School Board reviews sites for new junior high

BY KELLY REHAN
The Iowa City School Board reviewed six sites for a new junior high school on Thursday to determine how best to use its overcrowded district's elementary-school population over.

Of six neighborhoods in the district, the Peet Westhaven and Van Allen areas will be affected, said Geoffrey Smith, a graduate researcher assistant in the UI geography department who

The meeting was the first step in creating "building plans" for a middle-school population over.

Iowa City Mayor Ellen Schollenberger said, "The school district is excited about the prospective student population and the direction the school district is taking with the area school."

Superintendent Terry Bissler said that the school district would have to continue its efforts to "build" population over.

With no public input, the decision to build the school is expected to be by the end of the year, said Bissler. The district's children will be in the new school before the school is completed.

The packed halls and board members may view students from comfortably in the new building as they go over the enrollment at Northwest Junior High.

A groundbreaking ceremony was expected for the new junior high school.

"There's a sense to not let the new junior high get too big too quickly," said board member Oscar Sten.

Over 500 students were enrolled at the future junior high school.

Ideally the new school would be 600 students and 200 teachers and board members would have to make that happen, Bissler said.

Board members have been warned to make the high school a success, while helping resolve other problems.

Vilsack signs tough meth bill

The new law allows only single packages of liquid medicine to be sold over-the-counter if the pseudoephedrine dosage contains fewer than 360 milligrams of pseudoephedrine. The measure will take effect May 21.

Iowa Gov. Tom Vilsack on Tuesday signs Senate File 168, a measure regulating substances that are presently in liquid form at the Iowa Statehouse.

Whether to screen for prostate cancer remains debatable as national organizations clash on the effectiveness of the procedscreening for prostate cancer because of new evidence about its link to prostate cancer.

In 1995, the U.S. Prov-

Cancer society favors screening.

"It is a fact that if you die of prostate cancer, if you have a positive PSA, if you have a step-upgrading of cancer, if you have a biopsy-confirmed disease, then you have a risk of dying of prostate cancer," Lynch said.

Most men are generally unaware of starting at age 50 of the cancer or earlier if they are more prone to developing the disease such as if they have a history of cancer in their family or on one side.

Meanwhile, other UHC can-

The Minnesota killing echoed the nation's worst school shooting since Columbine, and it was apparently unprovoked.

BY JOSHUA FREED

The Minnesota shooting was just one of several large-scale violent incidents that have occurred in recent years. The first was the shooting at Columbine High School in 1999, which left 12 students and teachers dead. Since then, there have been numerous other incidents, including the shooting at Sandy Hook Elementary School in 2012, which resulted in the deaths of 20 children and six adults. These incidents have sparked a national conversation about gun violence and school safety.
An issue that won’t go away

The Daily Iowan Editorial Board talked with two representatives of the Stepping Up Project after meeting several weeks ago with the co-beds of the Iowa City Alcohol Advisory Board.

Jim Clayton, the coordinator of Stepping Up, and Sarah Hansen, the coordinator of Health and a Stepping Up Project participant, both said there should be an ordinance that would restrict Iowa City bars to patrons aged 21 and older. They said this would create an adequate environment for the downtown drinking culture while continuing to allow 18-year-olds into licensed establishments.

The question at stake isn’t whether an alcohol problem exists, but rather, what approach should be taken to address it. While we maintain that a 21-only ordinance is the answer, we were impressed by the thoughtfulness and well-grounded arguments we heard Tuesday.

The concerns of Clayton and Hansen center on a community and university whose reputation and attractiveness are suffering at the hands of students who drink alcohol excessively, solve and disrupting the lifestyles of others. They argue that the key to reducing this problem is to limit access, which will compel students to find time-away activities in which they can interact with their friends in an environment more suited to curing human disease. The No. 21 Iowa softball team opens its home schedule today with a doubleheader against Illinois State.

Iowa's starting lineup will be announced before the game.

The Hawkeyes are expected to send Karen Robins to the mound for both games.

Robins is 6-0 this season with a 1.45 ERA.

