They've got the world on a swing

The UI Swing Dance Club's 10 participants swing the night away in the Field House in a gathering geared toward putting their best foot forward.

BY SOHEIL REZAYAZDI
SPECIAL TO THE DAILY IOWAN

The flurry of tapping feet across the hardwood floor echoes through the room, though an amateur couple shuffles idly in the corner. Michael Brafford, the UI Swing Dance Club's president, notices the lethargic duo on his rounds from couple to couple.

"Swing is supposed to be crazy," he yells with an over-the-top intensity, kicking and flailing his arms to gales of laughter. Brass instruments blare from overhead speakers, as "Violent Love" by Indigo Swing sets the pace for the dancers below.

The night, as they say, is in full swing.

Swirling about the floor and fine-tuning their footwork, the 10 participants gathered at the UI Field House on a recent evening share one common interest: finding all the right moves.

Swing dancing, a style that emerged during the Roaring '20s, resurfaced in the mid-90s after decades of shifting musical trends. Set to a contemporary jazz backdrop, dances such as the Charleston and the Lindy hop now fill dance halls, making recent cameos in Gap commercials and the 1996 comedy/drama Swingers.

Most dancers in the group smile with self-conscious amusement as they lead — or follow — their partners through the routines. Others look stiff, their faces filled with anxiety at the thought of an embarrassing misstep before the intimidating, all-seeing mirrors that line the walls.

"This is a lot harder than it was two years ago," Megan Harper, 21, said as she stumbled through her first steps since 2003.

Accused in rape trial describes incident

BY TRACI FINCH
THE DAILY IOWAN

Accused rapist and former UI freshman Michael Jason Madej would have liked to have known the name of the woman he had sex with last fall, he said during a half-hour testimony Thursday that recounted how he met his alleged victim.

After consuming more than 10 shots at the Sports Column, 12 S. Dubuque St., Madej began to walk home alone to his Hillcrest Residence Hall room on the night of Oct. 15, 2004, when a blonde woman with "a pretty face" approached him at the intersection of Iowa Avenue and Clinton Street.

"She asked me my name," Madej, 18, told jurors during the fourth day of his third-degree sexual-abuse trial. "We kept on walking through the Pentacrest and back to my dorm room."

The 19-year-old woman testified on Tuesday that shortly after arriving at Milio's, 20 S. Clinton St., she does not remember anything until she woke up naked on Madej's futon.

Madej detailed how the pair held hands and kissed on the walk back to Hillcrest. They discussed attending a football game together, he said. Before they retired to his third-floor room, the woman vomited into the floor's drinking fountain.

Freshman didn't let tumor stop him

BY SEUNG MIN KIM
THE DAILY IOWAN

The smile never went away.

Whether it was on the basketball court with his floppy dark blond hair waving in the breeze, on the golf course during the summer months, or through difficult cancer treatments, a perpetual grin always appeared on UI freshman Trent Miner's face, family and friends remember.

Miner, 19, died early Wednesday after a three-year battle with a brain tumor that eventually spread to his spinal cord.

Friends and family recall the Perry, Iowa, native as a determined inspiration who refused to let cancer dictate his life.

"Nobody ever had a bad word to say about him," said Perry High School senior Mike Stout, a childhood friend of Miner. "That was Trent. He was definitely a kid that everyone loved."

Miner is survived by his parents, Danny and Joelle, and his siblings — Calvin, a UI senior, and Mindy, a nursing student in Perry.

News of Miner's death shook the central Iowa town of 8,000, a tightly knit community that never failed to pitch in after first hearing about Miner's diagnosis.

"It was a great feeling to see that everybody was pulling for him," said Perry High School Principal Dan Marburger. "He was a very humble kid, and it was very hard for him to acknowledge all of the people that helped him, not realizing he was so special to everyone."

When Miner needed to visit the UI Hospitals and Clinics daily for radiation therapy during a six-week span, more than 30 Perry residents volunteered to steer the RV — dubbed the "Trentmobile" — specially purchased for the trip, even though it meant a 3:30 a.m. departure time.

Papers: John Paul at 80 contemplated resigning

BY ARTHUR MAX
ASSOCIATED PRESS

VATICAN CITY — Pope John Paul II, weighed down by illness and age, reflected on his possible resignation as he turned 80, according to his last will and testament, which was published Thursday. The pope also wrote of tormented times for himself and the church and left instructions for his notes to be burned.

The document, written in several entries over 22 years, provides extraordinary insight into the pope's thinking in the twilight of his life as he reflected on death and his legacy and as he prayed for the "necessary strength" to continue his mission.

"The times in which we live are unutterably difficult and disturbed," he wrote in 1980, according to the official Vatican translation from Polish. "The path of the church has also become difficult and tense ... both for the faithful and for pastors."

BROADCAST OF POPE'S FUNERAL

All major networks will cover the event at 3 a.m. CDT today; NBC will rebroadcast the coverage at 10 a.m.

John Paul's funeral today promised to be one of the largest Western religious gatherings of modern times, conducted with the pomp of an ancient liturgy and attended by royalty, political power brokers, and multitudes of the faithful.

Thronged of pilgrims — an estimated 2 million since the pope's body went on public view Monday — had filed past the pope's bier in St. Peter's Basilica before its towering bronze doors were closed late Thursday. Some 4 million people have flooded into the Italian capital to be nearer to the pope before his funeral and burial in the Vatican grotto.

Peter Dejong/Associated Press

Some of the millions of the faithful swelling into Rome rest next to St. Peter's Basilica, at the Vatican, on Thursday. The funeral of John Paul II will be held today.

Pilgrims staked out positions with sleeping bags and blankets just outside St. Peter's Square, getting as close they could to the scene of the funeral — even though they will see little more than the same images on giant television screens that could be seen elsewhere in the city.

Prof: U.S.-India relations better

BY HEATHER LOEB
THE DAILY IOWAN

A leading Indian specialist on U.S. foreign policy said Thursday the relationship between India and the United States has changed since the 9/11 attacks, with both good and bad results.

"I think the relationship has moved a lot after 9/11," said Kousar Azam, a professor of political science at Osmania University in Hyderabad, India.

Azam spoke to a crowd of approximately 70 people at the Congregational Church, 30 N. Clinton St., in a lecture titled "U.S.-India Relations after 9/11," which the Iowa City Foreign Relations Council sponsored.

In 1999, the United States and India moved toward a discourse in trust, she said, which was a departure from the "dialogue of the deaf" during the Cold War years.

Azam said Robert Blackwill, the U.S. ambassador to India, went to the country in 2000 with one big idea in mind that "rejoiced the Indians and pleased the Americans" — he wanted to have the United States deal with countries in South Asia as individuals, not as a group.

"Around that time, relations between India and the U.S. took a turn for the better that had never been seen in the last 54 years," Azam said. "Most of the problems had been resolved, and [the minor irritants] were being talked about."

Before the shifts could take root, the attacks on the World Trade Center occurred, creating myriad changes.

One strong, short-term concern of the United States was to prevent a war between India and Pakistan.

"With a visible conflict in South Asia, the efforts of the U.S. to tackle terrorism would have been hampered," Azam said. Another goal of the United States was to unite India and Pakistan in the collective war against terrorism and generate efforts in both countries to fight against it.

A long-term ambition was to find a permanent solution to the problem in the state of Kashmir, a territory that both India and Pakistan have claimed.

While Azam said Indians were happy with certain aspects of the current relationship, she also highlighted some areas that caused discontent.

"The first thing which the Indians have unhappiness with is the infinite unilateralism in the foreign-policy actions of the United States of America," she said.

Azam also criticized the U.S. sale of weapons to Pakistan and possibly India.

It's a problem of two rivals being armed by the same source, she said — it's like saying "so I give F-16s to Pakistan and F-18s to India — you two fight, and let me know which works better."

Wal-Mart foes push rejection of rezoning

BY ELAINE FABIAN
THE DAILY IOWAN

A resident asked the Planning and Zoning Commission on Thursday to "consider the user" before agreeing to rezone an area that would give the go-ahead for Wal-Mart to build a supercenter.

The residents voiced their opposition to rezone 51 acres of land off Highway 1, 21 of which is to be sold to Wal-Mart for the new facility. The land must be rezoned from public intensive commercial to community commercial before Wal-Mart can move into the space.

On March 1, by a 5-2 vote, the Iowa City City Council agreed to sell 21.76 acres near the Iowa City Airport for $3.1 million to Wal-Mart. All 30 residents who spoke at a public hearing before the vote voiced opposition to the sale.

In the following weeks, Gary Sanders, an Iowa City resident and activist, created an organization to keep Wal-Mart — "Wal-Zilla," as he describes it — from building a supercenter, which Wal-Mart officials are expecting will replace the current Wal-Mart off Highway 1.

"This is a done deal," Sanders said pessimistically about the purchase, adding that a small ray of hope remains for the Planning and Zoning Commission not to recommend that the council approve the rezoning.

People opposing the corporation fear the loss of small local businesses and the community's uniqueness. Others oppose the corporation as a whole because of its alleged human-rights and labor-rights violations and reported lack of living wage paid to employees.

Councilors said they approved the proposal because they believed the city did not have the right to decide what businesses could come to Iowa City, and they expressed a desire to sell the land in question.

