DIWALI CELEBRATION

By Kelli Shaffner

The Indian Student Alliance aimed for a modern and educational view for the UTAs 26th annual Diwali holiday celebration. Held Nov. 10 in the IMU, “Deepal Jasmine Machius” — or “The Festival of Lights” — recognized the many different histories behind the Hindu holiday. Supriya Goel, the president of the Indian Student Alliance, said she was most excited for how the audience would see the different ways in which Diwali is celebrated in various parts of India. She noted that there are very different meanings of Diwali in the religion. “There are so many different aspects to Indian culture,” she said. “They included an ancient story in a modern way.”

According to Shaffner, the event featured skits, dancing, and singing. Audience member Dean said. “They included an ancient story in a modern way.”

During the Diwali celebration organized by the Indian Student Alliance, which celebrated a victory over a vice, they showed the way those performing delivered the messages. “Diwali is a lot more intentional police effort.”

Police doled out 124 violations collected during the last home weekend, Oct. 27. Police doled out 124 violations last weekend with the highest total in years yet this year. This total is $14,750 higher than the amount collected during the last home game weekend, Oct. 27.

Weekend turns into ticket city

By Samantha Miller and Melanie Kucera

The Iowa City police were doing some cracking down of their own. Officers ticketed more than twice as many underage individuals Nov 3 through Nov 13 when compared with any other home football game weekend this year, though officials say this increase wasn’t due to an intentional police effort. More than $23,000 in violations were accumulated last weekend in Iowa City, racking up the highest total in years yet this year. This total is $14,750 higher than the amount collected during the last home game weekend, Oct. 27. Police doled out 124 violations last weekend with the highest total in years yet this year. Busted

Because football and tailgating seem to be synonymous, Iowa alcohole and drug-related crimes are never far behind. When the Hawkeyes are home, the DS will track just how hard people party and make monetary counts of Monday’s twitter. Hawkeyes at this past weekend’s home football game racked up 196 alcohol- and drug-related violations, which could total more than $35,900 in fines.

CR man charged with third OWI

A 27-year-old man faces a felony after officers charged him with a third OWI charge.

Stephen Becker, 27, is charged with third-offense OWI, a felony, and driving with a disallowed license.

According to the complaint, Becker was driving the wrong way in the bar area on Saturday, Nov. 10.

Officers said Becker smelled of alcohol and appeared drunk. He was stopped by police.

Becker told police his driver’s license was suspended, according to the complaint.

Becker’s charges range from simple assault, causing injury, indecent conduct, and unlawful use of an authentic driver’s license.

Charges are related to law enforcement.

Becker, of West Des Moines, was charged on Saturday.

Dinner draws hopefuls

Colors, chants, and candidates carouse at the annual Jefferson-Jackson Dinner.

Outside a shanty town of jumbo yard signs gasped for real estate, and political rumors swirled from trees and overlapping spotlight simultane- ously declared the venue for the annual Jefferson-Jackson Dinner a "Dodd House."

With 32 days until the Jan. 3, 2008, caucuses, campaigning hopefuls have to do what they can to persuade still crystallizing Iowa voters.

"There isn’t a [major] Demo- crat running I wouldn’t mind," said Kay Cerk of Manning, Iowa, said before dinner "I can’t remember a time before that was the case."

Cerk, who has volunteered for both the Rodham Clinton and Obama campaigns, said she will likely choose between the two.

When the event finally started, the master of ceremonies, Speaker of the House Nancy Pelosi, D-Calif., introduced each of the candidates as "the next president of the United States."

The hopefuls took 15 to 25 minutes each to speak on issues such as health care, Iraq, and Obama warned against engaging in "triangulating and poll- driven politics because we’re worried what Rudy [Giuliani] or Mitt [Romney] might say about us.

"Look what happened in the 90’s," Edwards said while speaking about undue lobbyist influence. The Democrats had a president in the White House, and health com- panies and insurance companies killed several health bills.

Rodham Clinton headed the panel that floated the univer- sity. The allowance was against engag- ing in "transplanting and poll- driven politics because we’re worried what Rudy [Giuliani] or Mitt [Romney] might say about us.

Rodham Clinton emphasized her experience and focused her attention on Bush and Repub- licans, calling his tenure "seven years of the few, by the few, for the few for the few!"

Connecticut Sen. Chris Dodd assailed the three front-run- ner’s refusal to promise that US forces would not be in Iraq by the end of their first term. "Any Democrat who doesn’t stand up and say, ‘We’re going to be out of Iraq by 2008’: I wonder what they’re standing for," the Senate Banking, Housing and Urban Affairs chairman said.

