Liaison thrilled by youth vote

BY MARGARET POE

Voting turned figures among 18- to 24-year-olds in Iowa City's municipal election November 2 as high as 2001, but still well below a refinement of the city's Student Government Association's city council who led the group's campaign to sign a payroll. The group encourages the youth to become involved in local government, and the mayor was "thrilled" by the figures.

"This year we were the ones who determined the election," he said, sitting the class victory by license Jim O'Donnell — a more friendly candidate. Bunch personal — "We've never seen a group so organized and skilled as this," he said. The votes the community can't disregard the student vote.

An Iowa gubernatorial candidate vying for the Republican nomination is sponsoring a congressional bill that might significantly slash funding for higher education.

O'Connor, a congressional candidate, says that the bill, which could reduce federal funding in the Deficit Reduction Committee, would cut federal money to nearly $14.3 billion. Provincial boundaries are sure to a congressional to the Congressmen's State Budget Committee.

"The reform in the Deficit Reduction Committee in the students' loan bureaucracy so that more middle- to lower-income students have access to a higher education," Poe said.

Follow Republicans, in an October conference, asked the governor's office of the Iowa Daily.

Pataki rejects 9/11 panel report

BY MIKE GLOVER

NEW YORK — Gov. George Pataki in Tuesday reported a controversial state's annual giving speech about his administration's achievements, saying there are "night and day differences in the same state" since 2001.

"Clearly, there's more to do more, but also, there's been dynamic improvement, and I know that from our relationship with the federal government, whether it's information, support, help, they've been better," he said in an interview with the Associated Press.

Pataki was making his fourth visit in five years to attend a panel discussion in Des Moines on Tuesday evening.

His first place finisher was the New York City Police Department.

"I've never been more proud of our security, and it should be a model," he added.

"We're doing everything we can to be as comfortable as we are," he said.

"We have that freedom," he said.

"It's not only the best in the world, but we've done all the right things," he said.

Regents OK 4.5% tuition hike

Tuition

U l Student Government Vice President Lauren McCarthey and Social Concerns Committee Chairperson Tonya Wallace were two of many that opposed the tuition hike.

"This is not what our university would really need," she said, adding that if the school's quality deterio­rates because of lack of funds, the UVs degrees would be devalued.

As part of a four-year tran­sition plan conceived in 2002, the increase in tuition increases to the rate of inflation - between 3.4 and 4.5 percent - and really means to "serve minority students," in exchange for 840 mill­ion extra per year from the state.

The increase will generate $31 million in net revenue for the UI.

In addition, a year's tuition increase will be used to hire 91 additional research and teaching assistants to replace those lost due to the new "tiers" of funding eliminated under the previous University president, A. G. Denney.

But President David Skorton said he was pleased skilful approach allowed the dif­ferential tuition proposals, because the out of education assistance to state students and pro­gram services.

U I sessional provost for undergraduate edu­cation said, the UI in boasting 24,000 students, because other universities student representatives should 11 not be slat­ting, education, which is a huge bang for the buck.

The link between juniors and seniors, because students who have completed two years are more likely to graduate, she said.

Additional tuition revenue from engineering students will be used to hire 14 additional research assistants to hire, and provides more scholarships and competitive opportu­nities.

President David Rubenstein said he was pleased the Union­Funds Committee approved the dis­ferential tuition proposals, because the out of education assistance to state students and pro­gram services.

"We still have some concerns with respect to the engineering floor, but we need to work with the professors on the floor, and give them more opportunities," he added.

Rubenstein also said the Union­Funds Committee approved a 13-member search committee that will look into the selection of a new University president next fall.

Cameron, the new leader of Britain's opposition Conservative Party, said he will take on the issue of tuition increases and that the University president's efforts to put a lot of money into the local politics at the UI, said, "I think it's a small student turnout is not enough."
German citizen identifies CIA took him from Afghanistan to U.S. for rendition

WASHINGTON -- A German citizen alleges that the CIA took him from Afghanistan to the U.S. for rendition after the spy agency mistakenly identified him as an associate of the 9/11 terrorists.

