“[It] hasn’t overall affect- ed me that much,” he said. Carpenter recalls being stopped by an Iowa City police officer the summer before his freshman year. He was charged with going 90 miles in a 70 mph zone and a little bit of jail time and a pretty hefty fine. He ultimately paid $2,500, and the newer version of the UIHC lays off workers.

Binge drinking and its consequences — drunk driving and alcohol-related deaths — are on the rise, nationally but it’s no surprise to the UI community.

State may try alternate route to teaching

The UI will participate with Iowa State University and the University of Northern Iowa in a new program that gives Iowa citizens an alternate way to get their teaching license.

Some UIHC employees will receive termination notices this week.

By SCOTT KAYNOR

Today, some UI Hospital

and Clinic employees will learn whether their jobs have been cut in an effort to relieve the institution’s strained budget.

Throughout the week, the affected employees will hold meetings with their managers and human-touces representatives, in which they will be informed of their terminations.

UIHC spokesman Tim Morecroft

said the hospital was taking a careful approach.

To reduce the overall effect of the layoffs, officials will offer to retrain select employees during their notice period — the time between their notiication of termination and the end of their employment — to work in other departments.

“If there are people we can retrain and put in another position, we’ll do it,” said Jean Robillard, the UI vice president for Medical Affairs.

The U.S. Senate has approved a bill that aims to discourage smoking by conducting an opinion poll of the population.

The City of Dubuque, Iowa, has launched a new initiative aimed at reducing drug use among students. The program, called "Safe Schools, Safe Communities," includes a comprehensive drug education curriculum and a network of trained counselors to provide support and resources to students.

To combat the rise in cigarette smoking among youth, the FDA has proposed regulations that would require manufacturers to reduce nicotine levels in tobacco products. The regulations are aimed at reducing addiction and making it harder for young people to start smoking.

According to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC), smoking is the leading cause of preventable death and disease in the United States. The proposed regulations are expected to have a significant impact on reducing smoking rates among youth.

The bill, which was introduced by Senator Richard Burr (R-NC), would give the FDA the authority to regulate e-cigarettes, which have become increasingly popular in recent years. E-cigarettes deliver nicotine through the use of a rechargeable battery, and some critics have raised concerns about their safety.

If passed, the bill would require e-cigarette manufacturers to demonstrate that their products are less harmful than traditional cigarettes. The FDA would then have the authority to regulate e-cigarettes in a manner that is consistent with its mission to protect the public health.

"The health of our children is of utmost importance," said Burr. "This bill will help ensure that e-cigarettes are not being marketed in a way that is harmful to our youth."

The proposed regulations are expected to be finalized in the coming months, and the FDA has indicated that it will consult with stakeholders and gather public feedback before making any final decisions.
HOSPITALS

At last week’s meeting with the state Board of Regents, officials described how the hospital needs to shave $1 million from its $800 million budget by the next fiscal year meeting 1 per- cent profit margin.

UIHC officials announced last week they would cut 200, in addi- tion to the 154 positions that have already been eliminated this year. Pos- itions will be eliminated through layoffs, retirement, and attrition — positions not filled after being vacan- tiied by employees.

UIHC CEO Ken Bates notified employees about the layoffs of a staff meeting, according to a Thursday news release.

“We know how very dif- ficult this will be for the peo- ple,” Bates said. “During the notice period, we will be actively working with employees to assist with, re- placement and other necessary steps to support them as they transition from UIHC Health Care to other employers.”

But the cuts are only the beginning. Robillard attributed part of the budget crunch to layoffs in other area hospitals, resulting in more resi- dents with less income and health benefits with which to pay for health care. Low reimbursement rates by state health pro- grams also contributed to the shortages.

UIHC will need an addi- tional 2 percent reduction in labor costs, though Robillard said this would likely not mean more lay- offs.

Hospital officials anticip- ate completing details of the reduction in a meeting with the regents on July 1.

In the meantime, Robil- land said, UIHC Health Care will continue to seek employees’ input on poten- tial ways to reduce expenses and will contin- ue to undergo further reorganisation.

“UIHC is already above the national average” for the number of gaps in education, said the UI regents.

The program involves a total of 24 credit hours, 18 of which are earned in the first year of coursework.

Staff at UI and Clinics do not track the number of alcohol- related visits, said UIHC spokesman Tom Moore. Though the staff members do note incidents — such as alcohol poisoning — the hospital system does not organize records in such a manner that the numbers can be found.

But local law enforce- ment does keep track. Between January and July, Iowa City police have made 192 OWI arrests. While it isn’t known how many of those charges were UI students, 17 — roughly 20 percent — were under the legal age.

Although Carper said he believes he is “lim- ited to the scope of the job,” he said he faced no conse- quences from the UI.

According to the latest alcohol epidemic, the number of students who report heavy drinking during a period of “binge drinking” — heavy, episodic alcohol consumption — rose from 43 to 64 percent in the past year.

But Greg Thomas, the manager of residence life operations, said the “UI is already above the national average for the number of students who drink heavily.” University officials are continually re-evaluating and adding more alternatives to drinking he said.

Like the UIHC, Thomp- son said, residence-life employees do not track the number of drinking- related incidents in the dorms. And although they haven’t necessarily seen an increase, he said, they continue to see alcohol- related problems.

Resident assistants are taught to spot alcohol poi- soning, how to react to a heavily-intoxicated resi- dent, and when to call the Resident assistants should “er the side of safety of the students,” he said.

Despite increasingly problematic statistics, researchers said the trend is occurring as knowledge of what works and what doesn’t is also increasing.

Local artist’s unique portraits at display on RSV

Local artist Merl WG White has several paintings on display this month at the Red Soles Vicinity Artists’ Cooperative (RSVC) located at 403 E. 155th St. White’s work is extremely unique, portraits with a twist, as she once stated, “I sold a ‘series of dreams of great deeds unaccomplished by objects and people’ for $4,500.”

White’s work is unique in that it contains symbols isolating from different realms of subjects. These dates and their frontispiece of great deeds are traits of the subjects — giving each individual a unique internal impact. White’s work can and should be examined in real use, her work used to be much more understood.

“... just had a sense of what I wanted to do, and it required a level of technical skill,” she said. “I know that I am very good at it... but I’ve never done it with myself with painting…” The answer, however, does not dominate her artistic vision.

Fortunately for Hy-Vee, Iowa unmatched the Kirschke Alexander and Robert Curnmack took control, and the team outscored Polling/Cullen 64-41 in the second half.

"Our defense really stepped up in the second half," Alexander said. "We were able allowed too many 3-pointers in the first, but we were able to stop that in the second." Alexander, a 2009 All-Tig Team selection, led the team with 24 points, 11 rebounds and seven assists. "We were more experienced and a little more com-"
