For the second time in two years, an all-women gathering of local philanthropists is aiming to construct a residence for refugees from war-torn and genocide-ravaged Sudan. This time, the Women Build project will place Hyder Eliatham, Weld House, and a family in a brand-new Iowa City residence.

Today, Iowa Valley Habitat for Humanity will play host to an Orientation and Safety Training meeting for women who would like to help build the new house. The foundation for the residence, which will sit at 1806 Rochester Ave., was dug Aug. 3. Project coordinator Jane Hagerdon said work on the couple’s house will differ considerably from past Habitat for Humanity construction. “The construction is going to take longer, but it’s a good thing, because more women will be able to get involved,” she said. “We are also working on a phycologically challenging site, so the walls of the houses are going to be constructed at the new Habitat for Humanity Office, then brought to the site to be put up.”

Women Build is a Habitat for Humanity International program that focuses on women and girls making a difference in their communities by building homes. So far, 1999 for what she said were political reasons.

"If you’re the type of student who do not try Finish in Four," the UI’s peer institutions, officials have offered students the same type of program since 1998. Lynne Tronsdal, assistant vice president for student retention at Arizona, considered to be one of the most innovative in the nation, said the school’s Finish in Four plan is very effective, and students signed up for the agreement are twice as likely to finish as those who do not try Finish in Four.

"It seems to work," he said.

In some ways, the plan is mutually symbiotic. Because students can drop at any time and the agreement can only be beneficial, officials say every student should sign up. As of 2002, 75 percent of incoming freshmen had done so.

Women pitch in to aid family

Women Build has been responsible for building 800 houses globally. The family's new domicile will be the second structure Women Build has tackled in Iowa City. In March 2005, the family started with a house frame. With help from the Women Build volunteers, they will work to complete the house by the end of this year. The family, which consists of two adults and four children, is committed to building their own home. The family hopes to move into their new home soon after it is completed.

Gaza City, Gaza Strip — Two Fox News journalists freed by militants Sunday described a harrowing two weeks of captivity during which they were blindedfolded, tied in painful positions, and forced at gunpoint to say on a video that they had converted to Islam.

After their release, the men met with Palestinian Prime Minister Ismail Haniyeh and left Gaza but first appealed at a brief news conference for foreign journalists not to be deterred from covering the plight of the Palestinians in the volatile coastal strip.

“I hope that this never scaring a single journalist away from coming to Gaza to cover the story, because the Palestinian people are very beautiful and kindhearted,” said Steve Centanni, a 69-year-old American reporter who was released along with cameraman Olaf Wiig, 36, of New Zealand. “We need to know more about them.”

In a phone call with Fox News cameraman Olaf Wiig, who has covered some of the world’s most dangerous conflicts, including Afghanistan of the world’s most dangerous conflicts, including Afghanistan and Iraq, said at the news conference that he also was worried the kidnap might scare reporters away from Gaza.

“It is a very bad thing,” he said. “I don’t know if it was a stick, a flashlight, or a gun or what. We couldn’t see. We were forced to lie face down in the dirt with blindfolds on.”

Their possessions were taken, and their wrists were bound behind their backs. “I still have some sore wrists,” Centanni said. “It was digging into my wrists really badly.”

In captivity, Centanni said, he was forced to lie face down in dark, unlit rooms and stand up, which he did a few times, they would eventually just force us back down with something stuck to my head. I don’t know if it was a stick, a flashlight, or a gun or what. We couldn’t see. We were forced to face down again in the dirt with blindfolds on.”

After their release, a video was released showing Wiig and Centanni dressed in beige Arab-style robes. Wiig delivered an anti-Western speech, his face expressionless and his tone-habiting. The kidnappers claimed both men had converted to Islam.

“We were forced to convert to Islam at gunpoint,” Centanni told Fox. “Don’t get me wrong. Here, I have the highest respect for Islam, and I learned a lot of good things about it, but it was something we felt we had to do, because they had the guns, and we didn’t know what the hell was going on.”

Wiig, who has covered some of the world’s most dangerous conflicts, including Afghanistan and Iraq, said at the news conference that he also was worried the kidnapping might scare reporters away from Gaza.

“My biggest concern, really, is that as a result of what happened to us, foreign journalists will be deterred from coming to tell the story, and that would be a great tragedy for the people of Palestine,” Wiig said. “You guys need to be in the streets, and you need people to be aware of the story.”

“We need to know more about them,” Wiig added. “I hope that this never scaring a single journalist away from coming to Gaza to cover the story, because the Palestinian people are very beautiful and kindhearted.”

Four-year plan works, UI says

‘The plan’ is an agreement for students to get assistance to graduate on time, as long as they’ve met their checkpoints.

— Pat Folsom, director of the UI Academic Advising Center

FOUR YEAR PLAN

Rocklin called the UI’s rate “very good” for a school of its stature and size, noting that just 32 percent of Iowa State University students graduate in four years.

But unlike the UI and Arizona, UCLA, another peer institution, has not implemented a four-year plan — and its strategy seems to be working fine.