Nationwide, opponents to Wal-Mart are also rallying efforts to stop the corporation's growth. Approximately 50 groups, including environmentalists and community organizations, have begun lobbying in 26 states.

Wal-Mart is stepping up its response. At the company's media conference this week, officials announced plans to strengthen the corporation's campaign against negative publicity.

Newsweek covered the story of Iowa City denizens in 1989 who fought to keep the town Wal-Mart free, calling the town one of the first communities enraged by the corporation's expansion into smaller towns.

The organization will hold a public meeting April 12 at 7 a.m. at the Iowa City Public Library, 123 S. Linn St., to organize against the rezoning proposal.

Judge refuses to dismiss Pierce charge

A 5th District Court judge in Dallas County denied Pierre Pierce's request to dismiss his assault with intent to commit sexual abuse Thursday, according to online court records.

The former leading scorer for the Hawkeye basketball team was charged with three felonies and a misdemeanor after an alleged Jan. 27 incident with a female friend in West Des Moines.

According to court records, Pierce could have become enraged with the woman after finding text messages from her new boyfriend. He allegedly threatened her with a knife and refused to leave her townhouse. After she fled, he tore apart the residence, records allege.

Assault with intent to commit sexual abuse does not fit the alleged victim's statements that Pierce only touched her chest, Pierce's attorneys argued. According to court documents, they claimed that breast fondling alone does not constitute a sexual offense. Prosecutors, however, contend the woman believed Pierce was going to rape her.

As a result of the allegations, the Westmont, Ill., native was booted from the team. Pierce has pleaded not guilty to the charges; he is scheduled to stand trial May 10.

City eyes land west of landfill

The Iowa City City Council gave Public Works Director Rick Fosse

the go-ahead on Tuesday to begin negotiations for a land-purchase agreement with residents living west of the Iowa City landfill.

The city purchased the current site in 1999 with plans to dump there for 25 years. However, with 13 to 20 years left for the site, there is only enough soil left to cover the waste for five to seven years. Purchasing additional property will provide more soil.

Anticipating such a problem, the council evaluated the land surrounding the landfill in 1999 and found the land west of the site to be the best choice for expansion because of its proximity.

Mary Hebl, who owns the land west of the landfill and has lived there since the 1920s, attended the council's regular meeting Tuesday with her family to voice her opposition to the purchase.

"I don't like to see agriculture land go into the landfill," she said. "It has been in the family. My ancestors had it."

If Hebl refuses to sell the land to the city, the city can condemn the land and use it.

The city will have the land appraised before further negotiations.

Group to raise alarm about possible draft

Hints of a military draft are all around us, and if something isn't done, the government sending citizens to war will become a reality.

That's what the UI Antiwar Committee said Thursday evening during "Is it getting drafty in here?," a discussion about the possibility of a draft.

"It is something that gets very little media attention, and it's very critical," said discussion moderator Brian Gryzlak.

The nine UI students and community members attending the discussion expressed the same sentiment: The possibility of a draft needs to be addressed and protested.

Presenter Michael Rack said the government's need to fill vacancies on draft boards and national leaders calling for more troops are signs of an approaching draft.

"If you look at U.S. policy, it's not a matter of if (the draft will be reinstated), it's a matter of when," he said.

The group said a de facto draft already exists among the impoverished, noting that low-income people sign up for the military in high numbers to receive the largest benefits ever offered by the military.

"The rich have always been able to weasel out of it — they always have, and they always will," said Rack, a member of International Socialist Organization.

Some members of Congress have proposed reinstating the draft as a means to rally opposition to the war in Iraq, he said.

"That's not the way to build a movement," he said. "It's like saying we want more people to get evicted from their houses to get rent control."

Troops are being stretched too thin and forced to go on second and third tours, he said, because the military is calling up retired soldiers and raising the age limit to serve.

"These guys signed up to be weekend warriors, and now they're facing more than they would have imagined," Rack said. "The big debate is whether the volunteer army can do what people say they can do."

Although the UI Antiwar Committee is only around 5 months old, it has gained numerous signatures on petitions against the war in Iraq and military recruiters on college campuses.

The group is planning demonstrations but recognizes the lack of student involvement.

"We need to be doing [more] stuff on campus," Rack said.

UIHC aids in papillomavirus study

BY JESSICA SEVESKA
THE DAILY IOWAN

UI scientists, working with cancer researchers worldwide, have helped uncover a vaccine for four types of the human papillomavirus in women, a condition that can cause genital warts and cervical cancer.

Assisting in the study, which included institutes in Brazil and Europe, UI Hospitals and Clinics researchers concluded that a combination vaccine called Gardasil significantly reduces occurrences of papillomavirus, which has infected 20 million Americans. The disease is also linked to abnormal Pap smears.

"This really is an advance in women's health," said Kevin Ault, a UI associate professor of gynecology who led the study at UIHC.

The vaccine was tested on 98 women at UIHC, 552 worldwide.

The five-year study, led by the Ludwig Institute for Cancer Research in Brazil, was funded by Merck Research Laboratories.

Gardasil was designed to prevent infections from four types of papillomavirus (types 6, 11, 16, and 18). Papillomavirus 16 and 18 are linked with 70 percent of cervical-cancer cases, and papillomavirus 6 and 11 are connected to 90 percent of all genital-warts cases. There are 100 types of papillomavirus, Ault said.

Fifty percent of participants in this study received placebos, and the others were given Gardasil. The research subjects received three injections of one of the vaccines and were studied for two and a half years after injection.

Researchers found that women who received the vaccine were 90 percent less likely to have infections of the four types of papillomavirus. The vaccine was also 100 percent effective in preventing cervical cancer and genital warts, they reported.

Gardasil is now being tested in a third clinical trial with 25,000 research participants worldwide. Ault said the vaccine is expected to go to the Food and Drug Administration for approval.

"We're hoping it will become available for women soon," he said.

Kathi Di Nicola, the director of marketing and communications for Planned Parenthood, said Thursday that the organization is excited at the prospect of papillomavirus prevention. She said Planned Parenthood remains optimistic but realistic, waiting until the vaccine receives FDA approval.

"We would love to offer this to our patients," she said. "This would be revolutionary."

Player's father shoots high-school coach

CANTON, Texas (AP) — The father of a high-school football player shot and wounded the team's coach Thursday, then fled in a truck loaded with weapons and tried to kill himself by slashing his wrists, authorities said.

Jeffrey Doyle Robertson had been barred from Canton High and told not to attend football games after several confrontations, including "shoving and verbally abusing" coaches at the annual football picnic, Canton Police Chief Mike Echols said.

Robertson, 45, went to the school just after classes started and shot coach Gary Joe Kinne in the chest, apparently with a .45-caliber pistol, police said. The coach, who also is the school's athletics director, was airlifted to a hospital in nearby Tyler, and a family spokesman said he was in critical condition.

Accused shooter to undergo 2nd insanity evaluation

An Iowa City man awaiting trial on an attempted-murder charge was ordered Thursday to undergo a second insanity evaluation after his attorney requested the examination.

Wayne Saterfiel, 25, is accused of shooting clerk Jacob Broadrick three times at close range with a 12-gauge shotgun at the Adult Marketplace, 440 Kirkwood Ave., on July 13, 2004.

Saterfiel, who suffers from an unspecified mental illness, was sent to Iowa Medical & Classification Center in Oakdale on Aug. 16 for an evaluation to determine if he was competent to stand trial. He was declared competent and returned to the Johnson County Jail on Sept. 15. Saterfiel's attorney filed a notice of defense of insanity, irresistible impulse, and diminished responsibility Feb. 25.

A District Court judge had ordered Saterfiel to remain at the Oakdale prison until his trial, but on a letter dated Jan. 21, the facility's directors sent a letter to the judge explaining that they had no room for Saterfiel.

The Johnson County Sheriff's Office has since been ordered to "make all necessary arrangements to have [Saterfiel's] mental health monitored and treated by mental health-care professionals at UIHC."

Free Clinic head says facility needs funds

Sandy Pickup, a co-director of the Free Medical Clinic, told the Johnson County Board of Supervisors on Thursday that her clinic is busier than ever and is in continuous need of funding from the county to remain a "model" free clinic in the state.

"We are seeing greater numbers of people who use us as their primary health-care provider," she said. "We had approximately 8,500 volunteer hours donated last year. That would have cost more than $300,000."

The Iowa City-based clinic is one of approximately 25 in the state that specialize in treating patients without financial or insurance resources to afford privatized care, she said. She added that many patients who come to her facility suffer from chronic health problems — such as diabetes or hypertension — for which they have received little or no previous treatment.

"People coming in for chronic illnesses are younger [than they used to be]," she said. "More and more people don't even know what they have."

Supervisor Mike Lehman said the clinic, which the board funds, is under a five-year block grant that is a necessary vehicle for promoting early awareness.

Indie hip-hop from the land of Conor Oberst

Hip-hop artist Mars Black is featured on Omaha indie rocker Conor Oberst's new label, Team Love Records.

Hip-hop at its finest straight from the streets of Omaha, Neb.

