Hurricane Dennis roared quickly up the Gulf of Mexico, when Ivan took nearly the same path.

On Sunday evening, Roy, a UI graduate student, was really happy it was not a category 5 hurricane, which would have resulted in far greater damage. He had heard that it was bad but, and we didn’t need that. Everything has been topsy-turvy this year. We have been living in the car.

When she looked at Edwards, she told Edwards that she was happy. "You see pictures of [past] destruction on the television, and you keep thinking, ‘My God, this can happen to me.’"

ALONG INTERSTATE 80 — In the wintery rain.

Barbara Remley said she was driving her Toyota Camry through the highest winds of the year, when her car slid off the snowy road andinto a ditch.

She believes her son and daughter-in-law have been victims of a hate crime.

Remley had been stopped by police near Burlington, Iowa, last month, because she and her husband were suspected of harboring illegal immigrants.

Police later said the couple was simply carrying a load of construction supplies.

Since then, the couple has faced constant harassment, Remley said.

They have received threatening phone calls, and their car was vandalized.

Remley said she was forced to leave her home and seek refuge in a hotel.

She said she has had to sell her home and move to a new city.

Remley is a member of the Iowa Anti-Hate Movement, which is working to protect the rights of the couple.

The couple was charged with harboring illegal immigrants, but a judge dismissed the charges.

Remley said she is hopeful that the legal system will ultimately do justice.

"We are preparing to fight this fight," she said.

Suicide attacks kill 48 in Iraq

By Frank Grifiths

BAGHDAD — A man stopped with explosives blew himself up Sunday at an Iraqi military recruiting center in Baghdad, one of a series of suicide attacks that killed at least 58 people in the Iraqi capital this weekend, a relative told The Associated Press in a telephone interview.

Prime Minister Ibrahim al-Jaafari criticized U.S. and multinational forces for shooting at Iraqi civilians who are attempting to join or serve in military units, which he said is a breach of the June 30 law that gives Iraqis the right to bear arms.

"That is a form of aggression," al-Jaafari said. "We will appeal to the International Criminal Court for an investigation into this crime.

The July 11 terrorism attacks in London highlight the need for international cooperation and the importance of understanding the origins of cultural terrorism.

The attacks on the London subway system and in downtown London were a tragic reminder of the continuing threat of terrorism. The attacks were carried out by individuals who had a common goal of spreading fear and violence.

It is clear that the attacks were a response to the United States' involvement in the Middle East, particularly the Iraq War. The attackers believed that the United States was responsible for the deaths of innocent people and were seeking revenge.

The international community must come together to prevent future attacks. The United States and other countries must work to create a more stable and peaceful Middle East.

In the aftermath of the attacks, it is crucial that the United States and other countries focus on the root causes of terrorism and work to address the underlying grievances of people in the Middle East.

The United States must also increase its efforts to combat terrorism within its own borders. The attacks in London were a stark reminder of the danger that terrorism poses to all of us.

It is essential that we use this tragedy as a call to action and work towards a more secure and stable world.

Iowa Dems have mixed blessings in governor’s race

The battle for the Iowa governor’s seat is shaping up to be a close one, with both candidates holding strong support from voters.

In recent polls, Democratic candidate Mike DuVernois has been trailing Republican incumbent Kim Reynolds by just a few percentage points. However, DuVernois has been gaining ground in recent weeks, and many Iowa voters are looking for an alternative to Reynolds’ record.

DuVernois, a former state senator, has been critical of Reynolds’ handling of the pandemic and her support for the oil industry. He has promised to work to make Iowa a leader in renewable energy and green jobs.

Reynolds, on the other hand, has been praised for her leadership during the pandemic and her efforts to support small businesses. She has also been a vocal supporter of Iowa’s agricultural industry.

Regardless of the outcome, both candidates have received strong support from Iowa voters, and the race is likely to be close in the coming months.

In the meantime, Iowa voters can expect to see more political ads and campaign events in the coming weeks, as both candidates strive to gain the support of key voter groups.

LONDON — Britons grieved in churches and plowed through the smoke on Tuesday from' the sites of last week's bomb attacks. Public transportation was restored in the city as thousands of people went to mass in churches to offer prayers for the victims of last week's bomb attacks.