Iowa's offense will be led by junior center fielder Sarah Hamilton.

Hamilton leads the team in batting average (.397) and on-base percentage (.468).

The Hawkeyes will face a tough challenge in Illinois State, which is 1-1 this season.

The Illini are expected to start sophomore pitcher Emily Timmons.

Timmons is 2-1 with a 2.00 ERA.

Iowa and Illinois State have met twice before, with the Illini winning both games.

The Hawkeyes are looking to improve their overall record to 2-1.

The first game is scheduled for 1 p.m., with the second game set for 3 p.m.

The games will be played at Duane Banks Field in Iowa City.

The weather is expected to be sunny with a high of 75 degrees.

Iowa has won its first two games this season, but has struggled in recent years against Illinois State.

Iowa is 1-4 in its last five meetings with the Illini.

The Hawkeyes are looking to end their losing streak against Illinois State.

Coach Jonathan Blum says his team is ready to face the challenge.

"We're excited to have Illinois State in town," Blum said.

"They're a tough team, and we're looking forward to the challenge."

AP selects All-Americans

Andrew Bogut was just one of seven players on the college basketball scene to start this fall, not even meeting an honorable mention in the preseason All-America balloting.

All that has changed now that the 7-foot sophomore from Australia. The University of Utah announced Tuesday that senior Bogut showed off his versatility he has been getting 45 first-team votes, enough for a seventh place when the college basketball season started, and earn-ning an honorable mention in the preseason All-America balloting.

Players plagued by injuries

INJURIES

"It's kind of the nature of the beast after a season like last year. We had an unbelievable number of injuries, as we'll all agree," Ferentz said.

Most of the injuries have come due to the explosive nature of the offense, especially Schauzer and Young at the tight end positions, which requires the beginning of running without full physical strength come fall practices.

Ferentz said, "They'll be ready for the start of the season. The sooner, the better." The Iowa running game was ranked No. 16 in the nation last season during the Wisconsin game, when he suffered an abdominal strain. "The injury isn't serious and we don't think we've checked it out enough," Ferentz said to the media.

"I think that's pretty amazing that he was asymptomatic for the game," Ferentz said.

Iowa's Southman, who played well in last year's big win over Michigan, said his injury, which occurred Jan. 1, is the kind of injury that just requires rest. While the injury isn't serious, it does mean he is not in the process of returning to full strength.

Pascal, who played well in this spring's short season, is expected to take on a bigger role than the other AFC victims when the season opens.

Ferentz said, "He's done a lot of things. He's not had any bad luck. That's the kind of injury we've had this week. He's the guy who has every injury that we've had this week."

Ferentz is not sure if he will play any chances with those guys, "I don't want to risk the guys, and I don't want to risk the season, and I don't want to risk the spring. We want those guys to be healthy when we get going in August."

Sanders was also injured last season during the Wisconsin game, when he suffered an abdominal strain. "The injury isn't serious and we don't think we've checked it out enough," Ferentz said. "It's kind of the injury that just requires rest. I think we've checked it out where it's not a nervous system, but it does mean he is not in the process of returning to full strength."

Renovations on schedule at Kinnick

KINNICK

Construction crews have been building, digging and moving the ground both to the east and southeast of Kinnick, and the new facility should be completed in about eight weeks. Some of the construction for the new press box will go on throughout the season.

"On the west side of Kinnick, a lot is happening underground that you don't see," Meyer said. "They have drilled all except about 21 of the support columns. They're now going to build all but two, and they are underground because they will support the west press box."

Meyer was quick to stress that the parking situation to the east of the stadium will be chaotic this upcoming season. Everything from the press box to the stadium will be moved into the Kinnick Bowl. "It's been very stressful on both the stadium and the press box," Meyer said.

While the west side will be about 80 percent done by the end of the season, the east side will not be complete before the season starts.

Bonds: I may be out for season because of injury

Tomoean Moeahn, who has had five surgeries, said Bonds probably was just having a bad day.

"Today, he was not very optimistic. I think it was one of those days when they don't think he's going to make it," Bonds said. "He's been doing really well."