Normally, that wouldn't make any sense. I mean, you can have a puddle in the desert and call yourself the best swimmer. However, with the copious amount of press the indie mecca has received, it is no surprise that Brooklyn-born Mars Black and his debut album, Folks Music, have skyrocketed.

Folks Music is the first rap release from Team Love Records, the sister label to Saddle Creek Records, but it won't be the last. Black's label mate, Team Rigge, has a record coming out later this year.

Avoiding hip-hop clichés such as cars, money, and women, Black raps about struggle, loss, and redemption. Cleverly and successfully mixing gritty rap with folk storytelling, Folks Music is like nothing you have ever heard on top-40 radio — not even close. Black, a self-proclaimed indie rapper, uses his lyrics to tell a story. A story from the streets of Omaha, as any native can tell you, isn't always pretty.

Citing Bob Dylan as one of his inspirations, it is apparent where his storytelling derived from, and it is an interesting twist on what the godfather of folksingers has already perfected. The dirty underbelly of the town is apparent on the track, "In the Street," an ode to a friend who died.

However, as brutally honest as his lyrics may be, the album still has its upbeat songs. "Spruce Vayne" is a rally call of sorts that will make you want to get up, grab your balls, and throw your fist in the air. Producer E. Babbs is the cherry on top of this album. Black did what he knows how to do, and Babbs took it to a whole new level.

Black's lyrics and ability to make them clear are his strong point on the album, making even his corny lines such as, "We come from Nebraska, all we got is beef," a little more forgivable.

A few of the most impressive tracks on the album, "Rollin Deep," "Scotch on the Rocks," and "Year of the Tiger" prove that Black can spit rhymes like a true aficionado while keeping his credibility as a lyricist.

The entire album is available for download at the label's website, www.team-love.com — something Team Love does with each release.

Rapping like a Blood in a room full of Crips, Black stands alone in his game of genuine hip-hop, and I recommend everyone listen, because this story has a good ending.

Thriving through word-of-mouth

BY TONY A. SOLANO
THE DAILY IOWAN

Local musician Scottie Long used to spend hours stapling up posters and handing out fliers to promote his shows. He has seen a substantial growth in his fan base this semester, but it has less to do with his feverish papering of Iowa City than it does his newest and most effective marketing technique: the Facebook.

"I got the idea because there were all these fan clubs for national artists and I figured, I'm a local guy, maybe people would want to join my fan club," Long said. "It's not really a fan club anyway; that's just the title."

The Facebook is an online website that allows people from colleges throughout the nation to connect through the common interests that are listed in their personal profiles. In January, Long created a Facebook group called "Scottie Long Fan Club," which now has 568 members. He feels the Facebook has been an effective tool in getting people to recognize his name.

In addition to saving money and reaching more people, he said, the time he saves by not having to pass out fliers allows him to focus on his music, which he describes as singer/songwriter acoustic rock. Although the Facebook has been effective, he still believes in the power of word-of-mouth.

"I could hand people fliers 20 times, and they'd throw it in the garbage every time," he said. "They'd know my name and what I do, but they might never come to a show. But if one of their friends tells them it's a great time, then that person would come to the show."

Originally from Elmhurst, Ill., Long is a junior at UI and uses his black, curly afro hair as a trademark. However, he didn't pick up his first guitar until the spring of 2002. He began creating songs out of poems he had written, and he now has over 25 original songs.

"I suppose it's a disadvantage because I haven't played as long, but it just motivates me to practice and learn more," he said. "I just have to be thankful for what I have and move forward with it. You've got to start somewhere; I just started a little late."

He added that he feels his late blooming has allowed him to stay open-minded when creating music because he still feels he has much to learn. Long released his only album so far, Tell Me About Today, in August 2003, and it has sold more than 400 copies.

"At first, I would put together a lyric and a progression and call it done, but then I realized that I don't really believe in the song as much as I should," Long said. "Now, I don't write as many songs, I just keep working on one song for a while until I'm confident with it. I have songs that sound like blues rock, and I also have songs that sound like typical pop-rock or indie rock."

His album was very political, he said, analyzing such topics as drugs, war, and the media. This summer, he will return to the studio to record an EP to be released in August.

"I write about things that affect my life," he said. "If something really touches me emotionally, I go home and start putting together harmonies and melodies. I think that I have to be moved emotionally to believe in a song, and I think that being an emotional person is what led me to songwriting."

His mainstream influences are reflected in the songs he chooses to cover, which include songs by the Rolling Stones, Bob Dylan, Bob Marley, and Nirvana. Long said he doesn't rewrite the songs he covers, but that he likes to interject his own style when playing them.

COMMENTARY

A need for speed

Putting Iowa's proposed interstate speed-limit increase into perspective

ERIK

America's interstate-highway system, originally justified in part as a means to quickly evacuate cities in the event of a nuclear attack, have become invaluable tools for those who seek to cross the nation's countryside. From my experience, Interstate 80's direct connection between Iowa City and Lincoln, Neb., is about the only efficient way to get from here to there — which is unfortunate, because I don't like cars that much.

Leaving aside the trouble one can get into while trying to find someplace to park them (if there were any fairness in the world, someone would have invented a fold-up vehicle like George Jetson's by now), spending hours on end staring at a stretch of road is one of the less enjoyable means of travel. The knowledge that any number of events could result in tremendous expense, injury, or death doesn't make it much more enjoyable. So as a driver, I wouldn't mind being able to speed up and get the trip over with a bit sooner, though at some point the added peril does cancel that feeling out.

As the Iowa Legislature grapples with the question of whether to raise the state's speed limit on rural interstates from 65 to 70 mph, opponents can find no shortage of ways in which it will make Iowa's roads more dangerous. Physics does dictate that the faster a car is traveling, the harder it is to maneuver or stop. But if you can't safely control a vehicle at 70 mph, then you probably shouldn't be driving it at 65 mph, either. The skill and responsible behavior of the motorist is a more significant factor here.

The same bill that would raise the speed limit would also substantially raise the fines for speeding, which could arguably bring down the speed of motorists on the road despite the higher limit. (My own unscientific observations have led me to think that motorists travel faster in Iowa than they do in Nebraska, where the interstate speed limit is 75 mph but speeding fines are considerably higher.) This puts law-abiding citizens in a bit of a quandary, because they are regularly passed by vehicles, including commercial trucks, traveling 10 or 15 mph faster than they are. And being passed by a semi is an experience I'm not fond of at all. The greater variation in vehicle speeds could arguably make Iowa's roads less safe.

Of course, one might see results simply by increasing fines and leaving the speed limit alone. And some drivers will continue to push the envelope. After all, what's the point of having a new Cadillac that can make 0 to 60 in under five seconds if you're not going to try it out? But Nebraska's interstate speed limit has been 75 mph for eight years, I've been driving on the interstate there for the last five, and the state is far from a deathtrap. (Between 2001 and 2004, it averaged 7.5 fatalities on rural interstates.) And given the size of Iowa, an extra 5 mph could cut half an hour off the trip from here to Lincoln, and I'm all in favor of spending less time on the road.

Critics of the higher speed limit are right to worry about drivers being encouraged to speed even faster, but that's an enforcement problem. Laws shouldn't be built around the assumption that they will be broken — unless there's anything inherently disastrous about taking the speed limit to 70 mph, the state shouldn't get too hung up with reading drivers' minds.

Risky medicine

In 1994, Bill Clinton proclaimed the era of big government to be over. Perhaps a more appropriate pronouncement would have been that the era of personal responsibility was over. Starting with Clinton himself (who, after using a White House intern for sexual gratification, blamed the subsequent public outrage on a Vast Right-Wing Conspiracy), the trend has accelerated over the past decade, including pampered celebrities confusing public outrage over their antiwar statements with the constrictions of the First Amendment. Then we come to the plaintiffs' trial lawyers, who see dollar signs in the stains of spilled McDonald's coffee.

ROBERT
SCHNEIDER

Consider the current state of medical malpractice. With increasing frequency of trivial lawsuits filed against doctors, the cost of defending them has led to soaring malpractice insurance rates. Unable to pay such outlandish premiums, doctors have quit providing high-risk procedures or simply left tort-friendly states altogether (the New Jersey Hospital Association, for one, in 2002 reported an exodus of ob-gyn doctors from that state because of rising premiums). Obstetricians, the favorite victim of the millionaire "populist" John Edwards, are the hardest hit: The American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists reports that one out of every seven members have quit practicing, as malpractice premiums eclipse $100,000 a year. Insurers themselves are not immune to the veritable gold-mine that constitutes medical lawsuits today: St. Paul Companies, the largest medical-malpractice insurer, left the industry entirely in 2002 after incurring over $1 billion in losses.

If only it were big businesses bearing the brunt of these costs. Doctors, whose hands are forced by these lawsuits, have begun ordering unnecessary tests to safeguard against legal action. These costs are passed along to the consumer: Unnecessary tests simply add to the pile of bills insurance companies must pay, resulting in higher health insurance premiums for the average family. This is to say nothing of the decreasing availability of certain medical procedures in certain malpractice-friendly states. A July 25, 2002, Health and Human Services report chronicles this phenomenon; one specific example is the exodus of obstetricians from rural Mississippi towns, forcing expectant mothers to drive across state lines to Memphis, Tenn., to receive care.