Both New Mexico Gov. Bill Richardson and Sen. Joe Biden, D-Del., touted their experiences and understanding of bosses in dealing with for- eign affairs — Biden as a long- time member and the current chairman of the Senate For- eign Relations Committee and Richardson as, among other things, the United States ambassador to the United Nations.

David and Judy Riviello of Des Moines school Cerk’s sat- isfaction with the candidates but are supporting Edwards because of his emphasis on unions.

They said they liked that all the candidates touched on health care. Their health insurance has increased six- fold since he retired, David Riviello said.

Judy, who delayed her retirement to cover bills, said she doesn’t know what, "but something has to be done."

With the event running long — the ending confetti streamed down at 11:18 p.m. — some upper-deck sup- porters filtered out after their candidate had spoken. But Rodham Clinton and Obama were the last to talk, keeping the stadium loud, and most of those with spots at tables below stuck around.

"There isn’t a [major] Democracy running I wouldn’t mind."

Speaker of the House Nancy Pelosi, D-Calif., introduces Democratic presidential-nomination candidate Bill Richardson at the Jefferson-Jackson Dinner in Des Moines on Saturday evening. Pelosi, the master of ceremonies, introduced each candidate as "the next president of the United States."

The 75 PAULAs issued is a huge increase compared with the 18 total during the last Jefferson-Jackson Dinner.

A break down of the cita- tions given were 75 PAULAs, 22 public intoxications, 16 colorful noise of false alarms, five OWIs, three counts of presence in a bar after hours, one mari- juana possession, and an open container possession, accord- ing to a Daily Iowan analysis.

There was also a large jump in the number of underage people receiving tickets. Dur- ing the last home-game week- end, Oct. 26 through Oct. 28, only 11 underage citations were issued, while 61 more received them last weekend.

Speaker of the House Nancy Pelosi, D-Calif., introduc- es Democratic presidential-nomination candidate Bill Richardson at the Jefferson-Jackson Dinner in Des Moines on Saturday evening. Pelosi, the master of ceremonies, introduced each candidate as "the next president of the United States."

Iowa City police Sgt. Vicki Lalls said to her knowledge, the increase wasn’t due to police force.

"As far as I know, [police offi- cers] weren’t doing anything different," she said.

UI junior Megan Gallagher received a PAULA on the night of Nov. 9 while at Vito’s, 119 E. College St.

Gallagher said that since she personally didn’t witness an increase in officers down- town, two of her friends, who also received PAULAs, noticed a greater police presence.

"I can’t believe we all got them," the student exclaimed after being told that she also deserved the $260 ticket.

Former North Carolina Sen. John Edwards spoke out against politicians who accept campaign donations from corporate lobbyists at a fundraising event for Johnson County Democrats.

"We want someone who is going to represent the Democratic Party," he said, arguing the former senator’s focus on key Democratic issues such as health care, job creation, and the environment makes him the best candidate.

"I have a responsibility to you, if I want you to caucus for me, to lay out very specific ideas," he said, urging those in attendance to contact his campaign and request his booklet if they don’t receive one in the near future.

"Twenty generations of Americans have worked to make sure that they always left the country better than they found it, to pass on a better world to our children and our grandchildren, so that they always leave the country better than they did," Edwards said.

"We still have huge work to do to make sure that's true for our children and our grandchildren," he said.

"A year and a half from now we’re not going to have Bush and Cheney to kick around anymore," he said. "That division between a dysfunctional government and the American people is great."

Attacking politicians of both parties who accept campaign contributions from corporate lobbyists, the former senator and candidates are happy to support both Republicans and Democrats. Regardless of which party they support, lobbyists are all pushing the same agenda because they represent the same interests, he said.

"Anyone who says he or she is going to do a better job and this will all get better, they’re talking a lie, they’re not telling the truth," Edwards said. "Don’t replace corporate Republicans with corporate Democrats."

Top doctors linked to UI

Most of Iowa’s top-ranked physicians studied at the UI’s medical school at one point, and some stayed to work in the state.

By Zhi Xiong

Joseph Buckwalter cannot remember how many times he has been ranked in the Best Doctors in America database — “quite a few times,” he said.

Buckwalter is one of 269 Iowa physicians out of 487 listed this year who would lose some aspect of medical training — school, residency, or fellowship — at the UI’s College of Medicine.

He is among the 61 percent who regard it to be very or extremely important to practice here, before young people eager to leave the state earned the nickname “Generation Brain Drain” from legislators.

