'Ivoire crisis Sunday without the presence of Ivoirian leader Laurent Gbagbo, who was still holed up in his mansion.

No other African leaders "are capable of resolving our problems with France," Koulibaly

One of his aides, speaking on condition he not be identified, warned that other countries should "come and collect their foreigners from Côte d'Ivoire because if there's an embargo, we can't live with them any-

In Abidjan, French civilians and other foreigners sprawled Sunday on camp beds set up in the airport departure lounge, their cats and dogs lined up in the latest in five days of evacuation flights.

A handful of heavily armed U.S. Marines stood ready to assist French troops.

The Netherlands' ambassador to the Côte d'Ivoire and three staff members were evacuated and the Dutch Embassy closed, the Dutch foreign ministry said Sunday, adding that all Dutch citizens had been advised to leave and about 20 remain "of their own free will."

France's heavy criticism, and African mediation efforts, come after a five-day spate of anti-forworld's top cocoa producer that once was stable and prosperous and the pride of France's former West African empire.

Côte d'Ivoire's latest crisis began when Gbagbo's military broke a more than year-old cease-fire in the country's 2year-old civil war with airstrikes on the rebel-held north.

Warplanes bombed a French peacekeeping post in the north on Nov. 6, killing nine French peacekeepers and an American aid worker and plunging the country into chaos.

2004 a deadly year for journalists, group says

Media-rights group: More than 100 journalists killed so far this year, worst in a decade

BY PAUL AMES ASSOCIATED PRESS

BRUSSELS, Belgium -More than 100 journalists have been killed since January, making 2004 the most deadly year for journalists in a decade, an international media-rights group said.

The slayings of three journalists in recent days in Côte d'Ivoire, Nicaragua, and the Philippines pushed this year's total to 101, the International Federation of Journalists said

"2004 is turning out to be one of the most bloody years on record," said Aidan White, the federation's general secretary. "The crisis of news safety has reached an intolerable level and must be addressed urgently." The organization recorded 83 killings of media staff in 2003 and 70 in 2002. The most deadly year for journalists since the organization began compiling annual reports in 1988 was 1994, when 115 were killed, including 48 during the genocide in Rwanda.

This year's latest victim was Gene Boyd Lumawag, the photo editor for the independent Filipino news agency MindaNews, shot in the head Nov. 12 by an unknown gunman while on his way to take a picture of the sunset in the southern town of Jolo.

A colleague working with Lumawag said she was told by army investigators they suspected an "urban terrorist group" from Abu Sayyaf, a Muslim extremist group linked to Al Qaeda and active in Jolo, killed the photogra-

The federation said Lumawag was the ninth jour-nalist killed in the Philippines this year and the 58th slain there since 1986.

On Tuesday, Maria Jose Bravo, 26, a reporter with La Prensa newspaper in Nicaragua, was shot and killed while covering electionrelated protests. A former mayor was arrested in connection with the killing.

Bravo's managing editor said the reporter recently received threats from politicalparty activists.

In Côte d'Ivoire, Antoine Masse, a journalist with the pro-government newspaper Le Courrier d'Abidjan, was killed Nov. 7 while covering a confrontation between the Ivorian army, demonstrators, and French forces west of

"All of these deaths are shocking reminders of the price journalists and media staff pay every day for press freedom and democracy,' White said. "We must renew our efforts to end this cycle of violence."

The federation also highlighted the dangers in Iraq, where it said 62 journalists have been killed since the U.S.-led invasion in March

It said the rising worldwide death toll would be discussed next week at an international meeting on media safety in the Portuguese resort of Vilam-

"The women's basketball team tries to get involved in the community. We want to teach them how to volunteer and how to give back to a community," said women's basketball coach Lisa Bluder over the blare of power saws. "It's a typically male field, and we're going outof-the box."

"Because the investigation is still under way, we are not releasing any additional details about this incident at this time," Duane Papke, the associate director of the UI police, said in a news release.

The break-in is not the first at the UI in recent years. In December 2002, someone broke in to a teaching assistant's office and stole approximately 90 papers that had been turned in for a politicalscience class.

While we were receiving condolences, a huge crowd gathered there, and then random shooting broke out but not in my direction," he said.

Abbas said he did not hear any slogans against him and planned to continue talks with rival Palestinian factions. Abbas has tried in the past, as prime minister, to persuade militants to halt attacks on Israel.

Sunday they were not interested in a cease-fire. In a Gaza City parade, masked militants unveiled a new rocket, which they claimed had an extended range that could reach the southern Israeli city of Ashkelon. The long, green "Al-Yasser 1" rocket, named after Arafat, was shown to a cheering crowd as Palestinian security looked on.

Abbas, also known as Abu Mazen, is widely expected to run for Palestinian Authority president. However, victory is far from certain. None of the likely candidates, including Abbas, has the stature of Arafat, and many Palestinians consider Abbas' generation of politicians to be tainted by corruption and out of touch with decisions," said Mouin Rabbani, senior Middle East analyst with the International Crisis Group in Amman, Jordan.

Abbas is expected to be a nominee of Arafat's dominant Fatah movement but not necessarily the only one. He told the Arab satellite TV station Al Jazeera that Fatah would soon choose a candidate.

Marwan Barghouti, a leader of the Palestinian uprising who is jailed by Israel, plans to run, according to a person close to him. In recent opinion polls, Barghouti emerged as the most popular politician after Arafat.