Certainly the Democrats know which side their bread is buttered on. Despite the rising tide of lawsuits, the tremendous cost to the average American, and the declining availability of certain high-risk medical procedures, Democrats have opposed tort reform at every opportunity. It is worth noting that the Trial Lawyers' Association was the largest donor to the Democratic Party in the last full election cycle, and that 86 percent of John Edwards' Senate campaign contributions came from personal-injury lawyers. I will leave it to the reader to draw conclusions.

Perhaps the grossest display of greed is the spectacle ensuing from the class-action lawsuit filed by 46 states against tobacco companies in 1998. Common sense dictates that those who engage in risky behavior (such as smoking, drinking, or unprotected sex) do so at their own personal risk. This paradigm, intuitive to virtually everyone except plaintiffs' attorneys and the judiciary, was turned on its head by the astounding sums of money awarded to the states, roughly $206 billion, to compensate their smoking "victims." The plaintiffs' lawyers, who cloak their rapacity with claims of altruism, made off with $1.25 billion in fees — and that's just the lawyers representing California. Florida attorneys received 25 percent of the state's $11.8 billion settlement, which equates to approximately $200 million per attorney.

Conservatives, to whom increasing government regulation is anathema, have correctly perceived that the rash of class-action and medical malpractice lawsuits threatens to undermine health-care practices and small businesses nationally. As it is with the prevalence of steroids in major-league baseball, should the plaintiffs' trial lawyers attempt to regulate themselves, tort reform legislation would be needless. Yet the freedom of our legal system, married with the childish urge to blame someone! anyone! for self-catalyzed personal destruction, breeds a climate too tempting (and lucrative) for many individuals to pass up. Which is why the government, via tort-reform legislation, has to stick its snout in the matter, a task it undertakes with the increasing approval of the electorate. ■

Rome groaned under the weight of visitors. Side streets were clogged in a permanent pedestrian rush hour, most kids with backpacks. Tent sprang up to take the spill from hotels. Hawkers jacked prices of everything from bottled water to papal trinkets.

"You really have to love this," Nathanael Valdenaire, a Frenchman who slept on the ground in a sleeping bag along with his sisters.

As dignitaries poured into Rome's security agencies — stered by NATO surveillance craft high overhead — cranked their defenses against ever from terrorism to unruly crowd.

Rome authorities planned to lock down the city. Saturday night, vehicle was banned from the city. Air space was closed, and aircraft batteries outside were on alert. Naval patrolled both the Mediterranean coast and the River near Vatican City, the sovereign city-state enclaved by the Italian capital.

A champion of peace

With all due respect to Scott Nichols (letters, DI, April 6), the presidential order was not necessarily directed at the leader of the Catholic Church but rather directed at a head of state (the Vatican).

In 26 years of rule, there was never a world leader so devoted to peace as was Pope John Paul II. Not only did he help bring the Cold War to an end, but he was always a champion of the poor, the unfortunate, and children. He championed peace everywhere he went, becoming the first pope to visit communist Cuba and visit a mosque (during a trip to Syria) in an attempt to improve relations with the Islamic world. Nichols may think that the presidential order was directed at the figurehead of the Catholic world, but in reality, it was directed at a great leader who strongly preached peace on a global level for 25 years of his life.

Bill Schierbrock

Thanks for the humor

I want to congratulate Brandon Ledford for his hilarious tongue-in-cheek letter to the editor in the April 6 Daily Iowan edition. The earnestness with which Ledford dismisses Pope John Paul II as a "religious-right clone" is nothing short of comic genius.

And then there is the part where Ledford chastises the pope's anti-abortion "stance" as "burdening women with unwanted pregnancies." The subtle method by which he draws attention to the relative "burdens" of unwanted pregnancy versus that of, say, death by abortion, is just too cute by half. I tip my hat to him.

My only fear is that Ledford's humor was too effective. I worry that his caustic wit might have flown over the heads of one, possibly two DI readers. I mean, God forbid anyone out there went to sleep last night thinking that he actually wrote that letter and submitted it for serious consideration.

Let's talk about sex ... predators

A whole new generation of sexual predators is being created at this time. The government and media conglomerates refuse to see the link between soft- and hard-core pornography and sexual predation. Little children's innocence is taken away by pornography, and this experience has the same effect on their minds as if they were sexually molested by a sexual predator.

Sexual innuendo through VCRs, the Internet, cable television, video games, movies, pornographic books and magazines, dirty bookstores, catalogues, newspapers, commercials, etc., take away children's innocence, help to turn some into sexual predators, and act as a stimulus in a cumulative way to make sexual predators more predatory. Until society sees the links and the cause and effect and realizes that this is another form of child sexual abuse, this phenomenon will continue.

Society cannot have its cake and eat it too. The government licensed these entities and collects sales tax from them along with other revenue, and media conglomerates produce these sexual stimulations because sex influences and sells. The government and media are complicit in helping to create sexual predators. People who buy this stuff for sexual gratification are complicit as well. Lives are being lost because society cannot handle all this sexual innuendo that constantly bombards it.

A "pot" of gold

I am concerned about the gaming industry coming so close to our community in Iowa City. As such, I thought of an alternative economic plan. Iowa is well-known for its rich farmland. What if the community establishes legal marijuana farms? Apparently, the plant grows well in the ceiling structures of Coral Ridge Mall, and certainly it would thrive well in a properly established industry.

Imagine the revenue for the good of the community. We don't even have to inhale to reap the harvest of benefits. Our school systems could be better funded to raise our children with a superior education and strong moral values. (It might even help finance the rain forest.) People from all over the region would come. An entire tourist industry could be established. We could build several world-class hotels, golf courses, and children's amusement parks right through the marijuana farmland so everyone could admire the symbol of our economic and moral progression.

Now, we will have some unenlightened dissenters. They will claim that such a proposal violates basic inherent morality. They may even claim objection based on conscience alone without even quoting copious amounts of economic data.

I hope it is obvious to all readers that my "alternative proposal" is facetious and morally flawed. I strongly oppose the infiltration of the gaming industry into our community based on moral grounds and my own conscience. I will not even present bewildering economic data to support my opinion, although this could be helpful. I hope others continue to vocally oppose the gaming industry for the same reasons.

After Madej hit his head on the ceiling, they moved to the futon, he said. The condom had fallen off, so he put on a new one, which ripped shortly after she straddled him and they continued having intercourse, she said.
In the woman's testimony, she said, she found part of a torn condom while going to the bathroom the next day.

Prosecuting attorney Anne Lahey suggested that both condoms broke because the woman was asleep and there was no lubrication for the intercourse.
Lahey also confronted Madej with questions about sexual imagery near his loft, which he denied, although he said the glow-in-the-dark stars stuck to the ceiling above his bed "could have" spelled out the word "sex."
After the second condom ripped, Madej said, he went to the hallway to retrieve another. A University of Northern Iowa student visiting Hillcrest testified on Wednesday that he heard Madej wanted another condom in order to penetrate the woman anally — an allegation Madej vehemently denied, telling the jury he found anal sex "really disgusting."
Madej testified when he came back to the room, the woman told him she was "tired and wanted to go to sleep." He then fell asleep in the room across the hall.

The woman sobbed as Lahey recounted testimonies in her closing arguments, recalling for the jury how two or three men on Hillcrest's third floor were teasing and laughing at her when she regained consciousness.
Defense attorney Patrick Ingram contended that although the woman was intoxicated, she was not physically nor mentally incapacitated when she climbed into Madej's loft bed.
"You are the one in control," he said. "You may have bad judgment, but you have judgment."
The four-woman, eight-man jury began deliberating late Thursday afternoon.

Club willing to go out on a Lindy

"Once you get to the point where you don't have to worry about the steps anymore, then you can do just the stupidest things, and it doesn't really matter. That's what I think swing dancing is all about ... Lindy hop and swing dancing are just about trying to have fun, trying to make the biggest fool of yourself."

— Michael Brafford, president of the UI Swing Dance Club

Brafford, a UI sophomore, takes the floor to help the amateurs. He took over the club in January in hopes of revitalizing the local swing-dance scene. Though accustomed to such dance spots as the Union and Gabe's, he said Iowa City lacks venues for this particular style.
And so the swing-dance club takes the floor at dance halls and local bars, grabbing the attention of scantily clad patrons with spins and twirls — "Lindy bombing," as it's called.
"It gets other people interested who wouldn't ordinarily be," said Brafford, who spends roughly 10 hours a week teaching beginners and promoting the group. "When you dance in a bar, so many people come up to you afterwards and ask how you learned."

Brafford said his swing dancing expertise came not from natural talent but a mix of athletics — baseball, basketball, football — a try-out for a school musical, and dancing at junior-high mixers. The video of Lindy Hoppers from the 1930s helped, too.
Since learning the moves, he's ventured to Seattle, Chicago, New York, and other cities to learn from renowned experts and participate in regional competitions.

Brafford hopes to organize intercollegiate competitions with neighboring schools such as Iowa State in the near future, hoping to increase the dance count at the free monthly gathering at Old Brick, 26 East Market St. today.
"Once you get to the point where you don't have to worry about the steps anymore, then you can do just the stupidest things, and it doesn't really matter," Brafford said. "That's what I think swing dancing is all about ... Lindy hop and swing dancing are just about trying to have fun, trying to make the biggest fool of yourself."

