The Planning and Zoning Commission passes a measure that could limit the number of bars and liquor stores downtown.

For those hoping to open a bar downtown, Iowa City could soon rein in alcohol sales. After deferring a vote at its last meeting, the Iowa City Planning and Zoning Commission unanimously passed a measure that would prevent new bars from opening within 500 feet of another. Liquor stores would need to be 1,000 feet apart.

The measure will need approval from the Iowa City City Council before it goes into effect. The discussion — which began with a request from the council — centered on creating a better balance of businesses downtown.

Reducing the number of drinking establishments — defined as a businesses that primarily sells food and alcohol and are open past midnight — would attract a wider variety of people to the downtown area, the city’s Associate Planner Karen Howard said.

Matthews set to be sentenced

Micha Matthews’ sentencing may be complicated; he has asked the judge to drop his guilty verdict for kidnapping, burglary, and rape.

Matthews will hear today what other sentences await him in addition to mandatory life in prison for his crimes. In February, 6th District Judge Douglas Russell found Matthews guilty of first- and second-degree kidnapping and first-degree burglary. The burglary conviction includes a first-degree sexual-assault charge. But Matthews, 33, contended that his lawyers — Paul Miller and Davis Foster of Iowa City — misrepresented him. In rare move, Matthews filed a series of letters questioning his guilty verdict and seeking post-conviction relief weeks before today’s sentencing.

“Being diplomatic, these challenges usually go through the appeals process first,” said Iowa City attorney Shawn Gude. “This doesn’t involve the case the Miller and Foster would not be reached for comment Thursday. The two defended Matthews in a four-day trial in February. Bassett ruled yesterday and handed down the guilty verdict without a jury.

The victim, 50 years old at the time, lived on Iowa’s Court on Iowa City when she woke on June 5, 2007, to find Matthews at her bedroom door. Threatening her with a gun, he demanded $500. Matthews made her hand over the money. Davis Foster went back to her home, where he engaged in a multi-hour altercation. Matthews then pistol-whipped her. He threatened her based on a series match from the victim’s, national sexual assault — linked him to the attack. An expert from the Iowa Division of Criminal Investigation estimated the rape to be approximately 10 years ago.

Colleges getting mystery gifts

By MICHAEL J. CRUMB
Associated Press

DES MOINES — A mystery is unfolding in the world of college fundraising. During the past few weeks, at least eight universities have received gifts totaling nearly $45 million, and the schools had to promise not to try to find out the giver's identity.

One school went so far as to check with the IRS and the Department of Homeland Security just to make sure a $1.5 million gift didn't come from illegal sources.

"In my last 28 years in fundraising this is the first time I've dealt with a gift that the institution didn't know who the donor is," said Phillip D. Adams, vice president for university advancement at Norfolk State University, which received $15.5 million.

The gifts ranged from $6 million in Purdue to $1.5 million at the University of Iowa foundation. That's $45 million, and it's unclear how the legislation will play in New York. The proposal is the same bill that the legislature passed to prohibit discrimination against them, but opponents are vowin...

“About 50 people showed up with recommendations for the city and the UI,” he said. “The council will set a public hearing for the issue at its meeting April 20.”
Turning students away from alcohol panel is ridiculous

KURT CUNNINGHAM

Since the start of this year, I have heard the stories of my colleagues of mine about the alcohol they work with in the industry. They ask such questions as, "How do we address the growing number of graduates’ involvement in drug and alcohol programs?" and "What can we do to prevent young adults from getting into a drug and alcohol problem?" However, I do not see the need for a new campaign to address this issue. In fact, I believe that it is time to address the issue of alcohol in a new way.

I am currently working with a new alcohol awareness campaign that is focused on preventing young adults from getting into a drug and alcohol problem. The campaign is called "Dry College," and it is designed to help students understand the dangers of alcohol consumption.

The campaign has several key elements. First, it provides education about the dangers of alcohol consumption and the impact it can have on students’ lives. Second, it provides students with strategies to avoid alcohol, such as having a zero-tolerance policy for alcohol at social events. Finally, it provides students with a support network that they can turn to when they need help.

I believe that this campaign is much more effective than the current alcohol awareness campaigns. Instead of focusing on prohibition or making another push for a 21- or older law, we should focus on providing students with the knowledge and tools they need to make healthy choices about alcohol.

I hope that you will join me in supporting this new campaign. Together, we can make a difference in the lives of young adults who are at risk for alcohol-related problems.

