UI student Maggie Lok plays in the leaves near the Pentacrest on Sunday, taking advantage of the unusually warm weather. Last weekend provided Iowa City with a pleasant warm front — Sunday’s high temperature reached 74 degrees, up from 36 degrees on the same day last year, according to the National Weather Service. The service predicts a cold front will move in today, but temperatures will remain higher than normal, in the 60s.

ACT tests at the waters at 7

F血液循环

Half of a century ago, the Iowa Legislature took its last act on the world's largest river, lavishing no more than $25 on it with no study markings.

The Iowa Test celebrated its 50th this past year when the test was administered on Nov. 7, 1959, to more than 1 million students in 50 U.S. states and 120 countries.

This year's test has a far more modern focus. It was the first official ACT in the new millennium, and the test was given in 1959, where an exhibit热情洋溢的

The Board outlines boundary plans

By HOLLY HINES

The Iowa City School Board members have further defined the task of the main committees with staffing. The School Board stated at its Monday meeting that it would make recommendations that address the following:

- Keeping as many of the students as possible in their homes in the Hortown Park attendance area.
- Keeping the number of students close to the school when possible.
- Increasing high-school enrollment immediately.

The board's four main concerns throughout the district for the following:

- Enrollment immediately increasing high-school attendance.
- Increasing the number of students receiving free or reduced lunch prices.
- Ensuring boundary-change plans addressing concerns with redistricting in local schools.
- Balancing enrollment, and the district the feasibility of increasing cost to the district.

The district's boundary-change plans will be considered by the Board, and the recommendations will be published in the community. The community members feel the boundary committee should emphasize sending students to the school closest to their homes because community members feel the committee should strive to maintain a balance demographics.

Teaching human rights

The Wal-Mart Supercenter set to be built in Iowa City will be smaller than the corporation initially planned, but many local residents said they want city officials to drop plans altogether.

After an extended building process, the current Iowan City store at 1001 Highway 3 W., the Wal-Mart Supercenter will cover 150,000 square feet of land — around 40,000 feet fewer than the company originally planned, said Ryan King of Wal-Mart’s public relations.

Gary Sanders, the chairman of the local Stop Wal-Mart campaign, said city officials should not allow the corporation to build a supercenter in Iowa City at all.

“It is all the worst corporate America can offer,” he said, noting many of the company’s executives are very wealthy.

Wal-Mart first expressed interest in building a supermarket on South Road near the Iowa City Airport in 2005. Stop Wal-Mart said the city and told the Iowa City Board of Adjustment to stop the purchase and in July 2006, the retail giant backed out because it didn’t want to be caught up in litigation any longer.

Sandra Hagedorn, a second-year graduate student originally from Düsseldorf, Germany, said she became interested in immigration issues after taking a class on immigration last year. A teacher who has worked with immigrant children in Germany, she wants to educate people about their rights as human beings.

“I’ve always been interested in human rights,” Hagedorn said. “I have more rights than you think. I’d like to work about a nongovernmental organization and help immigrants understand their rights in society.

“They don’t have to be afraid of who they are,” Hagedorn said.

“I’d like to see a Super Wal-Mart here. People like to shop there,” he said, adding Wal-Mart is creating two other commercial areas nearby.

Sanders agreed the store will create jobs, but said it would be nice if the employees could receive better benefits.

“Obviously it’s going to provide entry-level jobs for some people,” he said. “I never criticize Wal-Mart employees; for some it would be a good job. It would be good if (Wal-Mart) announced that everyone who works there would get better wages.”

In the News: The public writing requirement...
The movie The Men Who Stare at Goats attempts to reveal and investigate what exactly happened with this military division. Although the movie centers on an interesting topic — the development of psychic powers — it leaves too many unanswered questions. George Clooney has a good idea; it just poorly executes.

The film follows Bob Wilton (Ewan McGregor), a reporter for an Ann Arbor newspaper who goes to Iraq to report on the U.S. military. He meets a man named Lyn Cassady (George Clooney, claiming he’s a Jedi warrior trained by the U.S. military Bob follows Lyn around for his learning his story and eventually finds out what exactly happened to the development of psychic powers.

The Men Who Stare at Goats is an interesting idea, but The Men Who Stare at Goats leaves too many unanswered questions. George Clooney has a good idea; it just poorly executes.

With such charming actors as Clooney and McGregor, combined with the talented Jeff Bridges and Kevin Spacy, there isn’t an issue with character believability or poor acting. They all embrace the expansive and absurd idea of the movie, offering quirky lines and mannerisms such as Bridges’ hippy character hounding out single feather or Spacey’s channeling of an 80-year-old woman to help with his psychic powers.

Ultimately, the movie cannot accept the proper development of the script. It’s insulting to viewers to present such a controversial and interesting subject, then not answer the questions it raises. Successful acting couldn’t save the lack of clarity and absurdness, and essentially, viewers learn nothing more about the film than what they saw in the TV preview. The Men Who Stare at Goats leaves too many unanswered questions.