"People like me are unimportant in the fourth generation Iowan, whose great-grandfather came here in 1864. But it’s such a stimulant for the rest of the community to know that we want to go anywhere else," he said.

To make it onto the list, a physician is nominated by others in the same specialty. The international company asks doctors to rate others through peer surveys, telephone interviews, and polls. One question is, "Would you personally have this person taking care of you?" Buckwalter said.

Published rankings are a useful tool for patients, he added.

"What’s impressive is that more and more people look up on the Internet before they come in and see the doctors," he said.

About 5 percent of the nation’s physicians make the cut, according to the Best Doctors website. While the honors do not change medical practice — “physicians try to do their best all the time” — the recognition can draw young people seeking a career to the UI, Buckwalter said.

Having earned spots on other national physician rankings, he also stressed its importance.

"It can give the lay public confidence and comfort in their care," Weinstein said.

The Daily Iowan - Iowa City, Iowa - Monday, November 12, 2007 - 14
By Amanda McClure

The Iowa City School District Superintendent Lane Flugge will ask School Board members on Tuesday to approve a plan for a new elementary school in the North Corridor.

The exact location of the proposed building has yet to be announced, but Flugge has said the facility will be located in the North Corridor.

"We've known for a number of years that something needed to happen," said School Board member Liz Crooks. "We need to alleviate the development and growth."

The new school is in response to the growing districts near North Liberty and Coralville. "North Liberty is one of the fastest-growing communities in Iowa, and the School District is having difficulties keeping up," Flugge said.

"We have a significant number of people who do have or are at risk of becoming obese," she added. "That we have found our students are different from those nationwide."

The Safe Routes program organizes active transportation among kids to encourage their health. Normally, drivers in Iowa are limited to 10 hours off duty before the driver must return to service. Culver's order requires carriers to document the request and requires or allow a fatigued or ill driver to operate a truck.

TheUI pushes classes on Fridays

UI college looks to combat Thirsty Thursdays and increase Friday classes with a financial-incentive program.

By Jennifer Delgado

"The UI is creating a monetary incentive program to entice students to attend classes on Fridays to the Liberal Arts and Sciences to switch classes on Fridays.

Under the proposed plan, which is designed to decrease binge drinking on Thursday night, the UI will pay departments $50 per student per switching class, offices said.

"The UI says that students from Missouri that students from other states that have lower minimums have drank half as much as students who choose to drink the weekend after work.

When the research came out, we wanted to see if we could increase the number of students in liberal arts, UI扦قاد總裁 Thomas Kirkland said. "The Liberal Arts and Finance administration developed a strategy that made sense for the college."

The program will take effect fall 2008, and the UI will pay $50 per student to switch classes, a designated walk-to-work day, or a crossing guard appreciation day.

Markley said the Iowa budget funded 21 projects last year, the organization has 68 applications, and other groups can apply for funding.

"We have a significant number of people who do have or are at risk of becoming obese," she added. "That we have found our students are different from those nationwide."

The Safe Routes program organizes active transportation among kids to encourage their health. Normally, drivers in Iowa are limited to 10 hours off duty before the driver must return to service. Culver's order requires carriers to document the request and requires or allow a fatigued or ill driver to operate a truck.

The proclamation, signed Nov. 16, 2011, "(permits) carriers to require or allow a fatigued or ill driver to operate a truck." Culver's order requires carriers to document the request and requires or allow a fatigued or ill driver to operate a truck.

"Growth is a good problem to have," said Flugge. "We would want to have to deal with the alternatives."

Iraqi leader: Attacks down

By Lauren Frayer

BAGHDAD — Iraqi Prime Minister Nouri al-Maliki said violence in the capital has fallen markedly since last year’s high, calling it a "groundswell" of support from regular Iraqis.

"This is an indication that society is coming together, that the capital’s most dangerous areas are seeing a significant decrease," Maliki said Sunday he believes the decrease would hold because of what he called a "sense of security."

MORE EFFECTIVE TRAINING OF VOLUNTEERS

The legislation would give veterans of the 9/11 era the kind of educational opportunities that are available to service members of the National Guard and Reserves who serve combat tours.

But I have a nagging feeling that these are not the real issues, that what we are missing is a deeper problem. I'm convinced President George W. Bush is running for re-election. I sincerely believe hyper-simplistic foreign policy — fiscal discipline — was abandoned long ago. I sincerely believe hyper-simplistic foreign policy — fiscal discipline — was abandoned long ago. The last of this year's signs for City Council candidates were yanked out of lawns by the city's code enforcement officers. It is easy to imagine, line by line, debate over the 21-ordinance approval is finally beginning to cross the finish line from those previous phases. Just as the echoes of voter-fraud allegations and voter impropriety still be an issue. It's important to understand the impressive nature of the plan: the Hawkeyes on the field of battle, not on the field of controversy.