Abdel Sattar Qassem, a political science professor and political outsider, said he plans to run as an independent candidate. Qassem, a leading Arafat critic, said his campaign would focus on cleaning up corruption in the Palestinian Authority.

Palestinian officials called for international pressure on Israel to ease conditions in Palestinian areas to permit the vote to go smoothly. They called for a withdrawal of Israeli troops from Palestinian population centers and said residents of disputed east Jerusalem must participate.

Israel has barred most residents in east Jerusalem from registering to vote. Many Israelis fear that allowing the city's 228,000 Arab residents to vote in a such a ballot would strengthen Palestinian claims to the city.

Israeli Prime Minister Ariel Sharon signaled flexibility on the matter Sunday, telling his Cabinet he would not rule out the possibility of allowing east Jerusalem Palestinians to vote, meeting participants said. No decisions were made.

More Moore not the best idea

Controversial filmmaker overstaying his welcome in pop culture

Documentary filmmaker Michael Moore has announced his plans to follow up his recent hit production Fahrenheit 9/11 with a sequel to be titled Fahrenheit 9/11 1/2. Moore says he will begin filming soon and hopes to have the final product ready in two to three years. While the second installment will likely be a commercial success, the release of 9/11 1/2 can possibly do more harm than good.

Moore's intentions behind the first Fahrenheit film were clear - unseating the recently re-elected President Bush. However, his motives this time are less apparent. Regardless of what happens in the next four years, Bush's term will expire, and he will leave the presidency after 2008. No movie, book, song, or commercial jingle can alter the simple facts that the president will be in office for another four years and that these will be his last four years.

Moore said in a recent press release, "Fifty-one percent of the American people lacked information [in this election], and we want to educate and enlighten them. They weren't told the truth. We're communicators, and it's up to us to start doing it now." If he is truly concerned about the lack of accurate information given to the American public, he should seriously consider doing a documentary about the media — the evident catalyst of his complaints about voters being misinformed.

He also had plans prior to his recent announcement to release a film about the health-care system in America, an issue on the minds of many Americans, considering that around 43 million of them lack health insurance. But for Moore to proceed to make another film about Bush without the same level of political and social capital in the balance that existed for his first Fahrenheit film, he may be giving the right even more ammunition against him and his causes. And the public may be far less receptive to his assertions.

Love him or hate him, Moore's films have clearly had a significant effect on popular culture. Fahrenheit 9/11 has grossed more than $218 million worldwide, and its debut on home video shattered the previous documentary videorental debut record previously held by Moore's Bowling for Columbine. That film won the best documentary feature title at the 2002 Oscar Awards, and the film held the previous record for the highest documentary film gross of all

But in Moore's desire to release a sequel to his blockbuster hit, he may run the risk of taking away some of the legacy of the first Fahrenheit installment. There is an adage in cinema that sequels are never as good as the original, and Moore might be overstaying his welcome in popular culture and political terms with the sequel's release. Because he has such an influence on the American public, he must choose his projects more wisely and with less haste.

It wasn't till Nov. 12 that I felt halfway normal again.

Wandering numbly through the days with post-election, anxious fatigued static behind my eyes, I felt bludgeoned about the heart. I didn't speak much, and if I did, it was raspy, quiet. Brittle and concise. On Nov. 10, waiting at Takanami for late friends, I realized I was sitting in my seat without fretting without shifting or fidgeting, because l didn't really care: Being stood up couldn't make me feel worse than I already did. Being dead, I thought vaguely, might indeed feel a little worse.

As my friends arrived, the vagueness of that thought worried me — but only in a distant, brief way itself.

And then on the morning of Nov. 12, at work, I made paper. A lot of really, really nice paper. There's this moment when you're at the paper vat, forming sheets, where the fibers are supposed to come together and cream out to smooth perfection in a rare, priceless experience of skill, sweat, and luck entwining, and that kept happening, sheet after sheet after lovely sheet. I work as part of a two-person team, one of us at the vat, forming sheets; the other at the post, couching them - transferring the sheets from the mold they're formed onto the felts they'll be pressed on — and we're supposed to switch jobs mid-morning.

But on that day, I hogged the vat. I needed to think. I needed to occupy the routine parts of my mind with a rhythm, such as sheet-forming, so I did n't start pacing like a victim of Restless Legs Syndrome while I sifted my own emotional and intellectual reactions to the election with the reactions of other talking heads. And because couching's my weak spot, I was pointedly avoiding it: I still wouldn't have minded being stood up, but I'd thawed to the point that personally screwing up 18- by 24-inch sheets of paper that sell for $12 a piece could have made me feel worse.

Sheet after sheet, I considered voter turnout, and the youth vote; the "mandate" and "unity" issues. Whether I think most people vote for candidates as a singular, personal entity or as a representative of a party concerned with advancing/reversing majorities in the legislative houses. The rumors that Ashcroft was resigning. (Yay!) Briefly, fondly, if Ohio might still be officially certified for Kerry. Briefly, cynically, if Karl Rove had initiated the Iraq campaign because he knew wars are historically the most successful re-election campaign style ever. Cynicism: It's the Heady Way of Life! Having reflected, I'm pleased enough with the voter turnouts. And I think most people mostly vote for candidates as singular entities who are also, partly, representatives of a larger group. While I'll mutter that Rove is an evil genius, I won't flat-out call him Evil. Ohio being certified for Kerry is a pipe dream, though I feel no shame in maintaining whatever scrim of hope I can, while I can: flimsy, but looks substantial in the right light, one that's rather anxious and disappointed. And the "mandate" is blither-blather-bluster. But the most important thing I decided was about unity. Screw unity.

