County may see good voter turnout

By COLIN BURKE Des Moines

Johnson County could see one of its highest voter turnouts in recent history for the Nov. 8 municipal elections, according to Mayor Moe Carter. The Johnson County Auditor’s Office has received 1,452 absentee ballots so far, according to Carter. The total is higher than past years’ requests.

"I think those are the three main categories of interest that I’m predicting," he said.

Absentee voting has also become more attractive to citizens as a result of the pandemic, he said.

"People in these classes or work all day and can’t make it to the polls so it’s really cool that they have the ability to vote in their home, fill out a form in the Auditor’s office, or have it delivered through specially-trained camps," he said.

"This is a convenience to people with busy schedules," he said.

In addition to the absentee ballot, the Iowa Secretary of State has also increased the number of polling places to 400.

"The virtual bulletin board is also a great way to talk about political issues, programming, giving, and current events, and just to keep in touch with friends," said Kirk Goodwin, President of the IMU Alumni Association.

"We use the bulletin-board service to talk about political issues, programming, giving, and current events, and just to keep in touch with friends," said Kirk Goodwin, President of the IMU Alumni Association.

"The bulletin-board service's terminal is located in a book closet in the IMU," Goodwin said.

"The bulletin-board service also allows students to set up a chat room for discussions on specific topics. This allows students to get involved in the university's governance and to have their voices heard," Goodwin said.

A set of UI filmmakers has qualified for the semifi nal in MTV’s miniseries contest for its compelling visual and story presentation across the nation.

This year’s film features a music video/ short subject/ live action that’s made in the heart of the University of Iowa community, said Steve McAllister, who directed the film.

Joe Jones and Steve McAllister, both UI students, have qualified for the MTV semi final in the miniseries contest. Their film, "The Idea," is a music video/short subject/live action that highlights the spirit of the University of Iowa community.

"We’re very excited," said Jones. "We’ve been working on this for months and we’re glad to see our hard work pay off.

The film is about a student who discovers a hidden talent and uses it to change his life. It’s a heartwarming story that we think will resonate with people.

We’re looking forward to the next round of the competition and hope to continue telling stories that inspire and motivate others.

The film was produced by the University of Iowa Film Program and the UI College of Fine Arts. It was directed by Jones and McAllister, and produced by UI students and faculty members.

UI students have been making music videos and film shorts for years, and we’re proud to see them succeed on a national level.

UI’s Film Program offers a wide range of courses and opportunities for students to explore their creative abilities. We’re excited to see what our students will create in the future.

UI students have won multiple awards for their film shorts and music videos, and we’re confident that "The Idea" will continue that tradition.

"Hospitals and clinics must be prepared to vaccinate our population as soon as possible, even until midnight Monday by Oct. 26 and perhaps beyond," said Aaron Hall Holmgren, the executive director of the Iowa Medical Group, which represents nearly 400 physicians affiliated with Mercy! "It's hard to track doses, because it isn't centralized in one place," she said. "We need to stay on track of our inventory on a minute-to-minute basis. It's a critical task, but it's doable."

A drill team of medical student Jonathan Davis of Pella, Iowa, received a flu vaccination at the UIHC on Monday afternoon. Between Oct. 26 and Nov. 3, 1,164 people were immunized, and the vaccination rate at the university's clinics exceeded 90 percent. Medical teams, testing the response to a flu pandemic, hand out flu shots in 10,000 fewer than 24 hours.

U.N. warns Syria

BY EDITH M. LEDEBER

UNITED NATIONS — A united Security Council warned a defeated Syria on Monday that it doesn't cooperate with a U.N. investigation that has implicated top Syrian officials in the crime of the century.

But the United States, which has and before the wall presented a draft resolution at a new meeting of the 19-member body's 15 nations. They agreed that they would press for tough U.N. measures, if Syria does not comply with the demands.

The resolution would give the 15-member group next steps.

Their original resolution demanded Syria to be wetted down to get all the usual standards on board. But should not be the only weapon in the Local users get together for events, such as an annual computer-association picnic every fall and a camping trip in the summer. But there isn't enough interest to draw each other's personalities very well," said Heather Woodson, a UI religious-studies major. "Few strangers have come from the bulletin-board service."

Just before UI students vote in their annual elections, President Mark Komekow has called a special session.

Ballots have been distributed to houses in the Greek community, they are available at the UI office in the Aud, and a satellite voting station will be open at the IAH on the Main Quad. "It's a small part, but it's an important part," Komekow said. "Any little bit we do will help the results." The UI junior Austin Barta will be busy on Nov. 4, delivering ballots to the Greek community. When two UI students in the same house read the same ballot, it is not counted.