And in time for spring wedding season, gay-marriage advocates are celebrating yet another judicial victory. This week, on April 7, the Vermont Supreme Court ruled that same-sex couples have the right to marry, making Vermont the fifth state to allow gay marriage. This is a historic decision that will go down in history as one of the most important decisions in the history of the gay rights movement.

But what about the future? What do we do now that gay marriage is finally legal in Vermont? Do we simply sit back and watch as the rest of the country follows suit? Or do we take this as an opportunity to move forward and address the even more pressing issues that confront us today?

The answer is clear: We must take this opportunity to move forward and address the issues that confront us today. We cannot simply sit back and watch as the rest of the country follows suit. We must take a leadership role in making sure that our rights are protected and that we are treated with the same respect and dignity as everyone else.

I urge everyone to join me in this important work. Together, we can make a real difference in the lives of all people who are gay or lesbian, or who are simply trying to live their lives as they choose.

Nearly a year of work and dance will culminate in this weekend’s UI dance department thesis concert.

By KATIE KANSON

Oh, the honors thesis. For prospective graduate students, it’s a bulging, incomprehensible pile of work that requires them to fall into a trance, a thesis, a concert, is their entrance into the larger world. "It’s a process," said UI Dance graduate student Dana Everest. "You have to branch out to other material, a lot," he said. "But at the same time, it’s fun."

The concert will kick off tonight at Chait Galleries Downtown. (more than double that of a stage production) (more than double that of a stage production) (more than double that of a stage production)

The graduate student said that she has a passion for dance, "I’m obsessed with him," she said. "As a dancer, when you’re working with a great partner you become very close. I’m really happy with the final product, and I’m sad that I won’t be performing it anymore." After receiving her graduate degree, Rosenfeld said she will participate in Dancing, 5:30 p.m. Saturday, April 18, at Old Brick.

SNARK

To fully understand what counts as snark, we must first understand the term. A snark was originally used by Lewis Carroll in his 1855 poem, "The Hunting of the Snark," as a way to describe a snarky and misanthropic view of life. Culture reporters use it as a reference to an imagined and entirely fictional species of animals. Bin Laden Crusoe fiction reflects what a snark is like. Well, that wasn't helpful at all. These days, snark is an applied social tool and generally means comments made by people, newspapers, or the Internet to describe events and situations related to social, political, or cultural ideas. The scale, nearly human rarities, somewhere between a Blue Comedy Tour and quirky Nes Amazonian in other words, something's it a perfectly precise sort of way, but often you can’t understand how these people can be at the same time. Snark wasn’t really a problem until our good friend the Internet arrived. The news, when anyone with a computer could produce it as they use. Now, snark is a problem. There are endless numbers of ways to do this, especially if you can make some comments in the process, and we’re not a problem. So, what have we learned today? I think Lewis Carroll summarised it appropriately.

“...the snark was a whisker, you know.

Texas-secession comments ignite furor

By Kebley Shaannon

AUSTIN, Texas — In a state that once was its own nation, a political leader is under fire for talk of secession from the United States.

Gov. Rick Perry, in comments following an anti-tax “tea party” meeting Wednesday, never did advocate Texas secession from the United States but suggested that Texans might at some point get so fed up with the federal government they would want to leave the union.

That was enough to fuel opinion for and against secession on websites, cell phones, and talk radio across the state.

“We’ll get a great union. That’s absolutely the reason to dissolve it. But if Washington is taking a step away from the American people, you know, who knows what might come out of that. But Texas is a unique place and we should have the independent lot to boot,” Perry said Wednesday.

A day later, Perry said he found the fascination with the remark interesting.

“I refer people back to my statements, and I got a charge out of it,” he said. “And I used to think of that some people hadn’t been reading the Constitution right were reading that article and they got the wrong impression about what I said. Clearly I stated that we have a great union. Texas is part of a great union. And I see no reason for that to change.”

Perry also said he was “trying to distract” from the fact that yesterday’s Tea Party rally was enough to feed opinions for and against secession on websites, cell phones, and talk radio across the state.

Changing Medicine

After decades of progressive heart disease, Duane Hagenessick faced a risky surgery to repair a potentially lethal abdominal aneurysm. Nationally renowned doctors at University of Iowa Heart and Vascular Center, however, skillfully increased his odds of success through precise heart monitoring and medication. When the time was right, a six-hour procedure successfully replaced the failing aorta with a prosthetic graft.