Millions press their way into Rome

Rome groaned under the weight of visitors. Side streets were clogged in a permanent pedestrian rush hour, mostly by kids with backpacks. Tent camps sprang up to take the spillover from hotels. Hawkers jacked up prices of everything from bottled water to papal trinkets.
"You really have to love the pope to be willing to do this," said Nathanael Valdenaire, a young Frenchman who slept on the pavement in a sleeping bag alongside his sisters.
As dignitaries poured into the city, Rome's security agencies — bolstered by NATO surveillance aircraft high overhead — cranked up their defenses against everything from terrorism to unruly crowds.
Rome authorities planned to lock down the city. Starting Thursday night, vehicle traffic was banned from the city center. Air space was closed, and anti-aircraft batteries outside town were on alert. Naval ships patrolled both the Mediterranean coast and the Tiber River near Vatican City, the tiny sovereign city-state encompassed by the Italian capital.

President Bush, along with former Presidents Bill Clinton and George H.W. Bush, knelt and prayed at the side of the pope's bier Wednesday night, then paid a courtesy call Thursday on Italian President Carlo Azeglio Ciampi. They planned dinner with Italian Prime Minister Silvio Berlusconi.
The U.S. delegation was to be joined today by Prince Charles, who postponed his own wedding by one day to honor the pope, by U.N. Secretary-General Kofi Annan, and by representatives of more than 80 countries. Jewish and Muslim religious leaders will be there, along with Israel's Foreign minister and the head of the Arab League.
In a March 1979 entry to his testament, John Paul said he left no material property and asked that his longtime private secretary, Archbishop Stanislaw Dziwisz, burn all his personal notes.
The pope made a landmark trip to Poland in June 1979 — his first trip to his homeland since becoming pontiff — inspiring the Solidarity trade union movement and its resistance to the atheistic communist government of the day.
The testament mentioned only two living people: Dziwisz and the retired chief rabbi of Rome, Elio Toaff, who welcomed him to the city's synagogue in 1986 in a historic gesture of reconciliation between Roman Catholics and Jews.

The pope made several entries in his testament, starting the year after his election in 1978. The final entry was in 2000, when he was in pain and suffering from Parkinson's disease.
Each entry was written in Polish during Lent, the period of reflection before Easter.
In the final entry, he appeared to consider stepping aside. "Now, in the year during which my age reaches 80 years, it is necessary to ask if it is not the time to repeat the words of the biblical Simeon, "Nunc dimittis." The reference is to the passage, "Now Master you may let your servant go."
He reflected that he had been saved from death in a 1981 assassination attempt "in a miraculous way," and said his fate was even more in the hands of God.
"From this moment it belongs to Him all the more. I hope He will help me to recognize up to what point I must continue this service," said the testament.

After the 6 a.m. radiation treatments, Miner would head back to Perry by 10 a.m., attend a full load of classes, and practice with his basketball team, perfecting his high-arching shots.
But he never complained. The painful radiation treatments, grueling drives to Iowa City, and the typical high-school stresses weren't enough to shake him — or to force him to miss basketball practice.
"His smile and positive attitude stood out the most," said

Tom Lipovac, Perry High School's athletics director. "It was very typical to ask Trent how he was doing and for him not to talk a lot about his situation."
After his condition deteriorated this week while undergoing treatment in Chicago, Miner's family moved him to a hospice in Johnston, Iowa, where he died 15 hours later.
"The progression of his tumor was so fast that not even doctors could have predicted it," said Jill Brosnahan, Miner's aunt. "But [the tumor] only really robbed six weeks to two months of his life. It never stopped him from much."
A few days before Miner died, Brosnahan's husband, Michael, visited Miner. Without fail, Miner had always greeted his visitors and other well-wishers with a humble and grateful "Thank you for coming."

But on this day, the heavily medicated Miner wasn't able to utter his trademark greeting. As he left, Michael Brosnahan turned to his ailing nephew. "I'm going now," Michael Brosnahan said. "I'll talk to you later."
Miner turned and looked at his uncle, opening his mouth. "Thanks for coming."

Shiite becomes Iraq's new prime minister

BY TRACI CARL
ASSOCIATED PRESS

BAGHDAD — Cementing Iraq's first democratic government in 50 years, one of Saddam's Hussein's most implacable enemies took his oath as president Thursday and quickly named another longtime foe of the ousted dictator to the powerful post of prime minister.

The new government's main task will be to draft a permanent Constitution and lay the groundwork for elections in December, although some worry that the two months of political wrangling taken up in forming the leadership hasn't left enough time.

The swearing-in ceremony came just two days short of the second anniversary of Baghdad's fall to U.S.-led forces and underlined the growing power and cooperation of the Shiite Arab majority and Kurdish minority — groups that were long oppressed by Saddam's regime.

There were stumbles, though. After his inaugural speech, interim President Jalal Talabani, a Kurd, walked off the stage, members of the National Assembly and onlookers began to disperse, and television feeds were cut.

Talabani came back about 10 minutes later and had to shout to a dwindling crowd that the President's Council — Talabani and his two vice presidents — had, as expected, selected Shiite Arab leader Ibrahim al-Jaafari as interim prime minister.

Senior Kurdish official

Barham Saleh blamed the misstep on miscommunication, saying lawmakers didn't realize the ceremony hadn't ended with Talabani's speech.

Some Shiite lawmakers felt snubbed.

"We hope that they forgot," said Abbas Hassan Mousa al-Bayati, a top member of al-Jaafari's Shiite-dominated United Iraqi Alliance. "This happened because of bad management."

Al-Jaafari didn't seem upset, telling reporters afterward:

al-Jaafari

Talabani
Iraq president

"This day represents a democratic process and a step forward."

"I'm faced with a big responsibility, and I pray to God that everyone will work hand-in-hand and that their efforts will lead to progress and development," he added.

Some Iraqis have expressed concern about al-Jaafari's close ties to the Islamic government in Iran and his work for the conservative Islamic Dawa Party, which has called for the implementation of Islamic law. But lawmakers didn't express any reservations Thursday.

Al-Jaafari said women will play a bigger role in his government, and he promised to fight the violence of the insurgency.

"There are two kinds of terrorism: terrorism from inside Iraq — and these are criminals, some of them with ties to the former regime — and the other is the terrorism exported from abroad," he said.

Iraq's new leaders were longtime foes of Saddam, who watched a videotape of Talabani's election Wednesday but was not expected to be shown Thursday's ceremony.

Al-Jaafari spent more than two decades in exile helping to lead anti-Saddam opposition forces among Shiite Arabs, while Talabani was one of the most influential leaders in the resistance of ethnic Kurds to Saddam as well as Arab domination.

Shiite Arabs and Kurds have worked together in putting the government together, and Talabani — whose post is largely ceremonial — reached out Thursday to Sunni Arabs, who are believed to make up the backbone of the insurgency and were the dominant group under Saddam.

"It is time for our Sunni brothers to participate in the democratic march," the president said.

Lawmakers have appointed Sunni Arabs to several top posts in an effort to build a broad-based government, but prominent Sunni Arab groups have distanced themselves from the new administration.

Sanchez won't appeal 10-game suspension

NEW YORK (AP) — Tampa Bay outfielder Alex Sanchez won't appeal his 10-day suspension for violating baseball's steroids policy.

Sanchez, the first player penalized under the tougher rules put in place last month, made his decision Thursday, four days after he was suspended by Commissioner Bud Selig.

"As Alex has explained, he did not knowingly take any banned substance," said Michael Weiner, the general counsel of the Major League Baseball Players Association. "We respect Alex's decision to forgo an appeal, and he has our full support."

Sanchez's suspension began Monday, when Tampa Bay played Toronto in its season opener. Because suspensions for violating baseball's rules on performance-enhancing drugs are without pay, Sanchez will lose $32,787 of his $600,000 salary.

After the commissioner's office announced the suspension Sunday, Sanchez said he was innocent.

"I'm going to fight it because I've never taken steroids or anything like that ... I never take any steroids because I don't need them," he said.

Several substances that previously were available over the counter were made prescription drugs as of Jan. 15 under federal legislation and were added to baseball's banned list. Because of that, it is possible Sanchez tested positive for a substance that he purchased legally before Jan. 15.

2 killed, 4 wounded in shooting spree

LAUREL, Del. (AP) — A man wearing a bulletproof vest killed two people and wounded four others Thursday during a shooting rampage in Maryland and Delaware before police arrested him, authorities said.

Police said the suspect also carjacked a vehicle, shot and killed a dog, and rammed a SUV into a chain link fence and over a utility meter during the crime spree. Delaware State Police Cpl. Jeff Oldham said authorities had determined a motive for the attacks but were not releasing details. Police said the suspect, Allison Norman, 22, did not know any of the victims.

"Quite a morning for a little rural town," said Laurel's mayor, John Shwed.

Norman was charged with first-degree murder and handgun violations, officials said. He failed Wednesday to appear in court for a motions hearing on four earlier firearms charges. Clerk Mark Bowen said the court issued a $10,000 bench warrant for Norman.