Judy Lan, the UCLA media-relations director, and other advisers at the school strive to help students earn their degrees at an appropriate pace. While 10 years ago UCLA had a 44 percent graduation rate, it now boasts a 70 percent mark, she said.

Rocklin said the rates for UCLA were extremely high, attributing it to the school’s rigorous admissions standards. UCLA accepts the top 5 to 10 percent of a high-school graduating class, while Iowa accepts the top 50 percent, he said.

“Better-prepared students are more likely to graduate on time,” Rocklin said.

But for an institution such as the UI with relatively lax admissions standards, the plan provides the push students need, said Pat Folsom, the director of the Academic Advising Center.

“This plan is a good-faith effort on the part of the university,” Folsom said. “It is an agreement for students to get assistance to graduate on time, as long as they’ve met their checkpoints.”

The plan isn’t offered to all degree programs, a few majors are excluded because of factors such as specialized course sequencing or other requirements, Rocklin said.

Mary Adamek, a UI clinical associate professor of music therapy, said majors in her department cannot be included because of a six-month, full-time internship that is required for graduation.

“No one’s leaving us,” she said. “It’s our decision because of the way we curriculum is set up.

Rocklin said she found the conditions of the plan to be manageable and easy to follow.

“I didn’t have any idea how competitive it would be to get in,” she said. “I signed the plan in case I need it and therefore gave a good thing to sign because of the benefits.”

Asthma drug causes some worry

Salmeterol might worsen some asthma effects and, in rare cases, even cause death. UI pediatrics Professor Miles Weinberger recommends that the drug be used only if other asthma medication is ineffective.

FACTS ABOUT SALMETEROL

• Salmeterol is a commonly used component in asthma medications.
• It is safe; salmeterol has had negative side effects.
• Negative effects can be counteracted with proper medical treatment.
• When used properly, salmeterol does effectively slow asthma attacks.
• Physicians should be contacted before using salmeterol.

BY MARK MAGOON

Individuals who suffer from severe asthma may be left more than breathless when they learn of certain difficult-to-diagnose reactions compounded by taking asthma medications that contain the drug salmeterol. UI pediatrician Professor Miles Weinberger is advocating the proper administration of salmeterol to asthmatic patients. Studies have suggested that salmeterol, in certain subgroups, worsen the effects of asthma attacks and possibly end in death.

The UI physician recently wrote a letter to his Aug. 24 letter published in the Journal of Medicine — a special report — about the therapeutic use of salmeterol in treating asthma.

One study — the Salmeterol Multicenter Asthma Research Trial — consisted of two groups of 13,000 asthmatic patients who were tested over 28 weeks. The salmeterol group took salmeterol, and the other was given a placebo. The salmeterol group yielded only 13 deaths after being treated with the drug, while salmeterol was replaced. All deaths were due to his Aug. 24 letter published in the Journal of Medicine — a special report — about the therapeutic use of salmeterol in treating asthma.

We are absolutely, totally committed to doing everything humanly possible to determine the cause of this accident.

Comair President Don Bornhorst said maintenance for the plane that crashed Sunday was up to date, and in three-member flight crew was experienced and had been flying that airplane for some time.

"We are trying to fine-tune, so we will be looking at speeds, we will pull all that information off," Hermann said.

The Atlanta-bound plane plowed through a perimeter fence and crashed in a field less than a mile from the end of that runway about 6:07 a.m. Aerial images of the crash site in the rolling hills of Kentucky's horse country showed trees damaged at the site of the short runway and the nose of the plane almost parallel to the small strip. When measured, the plane was largely intact but in flames. Recovery crews could only reach Front Officer James M. Polehinke, who was taken to University of Kentucky Hospital for facial surgery and was in critical condition.

"They were taking off, so I'm sure they had a fuel on board," Fayette County Coroner Gary Ginn said. "Most of the injuries are going to be due to fire-related deaths."

Those killed included a newlywed couple starting their honeymoon, a director of Habitat for Humanity International, a Florida man who had caught an early flight home to be with his family, and a University of Kentucky official.

The Atlanta-bound plane crashed in nearly five years was only worsened as investigators examined how it happened. Somehow, the plane's pilot's ability to take off from the wrong runway, a stamp of old concrete about 1,500 feet too short for the commuter plane.

Preliminary flight data from the plane's black box recorders and the damage at the scene indicate the CR-100 regional jet took off from the short runway at Lexington's Blue Grass Airport, National Transportation Safety Board Member Debbie Hermann said.

The 3,200-foot-long strip, until barely half the length of the airports main runway is not intended for commercial flights. The twin-engine plane would have needed 6,000 feet to fully get off the ground, aviation experts said.

It wasn't immediately clear how the plane ended up on the shorter runway in the predawn darkness. There was a lightning strike Sunday, and the strip was off at a V from the main runway, which had just been repaved last week.

"We will be looking into performance data, we will be looking at the weight of the aircraft, we will be looking at speeds, we will pull all that information off," Hermann said.