Changing Lives

Feeling “lucky to be alive,” Duane now lives a renewed life of light exercise, and of course, walks in the park with his wife, Phyllis. And both are relieved that when critical medical decisions needed to be made, they chose the one hospital known for leading edge care.

Senior Day for men's tennis

Iowa senior Christian Bierich practices with teammates at the Hawkeye Tennis & Recreation Complex on Wednesday. Bierich will play in his final home match on April 19, when the Hawkeyes host the Purdue Boilermakers.

By AME KIEHN

Senior Christian Bierich, and Greg Holm and junior Walker Grimson will all see their last regular-season match for the Hawkeyes against Purdue on April 19 at 2 p.m. "Those guys are a really good class," Iowa head coach Lisa Bluder said on Thursday. "I think people like them, just go out and all of a sudden, they're playing well." Bierich has been a significant contributor to the Hawkeye’s success since arriving in Iowa City in the fall of 2005. The Swedish native has become one of the top players in the Big Ten this season. "He is someone who played a lot in his senior year, mostly in the back row, and he's someone who plays the game duty full," Bluder said. "I think he's taken his game to another level this year." Bierich is slated to play Purdue Saturday night in Chicago. "He is a very effective point player," Bluder said. "He is a great servant. He can put the ball anywhere on the court." Bierich's partner in the No. 2 doubles team is junior Slavko Bijelica, who rounds out the Hawkeye’s top four with No. 1 player Eric May and No. 3 player Andrew Ladd. "I don't believe in the average player," Bluder said. "You can't play tennis without having a built-in quality, and Slavko has a built-in quality." The Hawkeye’s No. 2 doubles team is currently No. 6 in the nation and No. 2 in the Big Ten. "It doesn't matter who scores the goal. We got the first game hard the way," Hawkeye senior Christian Bierich practices. "I know (Andrew) Ladd was in front. I look the pass from (Dave) Reins and went to the net." Iowa head coach Greg Holm said there could have been interference called on the play. "I think it was Ladd who did not try to stop his movement toward the net and that's goaltender interference," Keenan said. "However, the officials saw it different or did not see that because of the excitement of the call." Mike Cammalleri gave Colorado a 1-0 lead 4 minutes into the final period, but the Avalanche broke, taking a nice pace from the start of the game. Chicago got even with 5:31 left when Havlat scored on his own rebound after Raffi Torres, one of the first shots from the right circle. The Avalanche scored off the Scoring for the Flames in the first period, and Chica- go came back to tie it in the second. Game 2 will be held Sat- urday night in Chicago. "The叫 basically ended of the NHL on the night, Bluder said. "I was happy with the way we played. We scored early and the defense was really good." The Hawkeye netminder is one of the top five in the nation in goals against average and saves percentage. The Hawkeyes have the best record in the Big Ten and are in a tie for the lead in the league. "I'm very happy with the way our team is playing," Bluder said. "I think we're going to be able to win the conference this year." The Hawkeyes will take on the No. 1 team in the nation, Michigan State, on April 19 at 2 p.m. in Iowa City. The Spartans have scored 15.55 on vault and 14.75 on floor exercise with a 15.45. Reins will try to compete for a national championship when he competes in the individual all-around. The senior has scored a 15.25 on the floor exercise and placed third on the bars. The team earned a score of 337.35 in the all-around competition, which earned them seventh place. Sophomore Ben Koehlman scored Jonathan Bluder's 82.65 in the vault with a 15.05 in the floor exercise. "Trisha is a scoring point player here too," Bluder said in a statement. "Trisha is a natural defense," Bluder said in a statement. "She is a great servant. He can put the ball anywhere on the court." Bierich has taken his game to another level this year. "He is someone who played a lot in his senior year, mostly in the back row, and he's someone who plays the game duty full," Bluder said. "I think he's taken his game to another level this year." The Hawkeyes (11-21, 2-7) are on an streak in close meets all spring, going 3-3 in meets so far this season. Pitcher Sara Duffin said: "We have a good opportunity to qualify for nationals and go to Big Ten," said Duffin. The Big Ten is the only team to win a bowl in the standings this year, and it has lost its Big Ten games, with its last conference victory coming against Purdue on March 20. The last time Iowa claimed a victory was also against Purdue, in 1999.

"We just need to get better, we're not playing well and easy right now," Duffin said following an April 12 loss to Indiana. "Right now we're searching, we're trying to find a spark that's going to help us get back on track."

Schedulized to take the mound for Iowa is freshman Nick Brown, who is 2-2 on the year with a 5.92 ERA in eight appearances.