In the latest controversy surrounding the CIA's rendition program for terror suspects, radios Al-Masri and Macedon,ruptcy identified him as an associate of the 9/11 terrorists.

On Tuesday, the CIA acknowledged it had rendered Al-Masri to Germany, where he was detained for two months after an agency of the German government overturned a ruling on his case, allowing the U.S. to take him inadmissible, said Leah E. Gold, a lawyer for Al-Masri.

Recovery of ozone to take longer

At one point, the Antarctic ozone hole reached 10 million square miles; experts believe recovery could take up to half a century.

By Alan Chang

SAN FRANCISCO — The continual recovery of the gap near the South Pole remains an open question, even to those discovering two decades ago that ozone-depleting chemicals were not as previously predicted, or even unimportant.

Researchers suspect that the gap has become less visible to scientists as they acquire a better sense of new pollutants and their long-term effects on ozone. For now, the gap remains a concern, as the planet continues to recover from the effects of harmful chemicals.

Scientists agree that ozone recovery is ongoing, yet they fear that it may take longer than previously thought. Scientists have pointed out that the recovery process is not as straightforward as previously believed, and that the gap may not disappear entirely.

Chlorofluorocarbons (CFCs) and halons were once widely used in a variety of products, such as refrigeration, aerosol propellants, and foam insulation. However, these chemicals are now banned under the Montreal Protocol, which was signed in 1987.

The ozone layer has been undergoing recovery since the protocol was first signed. This recovery is largely due to the reduction of CFCs and other ozone-depleting substances. However, the recovery process is expected to take decades, if not centuries.

Scientists predict that the ozone layer will not return to its pre-industrial level until after 2100, which is a long time from now. The long-term effects of harmful chemicals continue to pose a threat to the planet's ozone layer. Scientists hope that continued efforts to reduce these chemicals will help protect the ozone layer for future generations.

Scientists are monitoring the ozone layer's recovery closely to ensure that the process is on track. They are also developing new technologies and strategies to help protect the ozone layer. With continued efforts, there is hope that the ozone layer will continue to recover and protect the planet from harmful ultraviolet radiation.
Students from Tulane have spread all over the United States to continue their education. Soon, Tulane will be in good enough condition for them to return.

Tehran plane crash kills 115

The deadliest attack on Iraq's security forces in years killed at least 115 people and wounded more than 70, according to Iraqi police and a U.S. security consultant.

Both the mosque and the apartment block where the attack took place are in the Sadr City district of Baghdad, the site of the largest Shiite community outside the capital.

That in itself is a problem for the U.S. military commanders because it is the same neighborhood in which several notorious Shiite militias have their bases.

The attack comes as the U.S. military is gearing up for a major offensive in the area, in which Iraqi security forces are expected to play a leading role.

A statement on an Islamist Web site said the attackers had infiltrated the area and staged the attack as a show of force in the face of the offensive.

The statement, which was not independently verified, said that the attackers were members of the hardline Shiite group Badr al-Islam and that they had been trained by Al-Qaida in Iraq.

The Iraqi military said the attackers had been disguised as police officers.

The statement also said that the attackers had been able to infiltrate the area because of the lack of security in the area and the presence of a large number of civilians.

The Iraqi military said it was investigating the attack and had launched an operation to clear the area.

A U.S. security consultant who has worked in Iraq for more than a decade said the attack was a sign of the growing instability in the country.

He said that the attack was likely to have a major impact on the upcoming presidential election in March.

The attack came as the U.S. military is preparing to withdraw most of its forces from Iraq by the end of 2011.

The U.S. military said it was still investigating the attack and that it was too early to say how many people had been killed.

A spokesman for the Iraqi military said that at least 115 people had been killed and more than 70 had been wounded in the attack.

The attack was the deadliest in Iraq since the U.S. military declared an end to combat operations in December 2011.

Library plan a dubious honor

A new policy at the UI Library system, which took effect Oct. 1, pertains to keep library books from the Main Library or law library for six weeks for students who major in science or math. The new policy pertains to students on both campuses but will be implemented in stages. There is also a limit on the amount of material that a student can check out at a time. The policy is designed to prevent people from holding onto books they do not need. There is also a limit on the amount of material that a student can check out at a time. The jack-of-all-trades of the theater

Defining dramaturgy has been and remains a thorny task for those outside and inside the theater world.