People, liberal or conservative, braying on about unity should have their mouths stuffed with 29 jumbo marshmallows and their ears candled: Unity is a myth. Neither I nor you should feel that what comes out of America's mouth is or should be the unification of our many differing viewpoints on class, war, abortion, religion, non-war foreign policy, affirmative action, economic pol cies, embryonic stem-cell research, or which president - Roosevelt or Reagar - looks up at us from the dime, etc. Official positions on these and other things are hewn out through time, compromise, and negotiation; to seek a regimented unity (or to say that we do so) obfuscates how the interplay of differences gives this nation strength. Instead, as talking heads and a populace, we need to treat each other with dignity, kindness, and hope; restrain our cynical instincts while still retaining smart views of reality. Respect not just each other's abstract right to a differing opinion but also that our opinions actually differ. Be more concerned with having a dialogue than winning it Take a deep breath and remember, no matter whether we're pleased or dismayed, that this political moment is just that: momentary.

And keep Roosevelt on the dime.

LETTERS -

It's done, get over it

Hey, David Frank, film critic, do us all a favor, will ya? Stick to your job.

When I read a film review, I expect a column that is 100 percent about the film and your reaction to the film, not 75 percent of that and 25 percent of bitching and moaning about an election more than a week old, as we were treated to by you ("When superheroes land in suburbia," DI, Nov. 12).

The following is for all of us who voted for somebody other than King George:

Our guys lost; get over it. There isn't anything you can do about it now, unless you have a plan to kidnap all the electors from those eeeeevil red states before Dec. 12 and replace them with clones programmed to vote the way you want them to.

Part of the electoral process is taking defeat like an adult, not a 2-year-old having a temper tantrum. Emulate your guy and concede with grace and dignity, OK?

fantastic job it has done getting good music to the university. This being my first year here, I had no idea what this program was, but after attending several shows that SCOPE has put on, it has become clear: SCOPE knows its stuff. On Nov. 11, I attended a free concert (instead of Oteil Burbridge and the Peacemakers at the Green Room, which I couldn't attend because apparently I'm not old enough to watch people drink) that blew my mind. Most of the bands that played I had never heard of, but after watching them perform, my mind has been opened to a completely new style of music.

I cannot be the only one affected by SCOPE's mastery at picking the right shows for the right people. If its focus is entertainment for students, it has succeeded several times over with not only good, well-known music names but with comedic and artistic programs as well. On behalf of other students whose musical interests have been thwarted by that damn age restriction, thank you SCOPE, and please keep it coming.

Cheap shots better described as lies

At first blush, Kevin White's Nov. 10 DI column ("Senator Senile") looked like a cheap shot, drawing random assertions together into an ugly epithet. White criticized Sen. Tom Harkin's impaseulogizing of his good friend Sen. Paul Wellstone, and of Christopher Reeve, as inappropriate. Both Reeve and Wellstone carried on political work to the time of their death, both were forceful and persuasive speakers, and Harkin's call for the continuation of their work, notably Reeve's work on behalf of stem-cell research, was both appropriate and laudable. Political communication is a game of connect the dots, drawing diverse points into a coherent picture. Unfortunately, some of these pictures are lies. White's column was such a lie, perhaps told in the hopes of silencing Harkin's voice of reason on stem-cell research, which so strongly contradicts the politically driven view of the Bush administration.

Harkin is a voice for improving the lives of ordinary Americans, and he should be applauded for continuing to speak out in favor of stem-cell

Make non-spirited drinks free at bars

It frustrates me to see all these proposals being put forth to stop underage drinking, which is getting more out of hand then it already was. I have not yet once seen a proposal for bars to offer underage bar-goers free non-alcoholic beverages.

I am now 21, so it is not a problem for me, but when I did attend the bar life as an under-ager, it was an easy choice to make when a cup of beer was only 50 cents and a cup of pop was $1.50 hmm, on a college-student budget, what do you think happened? I would find that most other underage bar-goers are faced with this same decision and come to the same conclusion. I think that this is one of the many reasons why 19- and 20-year-olds prefer to pick up a Long Island instead of a

Maybe someone should propose this it seems like a more realistic option then having bar passes or sending underage drinkers to unsafe house parties. Just a thought.

It's as simple as that.

I have an additional suggestion for Josh Bald's "Veterans Day commemoration guide" (DI, Nov. 11): Don't write a stupid column for a university newspaper mocking veterans and making them wonder why they put their lives at risk to benefit stupid, ungrateful, and disrespectful students such as you.

just trying to have some fun. And, just as he has the right to say it, you have the right to not listen. So if you think that his column is offensive, don't read it.

NOTHING TO GET EXCITED ABOUT!

I'm proud of my uncle (Vietnam) and my cousin (Iraq), who went to war when they didn't have to but thought it was the best thing for our country. You are mocking the people who have fought and died to ensure the freedom of speech that allowed you to print this material in the first place.

The Brown Bunny When:

Today and Wednesday at 9 p.m. Tuesday at 7 p.m.

> Bijou *hout of ***

BY DAVID FRANK THE DAILY IOWAN

Step right up folks, and witness the spectacular, the amazing, the magnificent Tyler Durdenapproved medical miracle cure for insomnia that is producer-editorcinematographer-actor-writerdirector-set-decorator Vincent Gallo's The Brown Bunny! Desert being alert, forsake being awake, and heave-ho the energy flow with Gallo's mind-numbing, unending, highfaluting (yet piddling), 90-minute pondering snooze-fest on lost love.