As part of a campaign to encourage students to participate in the election, the UI Office of Student Affairs has set up a "Ballot Station" on the 1st floor of the Old Capitol Tower. The station is open from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m.

Battle brews over Bush's court choice

BY DAVID ESPO

WASHINGTON — President Bush nominated Appeals Court Judge Samuel Alito Jr. as the White House's fourth Supreme Court choice, offering him a chance to join the court and influence its direction for at least a generation.

Bush, naming a replacement for Sandra Day O'Connor four days after the conservative justice announced her retirement, did so at a time when Republicans hold a commanding lead in the Senate on most key policy issues and have little immediate need to add a justice to shore up their conservative majority on the court.

But the battle — and a number of other political high spots and low — highlight the importance of the replacement in a presidential election year.

"Let's give Judge Alito the opportunity to serve on the high court, which until this summer had gone 12 years without a change," O'Connor announced her retirement, and John Roberts was named to replace her.

Bush's choice for O'Connor could make the difference in the Senate confirmation battle.

BUSH'S NOMINEE

President Bush nominated Alito as the White House's fourth Supreme Court choice, offering him a chance to join the court and influence its direction for at least a generation.

Alito, 61, has been on the White House's short list of Supreme Court potential for at least a year, and he was widely considered a likely nominee even before O'Connor announced her retirement.

Alito, a judge on the federal appeals court in Philadelphia, has a lifetime career of legal opinions that most likely will be screened and analyzed to determine his future role on the high court.

Alito is a conservative who will bring a long history of legal opinions to the Senate confirmation process. He is expected to join a court that now includes three conservative justices, Chief Justice John Roberts and Justices Antonin Scalia and Clarence Thomas.

Alito's nomination, if confirmed, would allow Bush to appoint his fifth justice to the Supreme Court, giving the president a majority on the high court. Alito was nominated to a federal appeals court in 1990, and he has been on the court since 1995.

Alito's nomination is expected to bring a strong response from Democrats, who are likely to challenge his judicial philosophy and his record on civil rights issues.

Alito was named to the federal bench in 1990, and he has been on the court since 1995.

Muddled race

A lot could change for the Hawkeyes as they forge into a three-week countdown to the Big Ten finish line

BY JASON BRUMMOND

Just three weeks left — and the Big Ten race is up for a shot at the Iowa State and the same game for Iowa's postseason possibilities.

Coming off a loss, the Hawkeyes three remaining games are tough. Iowa is one of the Big Ten's most difficult teams to beat.

"It's in our hands," Iowa coach Kirk Ferentz said last week. "That has to be the case.

And Iowa is a team that could lose any of the games, certainly not because of an outside factor. I think there's a chance any three or any combination of those.

"Think it's a great situation. Any one of the three could be a good deal, and a short one." The Hawkeyes also control their bowl destiny, which is as easy in the Big Ten as it's been in recent memory.

Take a deep breath, and look back a couple stops before envisioning the bowl season.

Iowa, and overall, is a good team with a lot of experience. The Hawkeyes have won 17 out of the last 20 games, including last week's win over Minnesota.

The Hawkeyes enter the final three games with a 6-2 record, and with a chance to finish the regular season ranked in the Top-9 to Top-10 for the first time since the 1999 season.

Iowa will just one of the three remaining games, the team will likely be headed to the Big Ten Championship Game. With two more wins, the Hawkeyes will have a shot at the Big Ten title.

However, Iowa has not lost a Big Ten game since 2012, and the Hawkeyes are looking to improve their chances of a Big Ten crown.

In the past, the Hawkeyes have been known to struggle against the Big Ten's top teams, but with a chance to clinch a Top-9 ranking, the Hawkeyes have a chance to prove themselves against the Big Ten's top teams.

Iowa will need to continue to play well if they want to have a chance at a Top-9 ranking, but with the Hawkeyes' performance against the Big Ten's top teams, they have a chance to prove themselves against the Big Ten's top teams.

Brown back in shape

I was at college basketball. I was mad at the spoiled systems in there, because I saw reality, you know. I saw... we always talk about life and death. My job is life and death. The game is life and death. Then, all of a sudden, you get to see life and death, and I brought such a perspective to me.

Let the Weis era begin, Notre Dame says

Ward also noted that Notre Dame has a lot of young guys who are developing. The fighting Irish defense, led by senior linebacker Jaylon Smith, was dominant in the first half of the game. "We’ve been working on our defense for a long time," Smith said. "The guys are really coming together and we’re playing well as a unit."