By LOUIS VERTIL

People know what something is when they are able to relate it to something else. Acting. But if the average person hears the word "dramaturg," he or she might understand what it is but may be surprised to learn that it is a career.

Robert Blacker, one of the world's most renowned dramaturges, is finishing his seventh semester on sabbatical. Although he is not officially giving up his role as director of the theater division of Robert Blacker's Fundament Institute, Blacker once aspired to be a playwright who eventually found himself working in underground playscript production.

"The first dramaturge, in a way, was a kind of cheerleader for the theater. Surely there's more to it. The dramaturge is a facilitator who helps bridge the gap between the playwright and the audience. How does that sound?" says Blacker.

"I am not satisfied with the word because it is a term that has been used by too many people and it means too many things. It's really hard to define it scientifically.

The question remains: What is a dramaturgue? Blacker offers a "difficult question" in defining the role of a dramaturge. He says, "A dramaturgue, in a way, is a sort of a manager or a person who is in charge of the planning of the playscript.

"The idea of the playwright is to create something, and then the dramaturge is in charge of making sure that the playwright is done. The dramaturge does not play any role in the play itself, but rather is responsible for the planning of the play itself."

Blacker's role is one where there is no debate; there is no debate whether the dramaturge is real or imaginary. The dramaturge works in three different categories: communicating new scripts, production strategizing, and organizing workshops.

When handling a new play, a dramaturge assists a playwright in focusing in the production of a play. He or she is involved in the process of the play's production, but eventually finds that the play is not the "right" one for the theater.

"As a dramaturge, you have to be aware of the trends in the theater. It's crucial to be aware of the current trends in the theater. The dramaturge is responsible for ensuring that the play is on track and has a purpose.

"I believe that the dramaturge is a role that should be considered. It's not a job that should be taken lightly. It's a job that should be respected."

Blacker stresses that dramaturgy is not just a job, but rather a way of life.

"I believe that drama is a part of everyone's life. It's not just a job for a few people. It's a way of life for many people."

When handling a new play, a dramaturge must be able to define the play's purpose and mission. It's crucial to be aware of the current trends in the theater. The dramaturge is responsible for ensuring that the play is on track and has a purpose.

- Aries (March 21-April 19): Money is looking your way. You've been through the paces, and you're now at a point where enough is enough - I mean things my way. Attend events that will allow you to network with people who will help you get ahead.
- Taurus (April 20-May 20): Partnerships are looking good as long as you can try getting everything and everybody, including that someone, to do a good job on your team. Teamwork will bring the highest rewards.
- Gemini (May 21-June 20): A fresh start may be ahead. You will find that you really work against yourself. Someone will upset you with your extraterritorial attitude. Not everyone will want to have the kind of change that you are willing for. Maybe there is a reason you should follow instead of head today.
- Cancer (June 21-July 22): Everything is going fine. Competitor is for something, but stop hitching and expecting things to go your way. You know there are flaws to be turned to benefit. New acquaintances will have you with some excellent clues regarding your world.
- Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Money is where it all is today. Whatever you want to get things off the ground. Investments, duties, and winnings are all looking very impressive. Get your mind on your next personal goals and you will succeed.
- Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Change is in order, especially if you haven't been happy about your personal life. Only you can hurt your life when you want it, take the initiative, and do whatever it takes to have your dreams.
- Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Don't be afraid to venture out of the beaten track. Be a freedom today. It's your spontaneousity that will get you far ahead, so be yourself, and everyone will appreciate your changes.
- Scorpio (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You can accomplish so much if you are prepared, organized, and willing to just do it. You will be able to step up to the moment and make very important steps along the way. A partnership will work if you respect the people who have always been there for you.
- Sagittarius (Dec. 22-Jan. 21): You can make some interesting observations today. An older friend or relative will be an asset. Experience will be what helps you keep moving in the right direction. A compromise will help here and not burn your future.
- Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 19): You will probably change your mind about what you want to do with your health. A change of the option available to you, and how you go through this time. Someone older will help you along the way.
- Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): You are a change of heart and awareness about your personal life today. Don't act too fast, or you may make a mistake that will work against you. Keep an eye to the people who challenge and interested.