The attacks started in Laurel, where three men were shot, and continued across the border in Maryland, where the suspect fled on foot before being caught. The three other people were shot in Salisbury, Md., including one who died, Oldham said.

Cairo explosion kills 2, wounds 20

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — An explosion apparently set off by a bomber on a motorcycle hit a tour group shopping in a historic bazaar Thursday, killing at least two people and wounding 20 — the first attack targeting foreign tourists in the Egyptian capital in more than seven years.

The dead included a French woman, and 11 Egyptians and nine foreigners were wounded, said Brig. Gen. Nabil al-Azabi, the head of security in Cairo. He said the second person killed may have been the bomber.

Many of the wounded had severe wounds from nails packed in the bomb, doctors said. Among the wounded foreigners were three Americans, four French, and a Turk, the Interior Ministry said. The ministry said there was also a wounded Italian, but Italian diplomats leaving the hospital later said there were no Italians among the casualties. They had no explanation for the discrepancy.

The U.S. Embassy in Cairo was putting out a message warning Americans to stay away from Khan al-Khalili, the sprawling bazaar area, and to use prudence elsewhere in the city, said embassy spokesman James Bullock. He would not confirm American casualties in the blast.

McGwire asks to be taken off program

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Mark McGwire's upcoming induction into the Bay Area Sports Hall of Fame was postponed Thursday at the beleaguered slugger's request.

McGwire, who played most of his first 12 major-league seasons with the Oakland Athletics, was scheduled to be inducted into the Hall at a banquet in San Francisco on April 13 along with tennis great John McEnroe, former 49ers quarterback Steve Young, and Dick Bass.

But McGwire, who was widely criticized last month for his evasive responses to questions during Congressional hearings on steroid use in major-league baseball, asked to be removed from the program.

"He feels his presence next week's enshrinement banquet ... would be too much of a distraction to the induction hall President Ken Flower said. "With regret, the board directors and I agreed to Mark's request for postponement."

McGwire hit 583 homers and drove in 1,414 runs in his career with the A's and St. Louis. He had 70 homers in 1998, breaking Roger Maris' single-season record, before retiring following the 2001 season.

But he has been at the center of the controversy over performance-enhancing drugs in the sport. Jose Canseco, McGwire's longtime teammate and former "Bash Brother" in Oakland, claimed he injected McGwire with steroids in the bathroom stalls at the Coliseum.

Despite a disappointing finish at the Big Ten championships, the GymHawks look to finish on a high note at the NCAA regional championships

Melanie Patterson/The Daily Iowan

GymHawk Beth Dilick balances while performing her routine on the uneven bars during the Big Ten meet on March 26. The Hawks finished a disappointing sixth but have a shot at redemption this weekend in NCAA regional action.

BY KRISTI POOLER
THE DAILY IOWAN

Easy is not the word to describe the 2004-05 season for the Iowa women's gymnastics team. In fact, after a disappointing finish at the Big Ten championships on March 26, it appeared that its season might be over.

But not even finishing sixth out of the seven conference teams could prevent the GymHawks from competing in at least one more meet.

On Saturday, the Hawkeyes will attempt to put a season filled with injuries, illnesses, and disappointing finishes behind them as they compete in the NCAA regional meet in Salt Lake City.

"The season has been so long and so hard and so rough for these girls," said coach Larissa Libby. "To qualify for a regional championship in the end with everything that's happened this year — in the end it means that we've done no worse than we've done in the last five years, because we've qualified for a regional every year."

The Hawkeyes learned of their regional qualification the same night of their disappointing Big Ten finish, leaving them with the bittersweet taste of what Libby said was a "moral victory" for the team.

"They were really disappointed after Big Tens," Libby said. "I think that they knew that they had the opportunity to do really well, and they just, for whatever reason, couldn't put it together."

"They were so incredibly frustrated and then relieved that they had the opportunity not to finish their season off on that note."

In an attempt to correct the malfunctions that the team experienced at the Big Ten meet, the GymHawks have adopted a different training schedule. Before the championships, the team had a restful spring break, where they incorporated sporadic training instead of their daily practice routine.

"I felt like the rest did a great job," Libby said. "But it didn't keep their minds sharp, so when we got out on the competition floor, physically they were ready to go, but mentally they probably weren't as sharp as they needed to be."

Last week, the GymHawks returned to training, and with a week off before the championship meet, took advantage of the additional practice hours. Training was slightly decreased, as is the custom before any big meet, but it was more intense than before the Big Ten meet.

Iowa's coaching staff also created a mock meet over the weekend as a way to keep the women at a high level of competition while also allowing them to have some fun. Libby thought that the faux competition would not only boost enthusiasm for the upcoming meet, it would also remind the women what they were training for.

A rain delay on Opening Day brings bad luck to Woods and Els

BY DOUG FERGUSON

AUGUSTA, Ga. — Opening Day at the Masters brought some familiar sights Thursday — first the rain, then the names atop the leaderboard that included defending champion Phil Mickelson and world No. 1 Vijay Singh.

But don't get the idea this was just another typical day at Augusta National.

Tiger Woods hit an eagle putt that went off the green and into Rae's Creek. Ernie Els spent more time in the trees than in the fairway. Former champion Billy Casper returned to the Masters for the first time in three years and made history with the highest score on a hole (14) and the highest round (106).

IOWA SOFTBALL

NEXT UP: TODAY, PEARL FIELD, 6 P.M.

Hawkeye softball hosts Indiana and Purdue

BY NICK RICHARDS
THE DAILY IOWAN

Records are made to be broken. The Iowa softball team is doing just that.

With another win Wednesday at Northern Illinois, the Hawkeyes (29-8) broke two more records and extended another in an 8-2 win over the Huskies.

While the records have fallen, Iowa faces four pivotal Big Ten games this weekend, with Purdue (25-12, 2-0) and Indiana (10-25, 0-2) coming to Pearl Field.

"We know how important it is to play every game in the conference. You don't, at this point, want to get caught up in any standings, just like we didn't want to do that going up to Michigan and Northwestern," Hawk coach Gayle Blevins said. "The most important thing is to take advantage of the very next opportunity we have. We want to take care of our home games, and I feel that [Wednesday's] game was good preparation for us going into the weekend."

Lisa Birocci pitched three solid innings of relief and struck out seven of the 10 hitters she faced against the Huskies, moving to the top of the Hawkeye career strikeout list with 818. Emily Nichols hit two home runs, extending her season record to 14 and setting the school's single-season team record at 42. Iowa struggled at the plate last year with a young team, but with a year of experience and the addition of a key part such as Nichols, Blevins expected the team to put up big numbers.

"I really thought looking back at our fall team and what we were able to do in the fall, and then just the fact that we were really young last year, we felt pretty confident we'd be a good, solid offensive team," she said. "I don't think that we're all that surprised."

Purdue comes into the contest two games behind Northwestern for the top spot in the conference. The Boilermakers are coming off a sweep of Michigan State in West Lafayette, taking the first game, 11-1, and the second game, 7-2. They are riding a seven-game winning streak behind the bat of Andrea Hillsey and the pitching

HAWKEYE SPORTS

Women's tennis to go up against its toughest competition

Earlier this spring, Iowa women's tennis coach Daryl Greenan said his team could play with any team in the Big Ten — except Northwestern.

He said the Wildcats would be extremely difficult to defeat, given that they are ranked second in the nation and have top-ranked singles and doubles players at numerous positions.

The Hawkeyes, 9-6 overall (3-1 Big Ten), will travel to Evanston to take on 15-2 Northwestern Saturday. They will continue their road travel April 10 against Wisconsin.

Unfortunately for the Hawkeyes, Wisconsin isn't a pushover — it's ranked 33rd in the nation and has an overall mark of 11-5.

Several Hawkeyes have been pitted against players from both teams, with Iowa's Milica Veselinovic defeating Wisconsin's Caitlin Burke at the ITA Midwest Regionals.

A week ago, Greenan's crew split a pair of Big Ten matches, falling to Michigan, 6-1, and knocking off Hilary Tyler and Anastasia Zhukova remain undefeated in doubles (11-0), while Veselinovic is on an eight-match winning streak heading into the weekend.

Baseball falls to No. 4 Nebraska 6-1

The Iowa baseball team fell to No. 4 Nebraska, 6-1, on Wednesday in Lincoln.

The Cornhuskers (26-3) came in as one of the most highly touted squads in the country and proved to be too much for the Hawkeyes (6-14).

Iowa did manage to out-hit Nebraska, 8-7. Skyler Moss and Andy Lytle were the offensive leaders for the Hawkeyes — Moss went 2-for-3 with a walk and one run scored, while Lytle hit 2-for-4 with a double.

Travis Sweet (0-2) drew the loss by going three innings and giving up two hits, two runs, and striking out three batters.

Chris Zinn surrendered four hits, four runs, and struck out one.

Men's and women's track travel to Messersmith Invitational

The Iowa men's and women's track teams will travel to Cedar Falls this weekend to compete in the Mark Messersmith Invitational dual meet.

Competition will begin at 11 a.m. All events will be held at the University of Northern Iowa in the Mark Messersmith Outdoor Track Complex.