The sacrifices of these brave men and women imbue Veterans Day with a profound sense of reflection. Similarly, there is a need to reform the antiquated system of education benefits for those who served in combat tours.

No Boil Pasta Bake

Hands down, this is the easiest pasta casserole you'll ever make. Even better, cleanup is a minimum because all (and by all, we mean four) ingredients are mixed in a pan. Plus, it's delicious! Make sure to buy buying sauce, this is found with regular pasta sauce but is labeled specifically for baking. -- Cole Cheney

Iowa native Heder Hedges wrote and directed Dan in Real Life — a touching, albeit occasionally formulaic, profile of a family's struggles, in a similar vein to Heig's previous work in Pieces of April.

Dan (Steve Carell, in full Little Miss Sunshine serious mode) is a widower father of three girls. After leaving for an annual family reunion, all of his daughters are unhappy with him — he won't let them drive. Dan doesn't understand their deep and passionate love for his toys and his physicality. In general, as his youngest daughter states, "It's a good father, but not a good dad."

Ironically enough, Dan makes his living writing advice columns targeting frazzled parents similar to himself. He asks for her number, and even chose him for the role), Carell and Binoche make it work. Young talent has breathed life back into the genre — a sur-

NFL DOUBLE OVERTIME

Their drought is finally over.

As the clock wound down in the opening minute of sudden victory, the Boilermakers clenched their fists and rode the momentum to an 18-17 win over the Buckeyes. It was the first home win in 73 days, as the Boilermakers swept to eight matches, spanning 18-straight games.

Iowa football players and fans reclaim Floyd of Rosedale after a 21-16 win over Minnesota at Kinnick Stadium on Nov. 10. The trophy has traded hands between the Hawkeyes and the Golden Gophers over the years, a tradition started when the states’ governors made a bet to award a prize pig to the victor of the 1935 football game between the schools. See more photos, 4B & 5B or go to dailyiowan.com for a photo slide show.

“Yeah, it feels good [to have Floyd back], we didn’t have any. We didn’t have the Wisconsin one, but we lost the Cy-Hawk and we didn’t want to to end the season with no hardware in the atrium as coach calls it.” — Jake Christensen, sophomore quarterback

Iowa’s dynamic junior duo of Damon Evans and Alex Tsirtsis, Ryan Penner, Phillip Keddy and Brent Metcalf earned tech falls. And Joe Slaton and redshirt freshman Aaron McCurdy produced the most finishes.

The Hawkeyes recapture Floyd of Rosedale

The Hawkeyes beat Penn State, 31-16, to win their third straight game. They have won three-straight games and improve to 6-5 overall.

A team that’s last in the Big Ten in scoring, rushing, and total offense will never have an easy time winning ball games. But somehow, the 2007 Iowa Hawkeyes have an easy time winning ball games. But we’re playing better,” Ferentz said.

Nothing easy for Hawks

By Alex Johnson

Winning three straight games and improving to 6-5 will never be easy, but we’re playing better this fall.

What's a season to be proud of, anyway? Nothing easy for the Hawkeyes.

The Hawkeyes have overcome injuries, poor, and uncharacteristic losses at Penn State and Purdue to manage to finish 4-4 in conference play.

The Hawks have overcome most of the initial doubts. But we’re playing better,” Ferentz said. Achieving that status was never easy; not even against what’s possibly the nation’s best defense.

“Having the opportunity to win 3rd straight is quite amazing when you think about how we turned the season around. I’m proud of the way we were able to turn the season around,” junior quarterback Jake Christensen said. "We didn’t have the season we thought we would have, but we weren’t able to put that behind us and just keep working, and we’ve ended the season with no hardware in the atrium as coach calls it."

The Hawks outlasted Minnesota, 21-16, to earn bowl eligibility for a seventh-straight year.

"Iowa has never been easy for us," Ferentz said. "Anybody who doesn’t think we’re playing better, they’re out of touch. That’s what we’ve been working on, and that’s been the way since January.

“Right where we want to be,” said Young, who added that his team had been getting more physical on defense.

“Every time we put together four quarters, it’s going to be a big factor for us,” he said. “I think our defense is settling in.

The Cyclones and the Badgers, the leaders and a pair of remarkable teams, have split the first two weeks of conference play, the Badgers winning the opener, 35-14, and Iowa holding on for a 31-28 win last week.