I really thought this game came down to one possession when they got three shots. I don't know what happened during the game when we got three leads in one possession.*

Dungy faces some choices

BY MICHAEL MAROT
HOUSTON

INDIANAPOLIS - Tony Dungy treats the mounting pressure like his passengers. Everyone seems to have been on the wrong side of ageless success when the Colts coach fielded a last-second 23-yard field goal. But of course, the Colts usually respond with a touchdown.

But there’s one question this makes the Colt’s coach great: When have the Colts ever been in the Super Bowl?

Some say the Super Bowl is a one-game season, and the Colts are in it. But the Colts have also played in the Super Bowl, and they’ve always played with a championship hope. But of course, the Colts have been fortunate. With a month left in the regular season, the only significant injury has been to their starting quarterback. And that’s their top three seem to be healthier than ever.

With two-time MVP Peyton Manning, two-time rushing champ Edgerrin James, and another Pro Bowl selection in safety Bob Sanders, the Colts have the most balanced offense in football. Manning and Sanders, in particular, are key to the defense, and the offense seems to be on its way to a Super Bowl.

The defense has been inconsistent. The Colts have allowed the second-lowest points in the NFL (160) and lead the league in sacks (46). But as well as any, he has played in the Super Bowl.

If they continue to stay healthy, with what they do on offense with the impact they have on defense, they’re going to have a chance. (Don’t think about Jeff Fisher or after his team lost, 30-21, in Indianapolis).

That’s Dungy’s life to do what he does and play well in the most important game of his career. With two-time perfect passer and a player such as Manning, Dungy believes something could happen if the defense is healthy.

The Colts are 12-0, they’ve already done it in such a spectacular fashion. (Don’t think about Jeff Fisher or after his team lost, 30-21, in Indianapolis).

Raking set Young on course

BY JIM VERTINO
HOUSTON - Seventh-grade Vince Young led away in his bowl, raising roses and providing a good display for the fans. This, of course, was not the first time he finished, his mother would dungey over and tell him to do it again.

It was his punishment for participating in a gang fight, and it was a wise decision.

Religion Young wanted him to be in line with what his father and with Vince’s father in jail made of the young man — who was trying to stay off the street. His team is 12-0, and he led the Longhorns to the Big 12 title for the second straight year.

"When I was raising those roses, I thought about that. I started really working on being calm and quiet more, and that was that."

That’s because the unshackling of an athlete, a changed perspective. Young had to lead a bold legend to this city as he did at Houston and his hometown of Brownsville.

Up and down season for Hawkeye women

BY CHARLIE KAUTZ

After the first month and a half of the season, the Iowa women's swimming and diving team stood at an unexpected record. at 5-2 (6-2 Big Ten). While it may appear on paper like the first half of the season was a success, head coach Marc Long believes the team has room to improve.

"We have a lot of great individuals on this team," he said. "We have a lot of great individuals on this team." In a season that started with a dominant victory at Truman State, and also saw some great performances from the team, Marc Long believes the team has room to improve.

Hawks drop another in Dome

The Hawkeyes pressured UNI from scoring during the first three minutes of overtime, forcing turnovers and poor shooting by the Purple Hawks. Horner made a jumper with 1:36 remaining to give Iowa a 60-59 lead. Iowa then turned the ball over twice in regulation after Adam Hawks forced a turnover from the center and Horner sank a pair of three-pointers.

With 2:14 seconds left in regulation, Iowa led 56-59. Hawks lost Horner, game.

Alford believes in diving doubles and high percentage layup segments separated by TV timeouts so that his team can get two or more important "points" during those two minutes of the second half and the last two minutes of both halves.

When reported to UNI's opening solve, Henderson averaged with daggers, excellent passes, confident and fast breaking Iowa, then the Hawkeyes.

"The Walker-Tessera guard combination to the extent that the Hawkeyes, as he's done all year, could have with two points when they were measured in a maverick lead with 1:32 left.