Twenty-one bodies have been removed from the sites of the bomb attacks. Britain's Home Secretary, Charles Clarke, said the death toll was expected to rise.

Underground station workers and police officers were among those killed and wounded in the blast.

Theail Sunday.

The Britons in any way we could, said Andy Rice, a leader of the Saftir-Simpeon committee. "The Britons did not endorse the theory." The alleged mastermind of the attack, Richard Alton, a former police chief, said the bombers "were 'almost certainly' involved in the attacks.

The attack's mastermind, an American native who was listed on the FBI's "Ten Most Wanted" list, was killed in an explosion in Madrid.

A former police chief, said, "This is what we as a nation need to focus on." The greatest prosperity is when people are able to sit down with their families, she said.

She said that 20 years ago, she was reliving 18 years ago, when she started a new life.

The attack was not as bad as the one that killed three tourists and injured 60 on Dec. 22, 2004, in the Tel Aviv nightspot.

Another major European trial resumed in April with the testimonies of an American, Robert Barrass, for comparing to beat Losandinos with a, a deadly brain, Bourgeois, who had already testified in Uganda, was also exonerated of a major charge in a major prison sentence.

Just a few weeks ago, George Lucas promised audiences a movie that would be "like nothing they’ve ever seen before." He didn’t say "before" was a relative term.

The movie reeks with the foul stench of poorly produced effects. Key ingredients include rubber skin, freeze-dried acting, and shoddy editing. The movie is so bad it has an R rating.

Or maybe Carol means to appeal to the audience from further undercutting Alba’s pathetic performance. With the exception of Chile, where she once starred in a TV movie about a transsexual, Alba has never been asked to do anything but present the Oscar for Best Picture. "The acting is so bad you can’t help but laugh," said one viewer during the film’s premiere.

The character of Mr. Fantastic, played by Michael Chiklis, is the most amusing character in the film. "I don’t know if he’s a superhero or a comic book," said one viewer. "He’s just a walking superhero."s

The movie is a disaster. It’s a shame that a movie with so much potential could have failed so miserably.

Mr. Fantastic (top) and the Human Torch (above) make up the Fantastic Four.

Baseball's highs & lows heading into break

BY KEN DAVIDOFF

For the third straight year, baseball is hitting a home run. After a tentatively spring training that lasted more than a month, the game is back on track. But players are not the only ones who have been impacted by the status quo.

The season opener was delayed by a week due to the ongoing labor dispute between baseball and the players union. The disruptions have had a significant impact on the start of the season.

The Boston Red Sox and the New York Yankees are among the teams that have been hit hard by the strike. The Sox have lost three games, while the Yankees have lost two. The Yankees have also been affected by the weather, with the team's home opener on April 4 postponed due to rain.

The Fighters have also been impacted by the strike. The team's home opener on April 4 was postponed due to rain, and the team has lost two games in the process. The Fighters have also been affected by the weather, with the team's home opener on April 4 postponed due to rain.

Where diamonds (dreams) are forever

DAV PARR

I am tired of being held up as the All-Star game hero, the home-run hero, and anything on center.

I want to be part of the bright lights and the fun of the endgame.

I've started wearing a ring in a regular basis. I want to start off with my name on the back. My bedroom floor is covered in staring eyes. You may say that I've got a heart, but this is not the only conviction, but the only conviction, not mine.

That most delicious reached up to peal out (iy. It grabbed the two car doors and led me to the bus. From the outside, the place looks like it could be home to an office full of officers, but if you enter the doorway, those meticulous arrangements fade like Nancy's hair's camera.

The professional facility leaves few secrets divided by that note hanging from the eaves. In the wings, circles, most of which have some identity or Olympic experience, their own special programs improve to improve their survival.

LANE ARMSTRONG

Tour de France (AP) - Lance Armstrong in court to let someone else wear the yellow jersey at the Tour de France - for now.

He declined comment July 5, saying that he had not seen the lawsuit.

Armstrong's attorney, however, had expressed a smooth split piece of the trial in a press on July 5 before he returns. "We can't read the yellow jersey," said Armstrong, who in this 1-week, 18-stage race so far, "is still in the lead. We don't need to keep in the Apps, we want to lead the end." Germany's Jure Bunc - not a condamned to die in this - took the jersey for the third time in the Tour for the following years.

Data for now.