Both teams last competed March 25 and 26 at the Florida Relays at the University of Florida. Four Hawkeye men qualified for the NCAA regional meet in field events. Seniors Ken Kemery and Andy Banse both qualified in the shot put. Senior Chris Voller qualified in the hammer throw, and junior Tim Brodersen qualified in the discus event.

For the women's team, runners Meghan Armstrong, Nikki Chapple, and Rachael Marchand all set collegiate bests in the 1,500 meters. Chapple and Armstrong both placed in the top 10 in the race — Chapple finished eighth with a time of 4:30.76, and Armstrong had a time of 4:32.00 to place 10th.

Hawkeyes wind up for Michigan

BY RYAN LONG
THE DAILY IOWAN

The baseball team begins its second four-game series of Big Ten action today at Michigan at 3 p.m. The Wolverines (17-7, 0-4) are coming off a 7-2 victory over Central Michigan on April 6; they were swept last weekend by Minnesota. Michigan had had a 10-game winning streak before its weekend struggles with the Golden Gophers, its worst Big Ten start since the 1993 season.

Iowa coach Jack Dahm hopes his Hawkeyes (6-14, 2-2) will enjoy the consistent play they had in last weekend's series split with Michigan State. However, he may be concerned about the type of baseball that Michigan will play, considering the start it has made in the Big Ten.

"You look at that as a positive or a negative," he said. "Sometimes, it's tough to get that first win in the Big Ten, and hopefully, we can go in, and play extremely well, and put some pressure on them. Maybe they'll be feeling a little pressure about getting that first win. They probably think that they have to make up ground against us. Sometimes that's not a good approach to have."

The Wolverines are led by Chris Getz, who is fifth in the Big Ten with a .414 batting average and tied for second with 13 stolen bases. The Wolverines have four players hitting at least .350 at the plate, and they have a .309 team batting average.

Michigan possesses a steady pitching staff. Jim Brauer is 4-1 with a 1.80 ERA and has 40 strikeouts in 40 innings of action. Paul Hammond comes in with a 1-1 record and a 4.12 ERA. Michael Penn brings a 2-1 record to the hill and a 3.18 ERA, while Derek Feldkamp has posted a 4-1 overall record with a 3.64 ERA.

Iowa, tied for fourth in the Big Ten with Penn State, Michigan State, and Purdue, has its own potent contributors.

Senior shortstop Andy Lytle is batting a team-high .407, and he has driven in a team-high 17 runs, while senior catcher Kris Welker and senior right fielder Nat Yoho are posting solid numbers as well. Welker is batting .368 with 16 RBIs, and Yoho has stroked three home runs and also has driven in 16 runs. Senior third baseman Andy Cox leads the team with four home runs.

Freshman catcher/first baseman Dusty Napoleon is batting a team-high .545 in Big Ten play. The Hawkeye pitching staff has been paced by junior right-handed starter Luke O'Loughlin (0-2), who has tossed 34 innings with a 3.18 ERA and 22 strikeouts. Junior Tim Gudex and junior Aaron Reasland have led Iowa out of the bullpen. Gudex (2-3) has put up a 4.38 ERA on 10 appearances and has struck out 19, while Reasland (1-2) has a 4.09 ERA on seven appearances and has struck out eight.

Dahm feels he has discovered what it will take for his team to be successful in Big Ten play for the rest of the season.

"Instead of being in the bottom of the league looking up, now we're in the middle of the pack," he said. "And that's not where we want to ultimately be, of course, but at least we haven't dug ourselves a hole. If you can just go out, and play good, solid baseball every weekend, and find a way to win two every weekend, then hopefully, win a couple series at home, that's when you start getting yourself in the upper echelon of the Big Ten."

Woods, Els have bad start

Jack Nicklaus teed off to a heartfelt ovation in what might be his last Masters.

And when a wet and wacky start to the 69th Masters ended in darkness, Palmer was on the leaderboard — not four-time winner Arnold Palmer, but Masters rookie Ryan Palmer.

Of the 24 players who managed to squeeze in the first round, Mark Hensby of Australia was the clubhouse leader at 3-under 69, showing that Augusta National doesn't have to be crusty and firm to be a brute.

Chris DiMarco, who showed Mickelson the line on his winning putt last year, birdied three-straight holes and was atop the leaderboard at 4-under par with four holes still to play.

Luke Donald of England was another shot behind and four holes left in his first round, while the group at 2 under included Mickelson, Singh, Ryan Palmer, Retief Goosen, and Stuart Appleby.

Players were to return at 9:45 a.m. to complete the first round, and barring any more weather delays, the tournament should be back to normal by the weekend.

This was the ninth time in 15 tournaments that weather interrupted play, and the fourth-straight week of rain.

Trying to hold down his No. 1 ranking, Singh was a model of consistency in a first round that was out of whack before players even arrived at Augusta National — tee times were pushed back five times as more than an inch of rain fell, leading to a 5½-hour delay and players starting from both tees.

Along with picking up three birdies on the front nine, Singh twice saved par with 10-foot putts.

His only bogey came on the 11th hole, the last one he played before the round was suspended, leaving him at 2 under.

Mickelson was all smiles when he stepped to the first tee, looking not much differently from when he left the Masters last year wearing a green jacket.

He opened with a bogey, but he kept himself out of trouble most of the day and gave himself ample birdie chances.

Goosen, the forgotten figure in all the hype over the "Big Four," made a rare birdie on the par-3 12th, then recovered from a tee shot into the azaleas on the par-5 13th to escape with par.

It wasn't the fast, fiery course most players wanted to see, conditions that have not been around for the Masters since the course was super-sized three years ago.

Based on the scoring, they might be thankful for the rain.

Even with the greens soft and holding approach shots, only 10 of the 92 players were under par, and there were five scores at 80 or higher among those who finished.

Woods hasn't broken par in the first round of the Masters since he won in 2002, and that's where he was headed this year — some of that because of bad shots and bad judgment, some from sheer bad luck.

He reached the par-5 13th in two with a risky shot out of the pines, leaving him a 70-foot eagle putt.

But he misjudged the speed so badly that the ball raced by the hole, tumbled down the bank and went into Rae's Creek.

Woods left the ball there, replayed the putt and fared much better, two-putting for a bogey.

He looked as though he might get that shot back when his approach into No. 1 descended on the flag, but Woods turned away in shock when it hit the bottom of pin and spun off to the side into a bunker, turning birdie into bogey.

He wasn't alone in his misery.

Paul Casey, who tied for sixth last year in his Masters debut, took a 10 on the 13th hole and shot 79.

David Toms stood over a 20-foot putt on the 14th hole until a gust blew his ball down the slope and into the fairway. He made a double bogey, and shot 41 on his outward nine.

Still, nothing quite compared with Casper.

A 51-time winner on the PGA Tour who got overlooked in the Big Three era of the 1960s, the 73-year-old got plenty of attention in his return to Augusta National.

He hit five balls into the water on the par-3 16th and took 14, the highest score on any hole in the Masters.

By the time he finished 12 holes, he already shot his age.

His score of 106 would also go down in the record books, except that Casper declined to turn in his card.

"That's going in the scrapbook," Casper said.

duo of Diana LaRiva and Brooke Baker, who have combined for 20 of Purdue's 25 wins.

"They are real scrappy, and they are the kind of team that stays right after you. They'll scratch and claw and work to get any runs off you that they can," Blevins said. "We just need to get quality at-bats. We know if we get quality at-bats we're going to get hits."

The Hoosiers have struggled this year, losing both of their Big Ten contests to Michigan State. Tory Yamaguchi leads the way for the Hoosiers with five home runs and 17 RBIs.

Friday's game with Purdue is scheduled to start at 6 p.m., and Saturday's game will start at noon. The April 10 double-header with the Hoosiers will also start at noon.

"It was just enough competition to keep their brains sharp and in competition mode," she said.

The road to the NCAA championship meet will not be easy, though. Four of the six teams competing are ranked in the top 20 in the nation, including No. 1 Utah, which, Libby says, is a "lock" for an NCAA championship qualification.

Iowa will need to finish in one of the top two places on Saturday in order to qualify for the championship meet as a team. Even if the team doesn't finish first or second, individual Hawkeyes can qualify based on their performances.

GymHawks Annie Rue, Kortny Williamson, Liz Grajewski, Romi

na Mazzoni, and Beth Dilick all have a shot at competing in the championship meet. Rue would make Hawkeye history were she to qualify, which would make her the first Iowa women's gymnast to appear in the championships all four years on the team.

But individual qualifications are an option that Libby says the team is not ready to consider yet.

"It's easier not to take it on yourself; it's easier to think team, team, team," she said. "We don't even focus on who could go through individually ... it's just not the same as going [as a team]."

To achieve an NCAA championship berth, the Hawkeyes will have to beat No. 12 Oregon, No. 13 Brigham Young, No. 20 Southern Utah, and No. 22 Minnesota, which finished third in the Big Ten meet.

Libby still has hope that despite the problems that have plagued the Iowa gymnastics program this year, her squad can still pull together and perform the way she believes it is capable of this weekend.

"It's definitely a long shot for us given our ranking, but like I said, we haven't paid attention to rankings all year," she said. "In the end, it doesn't really matter what your ranking is; it matters who hits on that day. So, we plan on being one of the teams that hits on that day."