A passion for getting better

Mediocrity is not an option for Andre Perry, a man whose passions are writing and music.

By DANA JUDAS

Andre Perry is a modern-day muse.

The 22-year-old is responsible for bringing the Mission Creek Festival to Iowa City. He’s a Princeton University graduate who friends say doesn’t realize how great of a writer he is.

But for Perry, he can always be better.

“Everything I wrote last week sucked,” he said. “And the show I played last night was crap.”

Perry, in addition to his music and writing endeavors, also works as the Mill’s booking agent and serves as a UI undergraduate advisor. His full of energy and always ready to sleep by the end of a long day.

He has been named an old-school record player and burgundy leather couch, Perry, a lanky man dressed simply in a plain T-shirt and jeans, described writing as a lanky man dressing sim-

The women’s basketball team relies on a barrage of offense, The 17-10 win in its exhibition against Washington.

In front of a record volleyball crowd inside Carver-Hawkeye Arena, defending two-time national champion Penn State kept its big lead, dating back to 2007. The crowed broke the former record of 2,191, set against Wisconsin on Oct. 13, 2007. For many players, seeing so many people pack Carver-Hawkeye Arena was a great feeling. “It was exciting to be able to feel their energy and also give them a great game,” senior outside hitter Amie Kiehn said. “They came out to support us, and we obviously wanted to play hard for them and for our starting quarterback Ricky Stanzi. The Mentor, Ohio, native had a reason to be proud. “It was exciting to be a part of that, and I’m not surprised by that.”

Iowa’s defense is still stingy despite a 17-10 loss to Northwestern.

That was the last loss as an Iowa fan, I still have a bit of euphoria for a reserved kind.

And honestly, I didn't think I would. I had been here too long, too many losses, too much time in the student section after a loss. I have watched and followed the team for 17 years, a lifetime.

With the 17-10 loss, Iowa is now 9-1 overall.

With the loss, Northwestern is 6-3-1. "This team is full of competitors. Our backs have been against the wall all season, and the way we’ve responded talks big of this team,' said Tyler Sash, defensive end. "It hurts, yes, but worse things could happen. We’re not dead. No one is dead. We’re not at war. We’re not away from our family and friends. It’s a football game. It’s pretty small when you think about the big picture.’"

Iowa quarterback James Vandenberg attempts to pass during the second half of Iowa's game against Northwestern on Nov. 7 in Kinnick Stadium, Iowa City, 17-10.

Vandenberg, a redshirt freshman, came into the game after starter Ricky Stanzi sprained an ankle.

Wrestling cuts out opinion and human error, allowing the wrestlers to each take hold and grapple for the chance to start. While players are always competing with each other and proving they have the talent to play, ultimately, a human makes the final decisions. And humans make mistakes, are cutthroat, and it’s apparent in the intensity with which teammates attack each other. No other sport compares to wrestling in the competitive process, and what’s more, the makes the sport as electric as possible.

November 9, 2009

By Graham Scott

Your ambitious attitude will help you share your ideas with others. Your enthusiasm can help you do more than you thought was possible. Your friends and acquaintances might be more interested in your work than you expected. You may even make a new friend.

ARIES March 21-April 19
You will do better with matters concerning out-of-town travel. A trip might give you enough time to see what you want to see. Avoid other matters at this time. Your friends are more likely to support you than those you depend on for advice.

TAURUS April 20-May 20
You will have no shortage of money during this period. Some friends or peers might have more money than you. You must remain positive (again, exactly which friend?).

GEMINI May 21-June 20
Don’t be too quick to respond, making it essential that you have enough yourself to follow through with promises made to others to show the affection and respect possible. We are just a few days away from a new moon in your sign. This is a great opportunity to make some necessary changes.

CANCER June 21-July 22
You will be more interested in your mind than you anticipated. Take care of your responsibilities, and you might be more interested in friends.

VIRGO July 23-Aug. 22
You will have enough work to do without worrying on someone else’s behalf. Take care of your responsibilities, and you might be more interested in friends.

LIBRA Aug. 23-Sept. 22
You will be inclined to exaggerate, making it essential that you keep your mind on what’s important. Take care of your responsibilities, and you might be more interested in friends.

SCORPIO Sept. 23-Oct. 22
You will feel more interested in your mind than you anticipated. Take care of your responsibilities, and you might be more interested in friends.

SAGITTARIUS Oct. 23-Nov. 21
You will have no shortage of money during this period. Some friends or peers might have more money than you. You must remain positive (again, exactly which friend?).

CAPRICORN Nov. 22-Dec. 21
You will have no shortage of money during this period. Some friends or peers might have more money than you. You must remain positive (again, exactly which friend?).

AQUARIUS Dec. 22-Jan. 19
You will have no shortage of money during this period. Some friends or peers might have more money than you. You must remain positive (again, exactly which friend?).

PISCES Jan. 20-Feb. 18
You will have no shortage of money during this period. Some friends or peers might have more money than you. You must remain positive (again, exactly which friend?).

If you want to take your horoscope seriously, you will have to think about what it means to do so.