For $5, that's right only $5, you, too, can experience the same sensations as the comatose. To provide the best slumber you're prone to experience in seven lifetimes, Gallo has jettisoned all the shenanigans that made his last film, Buffalo 66, so engaging. Coherency? Gone. Empathetic and developed characters? Gone. Dialogue and story? Mostly gone; what little plot does exist won't keep your attention past the opening credits.

Vincent Gallo plays Bud Clay driving from the East Coast to the West.

There's nothing involving here folks, nil-zip-diddly-squat, and that's a Frank guarantee. The movie feels as if it unfolds in real-time as it goes along for a ride with motorcycle racer Bud Clay (Gallo) as he drives from the East Coast to the West Coast in five days. I'm not exaggerating, hyperbolizing, embellishing, or bamboozling you when I say that 47 percent of the movie is shot behind a bug-splattered windshield as it films the approaching road and scenery.

If that's not enough to drop the bounce from your step and pull your eyelids to the cheeks, then watch Bud as he fills his gas tank. Watch him drive around the block. Watch him make out with a stranger at a rest stop in a disjointed scene that'll shove its point down your throat, through your stomach, and lodge it right in your colon. Watch that scurvy bastard take a leak and rinse his hands without using soap.

The whole flick is about Bud obsessing, fixating, and mourning over a relationship that's turned as sour as any stupendously overthe-top grandiloquent simile that Billy Shakespeare could ever conjure. Bud cries, he drives, and he hits on the sporadic girl to fill the lonely void. This all climaxes when Oscar-nominated actress Chloë Sevigny appears as Bud's ex-lover and conducts some sloppy fellatio. And I'm not talking about a smoke and mirrors hummer of Hollywood magic. No, no folks. Sevigny actually executes a bona fide piston-job on Gallo. But don't fret; you'll all be snoring long before that sequence and be all Regrettably for Gallo, postrelationship grief has been done far better, far deeper, and far more compellingly. But opportunely for you, my dear insomniacs out there in the crowd, this piece of celluloid is the end-all cure for what ails you. It's more effective than wine and Vicodin. More potent than 10 elephant tranquillizers to the medulla oblongata. The Brown Bunny is the only sure-fire way to bring your central nervous system to a crashing halt. So come on up to the ticket booth, slap your money down, seize a pillow, and settle yourself for a slow, slow ride of cinema that'll swiftly and mercifully send you to la-la land.

2 impressively intuitive debuts

BY SARA CONRAD

"Fiction can be universal because you can recognize a part of yourself in it," said Merrill Feitell, this year's winner of the Iowa Short Fiction Award.

Her debut collection of short stories, Beneath Low-flying Planes, encapsulates this idea, universally connecting everyone through characters whose lives demonstrate the uncontrollable effect that people have on one another. Janet Desaulniers won the co-prize, the John Simmons Short Fiction Award, for her collection What You've Been Missing, which demonstrates a deep understanding of interpersonal influence and plays with human identity through numerous points of view. Both authors will read from their première collections tonight at Prairie Lights.

Feitell and Desaulniers expertly deconstruct and rearrange their characters so that readers can identify with each one while being gently reminded of the constant, universal buzz of humanity. Each story is laden with eerie intuition and greater truths, intimately attaching the reader to characters and imagined experiences, in some instances rendering the ability to save a person from a common but irreversible trauma.

"I mean to save people," Desaulniers said. "If not save their lives, then to save them from trouble. They can experience things in stories that they couldn't themselves, and they will therefore have more resources in order to live easier, or die easier, or both."

She chose to title her collection What You've Been Missing because she feels the stories highlight what some people have been missing along the way, and the trouble that they find themselves in upon this realization. Currently a teacher at the M.F.A. in Writing Program at the School of the Art Institute of Chicago, she has won a Pushcart Prize and Transatlantic Review award.

Reflecting different times, people, and perceptions, her collection projects her versatility and growth as a writer. Desaulniers once edited her stories precisely, almost obsessively, lingering on a work until she felt it couldn't possibly get any better. Over the years, her tedious way of writing transcended into a still careful, but much swifter approach.

"When you realize you're going to die, you don't feel the need to hover over work like you do as a young writer," she said.

In fact, "Who Knows More Than You" is one of Desaulniers' favorite stories in her collection because it resonates with the voice of a person who knows she will die someday. It is written many of the pieces in her

"I'm excited about this new sound. It's less luxurious," she Feitell has also been known to edit her work fiercely. Here Beneath Low-flying Planes was published after much of that, with many of her stories trimmed to half their original length. Currently, she is alternately working on a novel and another collection of short stories based in Brooklyn.

In Here Beneath Low-flying Planes, she also ambitiously chose to write outside of her own experiences. Only remnants of her life exist in her collection, recognizable to her only after she had finished the pieces. Although she admits that it is an impulse as a writer to disguise an autobiographical piece using a different sex or point of view, she emphasizes that it is on an "unintuitive level" and unintentional.

However, her stories radiate an uncanny intuitive energy. Her characters and narrators are continually, and mysteriously, insightful, frequently able to seize and enlighten the reader. But in a collection about central consciousness and interpersonal effect, one would expect her to have an acute knack for understanding.

"In the end, the stories resonate everyday heroes," she said. "It's about everybody dealing with imminent dangers and trouble at any given time."