Indians rally from five behind

ASSOCIATED PRESS

CHICAGO — Casey Blake, Coco Crisp, and Ronnie Belliard hit ninth-inning homers off Shingo Takatsu, and the Cleveland Indians rallied from a five-run deficit to beat the Chicago White Sox, 11-5, Thursday behind Victor Martinez's go-ahead single in the 11th.

The White Sox built a 5-0 lead by the fourth inning against starter Cliff Lee but were stymied by Rafael Betancourt, David Riske, Bob Howry, Arthur Rhodes (1-0), and Matt Miller, who combined for 7 2/3 innings of three-hit, shutout relief.

Blake's homer leading off the ninth cut the deficit to 5-3, and Takatsu gave up two-out homers to Crisp and Belliard on consecutive pitches. Luis Vizcaino (0-1), Chicago's seventh pitcher, gave up a two-run single to Martinez in the 11th that put Cleveland ahead, 7-5.

Tigers 7, Royals 3

DETROIT — Jason Johnson (1-0) allowed five hits in 6 2/3 shutout innings, Ivan Rodriguez had four hits, and Rondell White homered after Kansas City starter Zack Greinke was knocked out of the game by a line drive.

Mike Wood (0-1), the third of five Kansas City pitchers, allowed three runs and four hits in 2 1/3 innings.

Greinke was hit by a line drive off the bat of Carlos Guillen and left with a bruised right forearm. He expects to make his next scheduled start.

Nationals 5, Phillies 4

PHILADELPHIA — Jose Vidro led off the 10th inning with a home run that led the Washington Nationals to their second-straight win, 5-4, over the Philadelphia Phillies on Thursday.

Vidro had three RBIs, and Brad Wilkerson went 4-for-5, a day after hitting for his second career cycle. Washington, which moved during the off-season after 36 years as the Montréal Expos, completed its first series by winning two of three.

Phillies reliever Tim Worrell allowed Nick Johnson's tying RBI groundout off the first-base bag in the eighth, and Vidro homered off Rheal Cormier (0-1). Chad Cordero (1-0) pitched two scoreless innings.

Reds 6, Mets 1

CINCINNATI — Aaron Harang (1-0) allowed only one single in 6 1/3 innings, and D'Angelo Jimenez had a pinch hit two-run double off Kazuhisa Ishii (0-1).

With a combined four-hitter, the Reds improved to 3-0 for the first time since 1990, when they won their first nine and swept Oakland in the World Series.

New manager Willie Randolph's Mets hadn't lost their first three games since 1964.

inning tie, and the Oakland Athletics received a strong pitching performance from newcomer Danny Haren in a 5-1 victory over the Baltimore Orioles on Thursday night.

Mark Kotsay had two hits and scored a run for the A's, who rebounded from an opening-day loss to take two of three from Baltimore. Brian Roberts led off the Orioles' first inning with a home run, but Baltimore managed only four hits.

A steady rain drenched the field from the outset and limited attendance to 16,395 — the smallest crowd in the 13-year history of Camden Yards.

Doctors seeking source of center's irregular heartbeat

CHICAGO (AP) — Chicago Bulls center Eddy Curry will be evaluated by specialists in Boston and Minnesota for an irregular heartbeat that has sidelined him since March 30.

A battery of tests performed on Curry during the past week were inconclusive, the Bulls said Thursday.

"I'm feeling fine and really miss my teammates, but I agree with the medical staff with regard to going through this process in a thorough, conservative, cautious manner," Curry said in a statement.

Bull general manager John Paxson said the team wants to make sure Curry is ready to play when he does return.

"Our first priority is Eddy's health, and we are going to be absolutely certain we have all the answers we need before he returns to the court," Paxson said.

On Monday, Curry was released from Rush University Medical Center, and Bull team physician Dr. Kathy Weber said his heart problems had dissipated. Paxson said at the time that Curry could be back playing "by the end of the week."

The Bulls have gone 3-1 without Curry, who leads the team with 16.1 points per game. Chicago has to win two more games to clinch a playoff berth for the first time since the 1997-98 season.

Armstrong gives us hope vs. dope

BY TONY KORNHEISER
WASHINGTON POST

WASHINGTON — Once again, Lance Armstrong stands accused of using performance-enhancing drugs. This time, a former (and fired) employee who says he found steroids in Armstrong's medicine cabinet is blowing the whistle to tell the world what a cheater and liar Armstrong is.

Once again the accuser's story is fishy, as Armstrong's accusers' stories have routinely seemed fishy before. This fellow seems as though he's been jilted.

Armstrong, he claims, promised to employ him extensively as a member of Armstrong's racing team and then buy him a bike shop. Now they are engaged in lawsuits and countersuits.

It's curious that we are always quick to jump to Armstrong's side whenever someone accuses him of using illegal drugs. A lot quicker than we are to jump to Barry Bonds' side, or Mark McGwire's. A lot quicker than we were to jump to Marion Jones' side, even though she never had a positive drug test, or to the side of anyone in the NFL. It's as if we've signed on as volunteers in Armstrong's defense team, as if we'd all be crushed if Armstrong were uncovered as a fraud. Somehow Armstrong means that much to us.

What's so special about Armstrong? Why him and not McGwire, Bonds, Jones, and other fabulous champions who have thrilled us with their remarkable accomplishments?

What coats Armstrong with Teflon? What gives Armstrong this iconic status and accounts for millions of people wearing those plastic yellow "Live Strong" bracelets that identify them as part of the Lance Armstrong Mythology?

Well, some of it is the fact that he wins at an exotic, gentrified race that most of us don't care about, and therefore don't examine the way we do baseball, football, and even Olympic sprinting. It's the fact that he goes over there and beats them. That gives Armstrong the mythic stature of a conqueror — and that's fine with us, as long as we're conquering for truth, justice, and the American Way. Some of it is the fact that he's best in the rugged mountain climbs, where it's all about guts and will. (Because really, what else do we know about bicycle racing? Most of us get on bicycles for fun. If we want to actually go somewhere, we hop in the car. Modern America was built on cars, silly.) And some of it is the fact that he seems built so much more like the guy next door than the behemoths who slam huge homers or thunder down the track.

quote of the day

"It makes no sense to say that we adhere to international law and the first thing we do at the beginning of a trial is violate a canon of international law."

— Navy Lt. Cmdr. Charles Swift, a lawyer for Salim Ahmed Hamdan, the first Guantánamo Bay detainee to be tried by a U.S. military commission. Hamdan's trial was halted just as it got under way in November by a federal judge who ruled that the proceeding was unlawful because Hamdan was barred from the courtroom.

horoscopes

Friday, April 8, 2005
— by Eugenia Last

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Follow your intuition, and you won't go wrong. A past mistake may come back to haunt you. Maintain honesty and integrity, and you will overcome whatever you face.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Do a little backtracking to see where matters may have gone astray. Someone may be withholding information that could help you get ahead. Ask questions, and go to the source to find out the truth.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): You should be able to reach for your highest goal and achieve it today. Everything will fall into place as long as you can keep the momentum going. You may have to stop seeing someone who has occupied your life up until this point. Change will be good.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Your interest in changing your professional direction may lead you back to school. Be careful that you study the right thing. Do your research before you implement changes.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): There is so much going on around you that it may be a little confusing. Figure out how you can take advantage of the situation. You may be able to step into someone else's shoes if you are quick and smooth and show you are capable of doing just that.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Money matters will concern you if you have seen a lot of changes in that area of your life lately. It's time to set a budget and reduce your overhead. Extra work on your part will be required, but it will pay off.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): The more "out there" you are, the more you will achieve. If you want to get ahead, you have to show what you are capable of doing. Hang in there; you will shine if you can hold it all together.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Be prepared for an active but rewarding day. Get involved in activities that will be fun, and include business associates. The more you do to show off your talents, the better.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): It's time to do something that will bring about a better you. Lose weight, get fit, and make positive changes, and you will attract favorable attention. Don't be upset by criticism. Love is prominent today.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Not everything will go according to plan. If you are prepared for the worst, you will have no trouble taking care of matters before they escalate. Don't trust what needs to be done to anyone else. Your motives may be questioned.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): A relationship can take on a whole new meaning today, so share your ideas, intentions, and thoughts about the future. Your insight into future trends will impress someone. It's your day to prosper.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): You have to finish what you start, so get busy. Once you have taken care of business, you will find it much easier to get on to personal matters. Keep your private life out of the limelight for now.

Unnecessary pressure

— by Nick Narigon

- Sitting in a crowded classroom and you really need to fart.
- Those daily calls from the credit-card company.
- Pimples inside your nostrils.
- Raising your hand in class to find a hole in the armpit of your T-shirt.
- Trying to find clean socks that match.
- Whether or not to wear a ponytail or just put on a hat.
- Answering your mother's phone call and not trying to sound stoned.
- Waiting 10 minutes for the Red Route to show up, and when a Cambus finally comes, it's the Mayflower bus.
- Waking up and realizing that Ashton Kutcher is doing way better than I am.
- Trying to find a parking space on the right side of the street.
- Worrying about being pulled over because my license-plate light is out.
- Wondering if anybody notices that your socks don't match.
