The case:

The law that Bush flew to Washington from Texas to sign at 1:11 a.m. Monday night, which will limit the sale of pseudoephedrine, is expected to result in a fine. The city has yet to fine any businesses for being in violation of the law. The Hawkeye women, snubbed by the Los Angeles Times reporter who covered the game, had a 1-10 season.

The legal foundation of the law is based on the legal action of the Schindler family in Florida, which was removed to pass a law that Bush signed in 1996. The law would not require Terri Schiavo to be reconnected to an artificial feeding tube, which was removed in 1999. Terri Schiavo's husband, Michael Schiavo, argued that Schiavo's parent's, buoyed by a national wave of public opinion, would die within two days if they were not reinserted.

IOWA CITY CITY COUNCIL

Decide to council on lease

BY DREW KERR

The Iowa City City Council will formally dissolve itself and allow student-appointed members to sit in their seats as the July 15 meeting nears, ending one of the most contentious periods in the city's history.

"We are moving on," Mayor Marianne Hofer said Monday at the meeting that ended with the cancellation of the council's "organizational meeting." The council approved a resolution the night before to dissolve itself, according to city manager Betsy Smith, who read the resolution aloud at the meeting.

Smith said the council is no longer a legal entity, as a result of its dissolution.

Council members will have the opportunity to seek re-election for the same seat in the November election, she said.

The council was back in session Monday to conduct its "organizational meeting." As part of the meeting, the councilrens will take their seats and ask the city manager to open the meeting.

"We are not a city council," she said.

The council will then appoint a new councilperson to fill the seat vacated by outgoing student council president Daniel Head, who will not run for re-election.

The council also considered a resolution to dissolve itself, according to city manager Betsy Smith, who read the resolution aloud at the meeting.

Court turns down Moussaoui effort to question Qaeda officers

BY JAMES GERSTEINZANG

WASHINGTON — The Supreme Court on Monday rejected an effort by accused terrorist Zacarias Moussaoui to question three alleged Qaeda operatives as potential witnesses to his trial in connection with the 9/11 attacks.

As a result his trial, delayed by appeals, appeared to be back on track. Federal District Judge Louis Brandeis had said Moussaoui's trial could begin no sooner than 200 days after final Supreme Court action, meaning that it could not open in late September.

Moussaoui, the only person charged in connection with the terrorist attacks, has denied being part of the terrorist plot. If convicted, he could be sentenced to death.

The Justice Department said it would move to quickly probe a trial data. A spokesman said the court's rejection of the appeal "affirms our belief that the government can provide Zuscarios Moussaoui with a fair trial while still protecting national-security interests."

Moussaoui's lawyer, Paul Ducharme Jr., said he would appeal the court's high-court action. Moussaoui has argued that to prove his innocence, he needs access to three prisoners in U.S. custody who are alleged to be members of Al Qaeda.

U.S. officials have refused to make the prisoners available, arguing that continuing to hold them is necessary to protect national security.

WASHINGTON - The federal judge handling the trial of accused terrorist Zacarias Moussaoui had back on track. LIAISON A POSITIVE MOVE FOR UI STUDENTS AND CITY

The initiative, if passed, could be complemented by student participation on city commissions.

Today the Iowa City City Council will vote on whether to add a networking student council representative to its membership. If the measure is approved, which is likely, the council will be a victory for the Student Senate's two-year-old UI Student Government and a positive step for the UI as a whole.

In the past, networking student council representatives have added a student voice to the council, questioning its practicability and overall value. The proposal currently before the council, however, goes a long way toward addressing our concerns. Because the representative will be an awareness officer, he or she will be quite different from the networking student council representative, questioning its practicability and overall value. If Bush had told us more years ago of the terrorism threat, and in the years before the photos, he and the administration might have stopped it before it started. But this doesn’t have to be true. The more students vote down the road, the more the world will know that voting makes a difference.

LINDON, Neb.—Downs by Iowa with 21.6 seconds left on Monday night, its season dripping away like the seed in an hour glass, in front of 2,600 Comets fans on the face of a 30-year loss, Nebraska dropped the ball. Simply, Iowa’s Crystal Foltyn picked it up.

She darted down the floor and passed it to freshman Kristin Neubelt. With 10.5 seconds and one shot remaining, Foltyn hit.

“I kind of just read it,” said Smith, who led Iowa with 21 points.

Vondracek made one of two free throws, while Nebraska’s point was a way for the Bob Devaney Sports Center in Lincoln, the site of the game, the Hawkeyes put on a show to see if and when the Huskers would make a comeback attempt, but Iowa has remained in control of the game from the start.

The lead was particularly surprising considering that Iowa’s scoring leader, senior Jamie Cavey, missed the game with 15:41 remaining in the first half after her second foul.

The two girls were the only players for the Hawkeyes with at least 20 points in their previous game against Illinois State. Jamie Cavey had 21 points, and her teammate, Jamie Cavey, had 20 in the game.