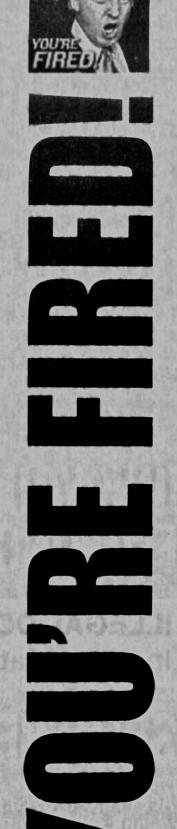

Feitell received her M.F.A. from Columbia University, and she has been published in Book Magazine, Glimmer Train, and The Best New American Voices 2000. In 2003, she was the Bread Loaf Writer's Conference's Margaret Bridgman Scholar in Fiction.

Standing on the field at the Metrodome, the emotions of the Iowa football players were palpable.

Matt Roth grabbed Floyd of Rosedale and hoisted it above his head. Players jumped and waved towels as Iowa quarterback Drew Tate salted away Iowa's thrilling 29-27 win over Minnesota with a kneel. The enormous Iowa fan following in the Dome, who stayed nearly 20 minutes after the final seconds ticked off the clock and the Minnesota fans had disappeared, roared as the players took an emotional victory lap around the stadium, hoisting the bronze pig into the crowd for fans to touch and hold.

"It's emotional. We have the best fans in the country, obviously," Brian Ferentz said.

When the Iowa sophomore place-kicker sat down for dinner at an Iowa City restaurant called Bob's Your Uncle, teammate Matt Roth noticed that the menu offered a pizza called the "Nate Kaeding."

Kaeding, who became the alltime leading scorer in Hawkeye football history last season and now plays for the San Diego Chargers in the NFL, had been Schlicher's teammate and mentor for the past two years at Iowa.

There was never any bad blood between them, but they were highly competitive, given that they practiced alongside one another on a daily basis.

So when Roth asked Schlicher if he was going to order the "Kaedo" or if he was upset they didn't have a pizza named after him, his first thought wasn't jealousy but rather: "Nate likes onions?"

ALFORD: DEFENSE SELFISH

Iowa's lead fell to as few as 4 points as the team battled to hold on for the win

BY JASON BRUMMOND THE DAILY IOWAN

Guard Pierre Pierce had 23 points, and Iowa fended off a surge in the middle of the second half by Université Laval, holding on to win, 85-77, on Sunday afternoon in Carver-Hawkeye Arena. When the Hawkeyes' lead dwindled to 4 points with 10 minutes remaining, they went on a run and extended the lead to 13 over the next seven minutes, escaping Laval's 60.9 percent shooting and six 3-pointers in the second half.

Iowa coach Steve Alford was disappointed with Iowa's helpdefense - a strong positive in last week's game against Upper-Iowa. He said Sunday's game indicates how much improvement his team needs to make on the defensive end.

"I thought we were really selfish defensively tonight," he said. "We weren't concerned about help. We were only concerned about our own guy, and we can't play defense that way.

"It's not just about shutting out your guy. It's about doing the job from a team defensive standpoint."

Laval, which lost to Northern Illinois, 94-55, on Nov. 13 in DeKalb, had too many catch-andshoot 3's in its half-court offense, Alford said.

"We didn't play very well tonight, and our defense especially wasn't very good," said guard Jeff Horner, who finished with 11 points and seven assists. "I think we took a step backwards."

Pierce had five steals, hit 7-of-14 shots from the field, and made it to the charity stripe 13 times, converting eight.

Forward Greg Brunner finished with 13 points and 11 rebounds on 6-of-10 shooting as the team's second-high scorer, and Doug Thomas came off the bench for 12.

But Alford wasn't pleased with the play of his post players. Center Erek Hansen recorded five blocks but shot just 1-of-7 from the floor for four points. He added only two rebounds. Freshman guard Carlton Reed may be the most surprising Hawk-eye through the first two exhibition games, Alford said. The Waterloo native made all three of his attempts from beyond the arc in 14 quality minutes off the bench. "All I've been focusing on is trying to knock down shots when I get them," Reed said.

Men's cross-country will go to NCAA's

"We're in." lowa men's cross-country coach Larry Wieczorek confirmed his team's bid to the NCAA championships Sunday at 5:34 p.m.

The Hawkeyes were the No. 2 seed in last weekend's regional cross-country meet in Peoria, III. The top two teams in each region clinch a spot in the NCAAs, so lowa was poised to finish as expected and have little to worry about, exactly how coach Wieczorek likes it. But it finished third.

Top-seeded Oklahoma State finished second. Minnesota — a team lowa defeated in the Big Ten championships on Oct. 31 — took first.

Instead of a lazy Sunday afternoon, Wieczorek and his lowa runners were left waiting for confirmation regarding the extension or extinction of their season. But, as he said, they're in, slated as the 24th seed in the 31-team field on Nov. 22.

Junior Dan Haut, the fastest Hawkeye, placed 10th overall, earning him all-region accolades. It's the second time in three years that lowa has gone to the NCAAs as a team.

The team arrived in Peoria plagued by illness. Its top runner from the Big Tens, sophomore Micah VanDenend, spent most of the night Nov. 12 littering his bathroom with the meal he ate earlier that evening. Senior and captain Tony Rakaric left Iowa City with a sore throat, particularly displeasing when running in cool weather. Freshman standout Eric MacTaggart, who placed 16th at the Big Tens, also felt sick.