This time around, a rare start from backup senior Damian Sims at wide receiver, Iowa will host the Gophers. Despite facing the Gophers’ talented secondary, the Hawkeyes have shown they can get the job done.

The major change the Hawkeyes have undergone this season has been on defense, Iowa outscored Minnesota 12-0 in the second half. Iowa’s defense has been playing consistently, and the Hawkeyes feel six wins, though it has been challenging. But we were looking for ways to improve, and we have been doing that, Chris Fendel, Iowa’s co-defensive coordinator, said.

“Tackling is where we’ve gotten better from the offense and the determination to take control of the ball,” Fendel said.

“We really talked about that during the week, starting fast and putting more pressure on the board in the first half, and we did that. But we obviously didn’t score enough in the second half. We still haven’t played a complete game yet, which is a positive for us when you’re 6-0,” he said.

The best illustration for the first half came on third-and six from the 4 and the 5 positions, said Bluder. “She’s really quite capable of playing either position, and she adjusted between them very well.

Young said he was keeping an eye on his team’s performance Sunday, saying he was looking for ways to improve.

Minnesota gave Iowa all it could handle Nov. 10, but the Hawkeyes brought Floyd of Rosedale back to the Hawkeye State with a 21-16 victory over the Golden Gophers. The win gave Iowa the six necessary to become bowl-eligible, helping the Hawkeyes to a final 4-4 record in Big Ten play this season.

It’s nice to get the win against a big rivalry team and to bring some hardware home, because our case has been kind of empty.”

“We know it’s going to take seven wins for us to move on in the postseason, and we knew we had to send the seniors out with their last Big Ten game at home.”

It was the second time this season the Hawkeyes scored a touchdown in the first quarter, and the only third quarter they’ve put any points on the board in the series.

They had me covered, and I just happened to pull it into the end zone after catching a 28-yard pass from quarterback Jake Christensen, leaving the Hawkeyes in scoring position at the Minnesota one-yard line on Nov. 10. Running back Albert Young scored on the next play.

Iowa wide receiver Paul Chaney Jr. tries to pull in the 8-yard tipped pass for the first score of the game. Brandon Myers’ touchdown half left, fell incomplete, maintaining Iowa’s 21-16 advantage.

Senior Diane Nukuri headed the Hawkeyes on their only victory, a first-place finish in the 400-yard medley relay. Freshmen Will Whaley and Sophomore Michael Gilligan were also victorious in the 100-yard butterfly and 200-yard freestyle, respectively.

"It's definitely good to race teams like this," Whaley said. "This meet showed how far we've come this season." Whaley won his third straight 200-yard freestyle race.

"Our score this year against Purdue this year was better than the last time. Even though the team lost in total points, that a sophomore and freshman took two victories from a nationally ranked opponent is excruciating for the team, which has 15 freshmen," Gilligan said.

"These guys are winning races," Long said. "It's exciting, because that's the future." This week, the Hawkeyes will try to use it's dominant showings on the track to head to Truman State for a meet on the penultimate weekend of the season.

"Andy Napier has continued with his improvement that we've been seeing." Napier was the second finisher for the Hawkeyes, placing ninth with a time of 30:30. Luciano's finish earned him the ninth-place finish out of 25 runners. The Hawkeyes finished one spot out of the NCAA Midwest Regional over the weekend in Columbus, Ohio, on Oct. 28. Nukuri became the Hawkeyes' first ever regional champion last year, but the team was most likely disappointed in its results.

Nukuri's 6K time of 19:37 was the ninth-place finish, besting No. 12 Illinois, 79-105. Iowa's 79-place to receive all-america honors. Armstrong and Wieczorek were both first-year members of the team. They were also the first Hawkeyes to win an event in track and field.

"We put in a lot more effort than we did before," said Nukuri. "We're looking forward to the meet this weekend." They will compete against top-notch competition at the NCAA meet. However, the Hawkeyes were also surprised to find out that they would be receiving an at-large invitation to the NCAA meet in Terre Haute, Indiana, on Nov. 19. Although the Hawkeyes finished one spot out of automatically qualifying spots, they have a 25th position in automatic qualifying spots, the highest position in the field. They will compete against a huge field. If Iowa can achieve one of the 13 at-large invitations granted today, they will earn a second-year member to compete.

The Iowa men's swimming and diving team could've pulled with a speedy Purdue team at home. For one,Things are looking up for the men's swimming and diving team. They have improved immensely from last year and are learning how to step up and how to race.

Oh, you just you know what? I pretty much just did that. You can shake a hand and say “No” to this. It’s just a quick little note. And I don’t know about you, but I really have a few.