"We are absolutely, totally committed to doing everything humanly possible to determine the cause of this accident," he said. "One of the most damaging things that can happen to an airplane if you don't have some kind of investigation of this magnitude is for speculation or for us to guess at what might be happening."

"Most of the passengers aboard the flight had planned to connect to other flights in Atlanta and did not have family waiting for them, said the Rev. Harold Boyce, a volunteer chaplain at Atlanta's Hartsfield-Jackson airport.

One woman was there exporting her sister. The two had planned to fly together to catch an Alaskan cruise, Boyce said.

"Naturally, she was very sad," Boyce said. "She was handling it fairly well."

The two numbers who died were Capt. Jeff Clay, who was hired by Erlanger, Ky.-based Comair in 1999, and flight attendant Kelly Heyer, hired in 2004. Polhehine has been with Comair since 2002.

The plane had undergone routine maintenance as recently as Aug. 26 and had 14,500 flight hours, "consistent with aircraft of that age," Bornhorst said.

Investigators from the FAA and the safety board were at the scene, and Bornhorst said the family members of the passengers were being contacted by the safety board.

White House spokesman Dana Perino said President Bush, who is spending a long weekend at his family's summer home on the Maine coast, was being briefed on the crash.

Men, Too, play Hawk V-ball

By Kevin McMullen

The club dues are $250 per season, which actually is one of the lowest in the Big Ten," Ephraim said. "At places such as Minnesota and Michigan State, the dues are as high as $500 or $600.

The Iowa club is also attempting to raise funds through businesses and sponsors. The new methods of fundraising are not the only ways the club has gone about this in recent years. "Over the past four years we have been trying to keep the alum more involved with the program. But in the last couple of seasons we have had a better chance to compete every year. "It's definitely exciting, now that we have a returner, we feel like we have something to be proud of."

Both Ephraim and Calcula have worked hard to attempt to promote the team and create a better image for women's volleyball at Iowa. "Our fan base, right now, consists mainly of parents and sometimes a few friends of people who just happen to stumble into the gym," Ephraim said. "But people who do come watch us definitely support us."

And whatever the outcome of the women's volleyball team, there is one certain thing. Those men are going to be cheering them on. "This team is made up of a bunch of hardworking, dedicated young men who love to play volleyball and have a lot of support from the kids that all you can ask for."

Celebrating his 10-year anniversary of turning pro, Tiger Woods won for the 52nd time on the PGA Tour

By Doug Ferguson

AOKON - Tiger Woods celebrated his 10-year anniversary of turning pro by winning for the 52nd time in the Nicklaus Classic, an 18-hole playoff on the course where Woods made his professional debut.

Woods won for the fourth-straight time, a feat matched only by Jack Nicklaus. Woods has never won four in a row, but won his first three. Woods' victory came over the final three holes, then over the final two. Woods was looking for a peculiarity for the second time in his career, the first was 1997 in the final round of the U.S. Open. Ten years ago Woods won a title, the Bridgestone Invitational.

Woods made up a three-shot deficit over the final three holes, then over the final two. Woods was looking for a peculiarity for the second time in his career, the first was 1997 in the final round of the U.S. Open. Ten years ago Woods won a title, the Bridgestone Invitational.

Woods won for the fifth time in the seven years that World Golf Championship has been played at Firestone, and he now owns more than any other golfer on the PGA Tour. Woods has won four times each at Augusta National and TPC Pressure. In 1997, Woods announced in Milwaukee he was turning pro, then last year, his second match against Nicklaus at his age at all times, and his 12 majors are sec-

Today's horoscopes

Aries (March 21-April 19): Take an interest in what the younger people in your life are up to. You will learn a valuable lesson. Someone you respect for his business savvy will be found in a position of power this week.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Things are beginning to fall into place. By being precise and knowing what you want, you will gain respect and support and can move forward. Throw a little playfulness into the mix.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Work on yourself, not on trying to change anything and anyone. You will succeed. Someone is about to take an interesting turn. You should be able to deal with any changes involving your personal or your personal life. Don’t get involved in joint financial ventures.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Your emotions will be difficult to control today. Deal with matters one at a time, and don’t drown yourself in positions that will force you to make a snap decision. You won’t be able to count on someone you thought was depending on you.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): You will have a problem making the right choice with the information you have. Someone is not telling you the whole truth. The person you are depending on is not telling you the whole truth.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You are likely to overlook something very important today. Get a second opinion, or ask others how they view things before you make a decision or prior to doing something.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): There is plenty going on, and as long as you stay on top of everything you start, you stand to make headway. Money deals are tricky, but you can handle the situation. Someone is about to take an interesting turn.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Don’t be confused by emotional issues. You must take a position of strength if you want to gain respect and be treated better. So much is changing around you, and you must be prepared to move with the times.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): You will be surprised at how much you can accomplish just by taking the initiative and going after what you want. Be prepared to answer questions and to deal with whatever comes your way.