Others had to step up; for the second meet in a row, junior Adam Roche filled in for Hawkeye harriers. He crossed pay dirt third for lowa, behind Haut and senior Matt Esche.

"Roche came up huge," Wieczorek

Though lowa failed to live up to its second-seed billing, it still qualified for the NCAA meet, the team's goal. Despite the illnesses, the Hawks will make the trip to Terre Haute, Ind., for the "Big Dance" of Division-I cross-country.

Women's cross-country development continues

Layne Anderson's team continued its steady development, finishing seventh in its Midwest region on Nov. 13. It was a two-place, 48-point improvement from a year ago.

Leading the lowa pack, as she's done five meets in a row, sophomore Nikki Chapple finished the 6,000meter race 12th overall. Even more impressive is that it was the fastest women's 6,000-meter time in Hawkeye history.

To prove that this is the best lowa women's cross-country team in recent freshmen memory, Armstrong's finish over the weekend put her second in lowa's record books.

Continuing the pursuit of improvement, the young Hawkeyes all fared well, with six of lowa's top seven runners being underclassmen. Those who may receive bids as individuals, Chapple and Armstrong in particular, will receive news of their fortune sometime today.

The lowa volleyball team was unable to end its 13-game losing streak over the past weekend. The Hawkeyes fell to Michigan State on Nov. 12 (3-0 30-25, 31-29, 30-28) and to Michigan on Nov. 13 (3-0 30-22, 30-19, 30-22). This moves lowa's record to 9-19 on the season, 1-15 in Big Ten play.

Although the Hawks continued to add to the losing column, lowa coach Cindy Fredrick still saw some steady play from her squad.

"I was happy with Chelsey Garrett, Stacy Vitali, and Laura Simpson," the head Hawk said.

AUSTIN, Texas - Seimone Augustus scored a career-high 33 points, but No. 3 LSU needed a last-second deflection by 5-3 Temeka Johnson to escape with a 71-70 victory over No. 8 Baylor in the Tip-Off Classic on Sunday.

LSU (3-0) led by as many as 21, then found itself scrambling after Baylor (0-1) charged back behind Steffanie Blackmon, Emily Niemann, and Sophia Young.

Augustus' final basket gave

LSU a 71-69 lead with 1:19 left. Young's free throw cut the lead to one, and Baylor got the ball back on a shot clock violation with 25.6 seconds remaining. The Lady Bears worked the ball around the perimeter and had it on the right side when Johnson knocked it loose from Niemann.

Baylor's Chelsea Whitaker ran it down but could do nothing more than throw up a desperation shot that hit the side of the backboard as she was falling out of bounds.

But even getting the game to that point was an accomplishment for Baylor, considering the way Augustus was playing. The leading vote-getter on the AP's preseason All-America team, Augustus made 14 of 21 shots, hitting everything from fadeaways to pull-up jumpers to putbacks, and added six rebounds and three assists.

Johnson finished with 15 points, nine assists, and four steals.

"I just laughed, and I just said, 'Sorry, I'm not gonna order it." Schlicher said.

But perhaps someday there will have to be a "Schlicher Pizza."

In his first year as a starter for the Hawkeyes, Schlicher broke two records previously held by Kaeding in Nov. 13 game against Minnesota. His five field goals in one game, including a career long 49-yarder, and 17 total kicking points now stand atop the Iowa charts.

"It's not a goal of mine to be better than him," said Schlicher, who admitted in a way he stalked Kaeding while they were teammates, soaking up any tips possi-ble. "I just try to do my best along with everybody else on the team. The records just come with the whole ride. Breaking the records, kicking the long ones, those are just part of the whole process."

"I thought he kicked with confidence last week, and obviously, he did today," said Iowa coach Kirk Ferentz, following the Hawkeyes' 29-27 victory over the Gophers. "What a great job there, and it's a little bit, and I'm not saying it's the same as, but a little bit like what Nate Kaeding went through back in 2000. We saw him grow each and every week. Kyle's play today was a big difference in the ball game, certainly."

Schlicher admitted his confidence is rising.

"Each and every time I go out there, whether it's a kickoff, PAT, or field goal, that comfort level just rises a little bit more," he said. "You could say the whole game I was in a zone."

When asked if Schlicher has the potential to be the best kicker to come through Iowa, Ferentz was hesitant to even form an opinion.

"I'll tell you, he's following a pretty good one, so we're going to hold on the judgment there," Ferentz said. "The one thing that I will say, my guess is Nate's really proud of what he did today."

Coincidentally, Kaeding was in Iowa City for the week because the Chargers did not compete this weekend.

Although Schlicher hadn't seen his former teammate and teacher since Kaeding headed off for the NFL, they've spoken on the phone a handful of times throughout the season.

Schlicher said he met with Kaeding briefly the day before the Minnesota game, and he would see him again when the team returned to Iowa City, but he didn't plan on bringing up the records.

Some guys were talking about heckling him tonight, but no, that's definitely something I'd never do," Schlicher said. "To me, he's still the all-time great, you know - I mean, he is."

But that doesn't mean he'll eat his pizza.

HALUSKA, GORNEY MAKE HAWKEYE DEBUTS IN WIN

HOOPS

Guard Adam Haluska, an Iowa State transfer, made his Hawkeye debut, but the sharpshooter struggled to find his touch, missing all three of his shots - two from beyond the arc - in 15 minutes. He did grab two rebounds.