“Jamie was a key player in that game,” said Iowa head coach Fran McCaffery. “She made some big shots in the second half and helped us win the game.”

McCaffery said Cavey’s absence had a positive effect on the team.

“I think we have a better understanding of what we need to do when Jamie is not in the game,” he said.

The Hawkeyes held the lead for nearly the entire game, winning the second round of the NIT, 71-67, in Lincoln in 1988 that there would be a three-game set of NCAA Tournament games between the two teams, and the Huskers are still looking for their first NCAA Tournament win.

The Hawkeyes are trying to make a second straight appearance in the NCAA Tournament this season.

Iowa State Faces a Tough Task in First Round of NCAA Tournament

BY JARED HOMAN

Iowa State's basketball season wasn't exactly over when it started January with an 89-65 victory over eighth-seeded Southern California in a second-round game Monday night.

Iowa State came out of a first-round loss to Oklahoma State in the Big 12 tournament with a 14-game winning streak, and they were rewarded with a trip to Minneapolis, noon Saturday. It'll be a quick turnaround for the sixth-seeded Cyclones, who face seventh-seeded Minnesota in the regional semifinals. Saturday's first game is scheduled for 10:15 a.m., and ISU's game is set for 2:15 p.m.

Minnesota has the program on the ropes, including four over Top 25 teams. It's not a surprise the Gophers are a 5-point underdog. ISU's record since 2001 is 30-2.

"It's a good opportunity," said Morgan. "If we're patient and relentless, we can continue to bring in "rebounds" in the arena."

The Cyclones started off the season with a 10-2 record, but they are now 19-11 overall and 8-9 in the Big 12. They've been playing their best basketball of the year in the Big 12 tournament and are coming off a first-round upset in the NCAA Tournament.

"I don't think many people expected us to have this success," said Iowa State's head coach, Fred Hoiberg. "We've continued to take steps forward as a team, and we've improved our defense significantly."

"We've been able to play defense in the second half of games, and that's been key to our success," said senior forward Georges Niang. "We've been playing with a lot of energy and intensity, and we've been able to capitalise on our mistakes."
University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee coach Bruce Pearl watched practice Monday in Milwaukee. Wisconsin-Milwaukee will face No. 1-ranked Illinois in the Sweet 16 on Thursday in Chicago.

MILWAUKEE — Before her weekend, Wisconsin-Milwaukee had never been known for being the school where the late Bruce Weber, Pitt-Minorca Wildcats coach, coached. For "Happy Days" aficionados, it's where before Cunninghams, Fonzie, Mork and Mindy, and Ralph Malph all hit the books where they weren't hanging out at Arnold's Drive-In.

Now, the No. 12 Panthers and their second-round NCAA Tournament run has the Milwaukee public racing to see the team in person. It's been like nothing the school where the late Potsie Weber, and Ralph Malph hit the books where they weren't hanging out at Arnold's Drive-In has ever seen.

The school's new national profile is due in part to the Bob Knight legend coach, but mostly friends and family, upon their triumphant return.

"I'm able to see a lot more players than before, and the school's doing an okay job," said Hank Pilgrim, who's been attending the last handful of games with a group of friends.

"It's been very exciting. I really haven't seen a lot of the things that he's been doing," said Ray Johnson, who's been attending the last handful of games with a group of friends.

"I'm a little nervous, but I still feel the support. I've gotten lots of words," said Bill McCants, who's been attending the last handful of games with a group of friends.

"I'm very excited. It's very cool," said Joe and the group picked out a yellow T-shirt, "I think everyone's happy but nervous, too." Other students need to the ticket office to put some money in for the 1,250 tickets made available to the school."

There are times when he sets up shop on the perimeter and other times when he takes residence inside the lane. Utah’s Andrew Bogut has been so elusive that NBA executives salaries of the past. And there are times when he’s had the game winning basket face out off the top of the game. "I think he’s a guy who just happens to need four minutes on the court and he’s got that," said Boar Utes.

Bogut said he would be playing this time of his life because he had an outside chance of making the All-Star team. "I think all his teammates understand that he’s probably one of the best players in the country and other times when he’s got to come in and help us get a win." Bogut said. "I think he’s a guy who just happens to need four minutes on the court and he’s got that," said Boar Utes.

Bogut made his way to Utah for his junior season, and he didn’t need the coaching that even his coach might tell him. "I think he’s a guy who just happens to need four minutes on the court and he’s got that," said Boar Utes.

Bogut will make that money because he's one of those players who can dominate in different ways without having a lot of the way of a supporting cast, something that Bogut could do in Utah. "I think he’s a guy who just happens to need four minutes on the court and he’s got that," said Boar Utes.

Bogut tied his season low with 18 points in the team’s 105-98 loss to the Cavaliers on Friday. "I think he’s a guy who just happens to need four minutes on the court and he’s got that," said Boar Utes.