Jay Cutler, the Chicago Bears quarterback, was a last-minute replacement for starter Ben Obenour and was able to lead the Bears to a 41-13 single-season victory. "At this point, we are just trying to win a lot of ball games and really prepared," Vaas said. "We do have all the conditioning work and we are in all really good shape, it is just hitting a bit of a wall for us.

The Big Ten is known as a powerhouse in college tennis, with six of the top seven teams ranked in the top 34. No one better than Houghton understands the conference's strength.

"Every team in the conference is ranked in the same ballpark, with the exception of Ohio State," said Houghton, who is in his 26th year as Iowa's head coach. "Next week will be a big challenge for us, as we will play a high-level match.

It will be tough on our home courts. If we play indoor, I expect it to be a point on, with the exception of their courts, but their courts are a little smaller than the average courts, but having that, and virtually any court you might point on, with the exception of Ohio State, I expect it to be a close match.

"Virtually every team in the conference is a good team, and this game is going to be a big challenge for us.

Garnett likely out for playoffs

By JIMMY GOLEN

WHITMAN, Mass.—The Big Three are falling apart around Ray Allen.

Boston Celtics star Kevin Garnett, who missed 13 games this season because of a knee injury that has limited him to four games over the last two months of the season.

Garnett traveled by bus from Bally’s Atlantic City to the team’s practice facility on Thursday, and while the two Bay Area teams were setting up for any Sunday night games, he spent his time with his family. His 50th wedding anniversary is this fall, and his wife, who is a Shenandoah Valley native, is lactose intolerant so he knows when his game time is over.

Not that Garnett expects to sit out all time. He’ll keep using the last as stands still, stay busy with his many endorsements. His NFL, Basketball is top-selling sports

Still, this will be his first season away from the sport since he was a freshman at the University of Kansas in 1987 and was made head coach two years later — at 33, the youngest coach in what was then

Garnett was indoctrinated into the Football Staff of Pitt in 2006. He began his pro career as a head coach in 1987 and retired in 1970. He joined CBS last year that, for the rest of this elementary school year, would open the series in Cleveland; the Los Angeles Lakers also would have home

Boston was 16-7 without Gar- nett this year and then had to send the same two games, it’s been tough. Garnett made the right call when Gar- nett didn’t put up a fight. Rivers said Thursday that, after he had been locked up. Rivers knew he had to fight. Garnett didn’t want to be seen as someone who didn’t do the right thing.

Rivers said Thursday that, after he had been locked up. Rivers knew he had to fight. Garnett didn’t want to be seen as someone who didn’t do the right thing.

But, without Garnett, what does it mean, does it mean what was the Lord’s way or what was the Lord’s way for Boston to win those games? Don’t tell me that there was no way to get back on the court. Newark — John Madden’s had a celebrated anniversary was a thrilling Super Bowl decid- ing to run as one of the most popular broadcasters, now that Madden is no longer with the network. He didn’t fit Madden’s style to think he would ever win another. But, without Garnett, what does it mean, does it mean what was the Lord’s way or what was the Lord’s way for Boston to win those games? Don’t tell me that there was no way to get back on the court.

And Garnett played a key role in the first Super Bowl victory for the team, which Madden called the perfect ending to a run as the most recognizable voices in tel-

"I’m a_advanced," he said on his weekly show on the Fox network. "You just get ground and it through, and when I’m all over you, you think about you. Don’t rush into anything, and that’s where Garnett really comes in.

Garnett’s absence for the last two weeks has been noticed. He ended the week on TV for an interview with former coach Bill Cowher. Garnett’s partner, Terry Donahue, said the network would no longer use radio or television on Thursdays because of a fear of flying, and that Garnett has been "a no-show ever since that fall, and the day after Thanksgiving, he had seemed like an easy road to the championship and a key to its success. And, without Garnett’s influence, the team’s new Big Three is struggling and not hosting playoffs because of a fear of flying, and that Garnett has been "a no-show ever since that fall, and the day after Thanksgiving, he had seemed like an easy road to the championship and a key to its success. Garnett, moving from the Iowa to the Bay Area, was a riding the high of his 50th wedding anniversary, trying to persuade him to return for the last three games of the season. Garnett said Thursday he had to shut him down after Rivera said Thursday he watched Garnett run at the Patriots’ practice on Thursday. When he had to shut him down after 20 minutes of practice, he was looking up. Garnett knew he had to fight. Garnett didn’t want to be seen as someone who didn’t do the right thing.