Before the contest, Alford said he wasn't sure how much Haluska was going to be able to play, adding that he wasn't concerned about Sunday's performance because he understands that Haluska has missed conditioning.

Haluska missed last week's exhibition opener against Upper Iowa because he was nursing a hip flexor/abdominal strain injury from two weeks ago. Sophomore Mike Henderson has started both exhibition games in what would have been Haluska's spot, but Haluska isn't concerned where his minutes come from in Friday's season-opener against Western Illinois.

"Starting right now isn't the most important thing for me,"

Freshman center Seth Gorney, who Alford hadn't expected to return from an ankle injury, played a minute at the tail end of the first half. The 7footer hasn't practiced, but Alford wanted to get him on the floor in advance of this week's game.

As they did against Upper Iowa, the Hawkeyes got off to a slow start; Laval built up an early lead, but a Horner 3pointer with 13:50 remaining in the half gave Iowa its first lead of the game, 16-15.

The Hawkeyes went on a 14-2 run over a 6½ minute stretch later in the opening half, powered by fast-break points and a pair of 3-pointers. Following a Reed 3, Pierce stole the ball in the open court, went behind his back to lose a defender, and laid it in with his left hand.

Laval answered with a 10-0 run of its own, but the Hawkeyes ended the first half with eight-consecutive points, including a buzzerbeating 3 from Reed as Iowa pushed the ball up the length of the court with around five seconds left on the clock.

"The start of the game is crucial for us, so we need to find five guys who can start games at a high-level," Alford said. "Who that is, we don't know. But the group that we've had for two games hasn't, obviously, done a good job with it."

and then to take that pig around and let them touch it, it's a pretty emotional moment."

But that emotional moment almost never happened.

The Golden Gophers, who came into the contest as the seventh-ranked rushing team in the nation, pounded Iowa's fourth-ranked run defense to the tune of 337 yards and nearly offset another spectacular performance from Drew Tate, who decimated the Gopher secondary by throwing for 333 yards and two touchdowns. The receiving corps was also brilliant, led by Clinton Solomon's career day of nine receptions for 154 yards and one touchdown.

The Hawkeyes had allowed just one team more than 100 yards rushing in a game this season, and they had not allowed a back to top the mark. Minnesota put two over the century mark in running backs Laurence Maroney and Marion Barber III, who both eclipsed 150 yards and became the first running back duo in NCAA history to each run for 1,000 yards onsecutive seasons.

They've got great backs and a good offensive line," Roth said. They brought it to us. We've got some things to work on in practice this week, and you've got to give them credit."

Yet while the Iowa run defense was put through a meat grinder the entire game, it came up with the big plays at the

After Minnesota had pulled within 6 early in the fourth quarter and had momentum, safety Marcus Paschal forced a fumble, Minnesota's fourth turnover of the game, on Maroney at the Iowa 49, which was recovered by Abdul Hodge.

That led to Kyle Schlicher's fifth field goal of the game, a career-long 49-yarder, which gave Iowa a nine-point edge and set school records for field goals and points (17) in a game.

With the Gophers in position for the game-winning field goal at the Iowa 31, linebacker Chad Greenway stopped Barber in the Minnesota backfield for a four-yard loss that knocked the Gophers out of field-goal range.

"We were playing our base defense, and the tackle, whom I normally key on, deked out a little too far and left a little bit of a gap," Greenway said.
"I just shot the gap and tried to make a play."

On the next play, the Gophers gained back a yard to the 34 to set up a 51-yard field goal from senior Rhys Lloyd. After a timeout and verbal abuse from the Iowa sideline led by kickerturned-cheerleader Schlicher, Lloyd hooked his game-winner wide left, leading to the bedlam after the game.

"The guys standing around me when we were all yelling, I couldn't really tell you [what they were saying]," Schlicher said. "I wasn't paying attention. I just turned around and was like, 'Let's go!"

Iowa received heroics from a number of players, and the Hawkeyes are now somehow 8-2, 6-1 in conference play, with one game left heading into their showdown with Wisconsin on Saturday. The game could be for the Big Ten title game if Michigan loses to Ohio State.

We fought our fight today, and we won," Greenway said. "It was ugly, but we won, and that's all that matters." E-mail DI reporter Nick Richards at:

NFL ROUNDUP

Roethlisberger, Steelers win again

Roethlisberger became the first rookie quarterback to begin 7-0 since the 1970 merger, and Jerome Bettis had two short touchdown runs, leading the Steelers to a 24-10 win over the Cleveland Browns on Sunday.

The Steelers (8-1) took smashmouth football to a new extreme. Pittsburgh linebacker Joey Porter bloodled Browns running back William Green in a fight during pregame drills. Both were ejected before the game began.

After handing New England and Philadelphia their first losses the past two weeks, Pittsburgh figured to be due for a letdown. That will have to wait until next week maybe — as the Steelers remained the NFL's hottest team with their seventh-consecutive win.

Bettis, starting in place of the injured Duce Staley for the secondstraight week, gained 103 yards on 29 carries. He scored on TD runs from 5 and 1 yards in the first half.

The Steelers put the game away when Aaron Smith stripped quarter-back Jeff Garcia, and safety Russell Stuvaints ran it in from 24 yards.

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) -Matt Stover kicked a 42-yard field goal with 7:39 remaining in overtime. Last season, Stover kicked two game-winning field goals in overtime for Baltimore (6-3).

Kyle Boller got the Ravens in position for the winning score by converting a third-and-5 from the Baltimore 49 with a 21-yard pass to Kevin Johnson. Boller then completed a 10-yard pass to Travis Taylor on third-and-14 from the Jets 34 to put the Ravens in field goal range.

Jaguars 23, Lions 17, OT

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) -David Garrard threw two touchdown passes, including a 36-yarder to Jimmy Smith in overtime. Garrard, making his first start in nearly two years, finished 19-of-36 for 198 yards and added 42 yards rushing.

Fred Taylor had a season-high 144 yards rushing as the Lions (4-5) were outgained on the ground for a second-consecutive week and lost third-straight

Washington's Clinton Portis ran for 147 yards against Detroit last week. The Lions sent it to overtime because Eddie Drummond returned two punts for touchdowns in the fourth quarter, a 55-yarder and then an 83-yarder with 46 seconds remaining

Bears 19, Titans 17, OT

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) -Brown sacked backup Billy Volek in the end zone and knocked the ball loose for a safety and an overtime win.

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Peyton Manning threw five touchdowns for pleted 18-of-27 passes for 320 yards. Indianapolis (6-3) won its second

AFC South lead with Jacksonville. Manning, the only player in NFL history to throw five TDs four times in a 12-month span, engineered three touchdown drives that used a total of 2:06. After three quarters, he had just one more incompletion (six) than he did touchdown passes, and he surpassed his last year's TD total of 29. The 2003 co-MVP now has 31 touchdown passes this year; Dan Marino's NFL record is 48.

Rams 23, Seahawks 12

ST. LOUIS (AP) - Marc Bulger got off to a hot start, and a beleaguered defense held Seattle to three field goals in five trips inside the 20, earning the Rams a first-place tie with the Seahawks in the NFC West.

Saints 27, Chiefs 20

NEW ORLEANS (AP) - Aaron Brooks threw a 42-yard touchdown pass to Joe Horn midway through the fourth quarter, and the Saints (4-5) rallied to win. With the score tied at 20, the Saints drove 72 yards to take the lead with 5:35 remaining.

The Chiefs (3-6) responded by driving to the Saints 17, but Derrick Blaylock could not handle a pass from Trent Green, and linebacker Orlando Ruff grabbed it to preserve the victory.

Deuce McAllister had his second 100-yard game of the season for New Orleans, rushing for 127 yards and a touchdown on 16 carries. Horn had five catches for 167 yards.

Falcons 24, Buccaneers 14

ATLANTA (AP) — Bouncing back after the officials denied an apparent defensive TD, Alge Crumpler hauled in a 49-yard scoring pass from Michael Vick to clinch the victory. Crumpler had four catches for a career-best 118 yards, and the Falcons rushed for 205 yards.

Meanwhile, the Atlanta defense had a season-high seven sacks to make life miserable for Brian Griese.

The Falcons (7-2) scored on their first three possessions for a 17-0 lead, but the Bucs (3-6) were in position to at least kick a tying field goal early in the fourth quarter. That's when the craziness began.

Packers 34, Vikings 31

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) - Ryan Longwell's 33-yard field goal as time expired gave the Packers a victory over their archrivals and a tie atop the NFC North, both at 5-4.

The Vikings, losers of three straight, rallied to tie it with two touchdowns in the final 2:53.

After Daunte Culpepper's fourth touchdown toss, Robert Ferguson returned the kickoff to midfield, where Antoine Winfield forced a fumble. Officials ruled Packers tight end Ben Steele recovered, even though Minnesota's Larry Ned emerged from the scrum with the ball.

Brett Favre, who also threw four touchdown passes, calmly guided Green Bay to the Vikings 15, where Longwell split the uprights. It was Favre's 18th game with four or more touchdowns, second only to Dan

quote of the day

66 What we're seeing is hesitation on the death penalty, skepticism, reluctance. I do think there is some concern about the death penalty, and it's reflected in death sentences from juries. ??

> - Richard Dieter, executive director of the Death Penalty Information Center. The number of people sentenced to death reached a 30-year low in 2003.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): You won't get off easy if you overspend. You will face negative responses from both your colleagues and your family, so stick to your budget both professionally and TAURUS (April 20-May 20): The stars will shine brightly on you. Step into the spotlight, and voice your opinion. Love will entice you. Spend time with family.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): You will have plenty to chat about. Take care of the responsibilities of someone who can no longer do so for her- or himself. Money matters may be tight, but if you are thrifty, you'll do OK.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): This can be an exciting day for you if you share your feelings. Romance is highlighted. Make arrangements to do something to spruce up your looks.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Turn on your Leo charm, and you will make headway in the work force. Be gracious, and everyone will follow. If you are too aggressive, you will be cast aside.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): An opportunity to make a difference to a friend or a youngster is present. The more you do to help someone out, the better you will feel about yourself. Love is in

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Don't let anything stand in your way. Get your point heard or your ideas off the ground. Short trips will lead to information that will give you a solid base to work from.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Make phone calls or drop in to see people you respect in your industry. A lot can happen in a day if you hang out with the right peers. SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Get down to business, and make things happen. Don't let your personal life interfere with your professional responsibilities. Someone may try to damage your reputation.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): You may not be feeling up to par, but you must tend to your responsibilities before you can rest. It will be difficult to keep a secret, but if you don't, you'll face more problems AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Don't let anyone stand in your way. Dig deep and ask questions. You'll find the information you need to get ahead.
PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): The more you do, the better you will feel, but don't let anyone take advantage of your goodheartedness. Doing too much can be just as bad as not doing enough.
