Labor deals spark debate

Project labor agreements

The regents approved going forth in negotiating a project labor agreement on a split 5-4 vote.

Miles said it was not terribly common for regents to receive e-mails from senators, but they welcome input from anyone concerned.

"I don’t think the e-mail did anything to impair the independence of the regents, but it was useful to know his perspective," Miles said. A project labor agreement is a pre-bid bargaining agreement that defines the terms and conditions of employment. It is negotiated between the owner of the project and local unions before the bidding of the project and hiring of labor.

The regents have seen some controversy over approving the method to be used on the $73 million UIHC project, because many people are opposed to the use of project labor agreements for the university projects.

Kathy Bassett has served as a mentor to Admissions staff, colleagues say.

By ALEX KLINE

Kathy Bassett has sat in a lot of different offices at the University of Iowa campus over the past 33 years. Today, she's one of the administrators in the Admissions Office in the Pomerantz Center. Bassett was a former assistant program director for the Admissions Office, and is now the associate director of the Admissions Office.

Bassett then returned to the Admissions Office as the coordinator. She has remained in that office and served on countless committees since.

Much has evolved since her start in Admissions. When she started, there were only three admissions counselors, two tour guides, and one coordinator.

Today there are around 20 full-time employees.

“When I became the coordinator of high school visits, the college visits were still being led by the department. Now, the college visits are led by the coordinator,” Bassett said. “The coordinator is now the director of student visits.”

The coordinator is the director of student visits.

Bassett is in her Pomerantz Center office on Tuesday. Bassett, the senior associate director of Admissions, will retire next week after 33 years at the university.

She’s a strong leader, but on the same hand a motherly leader,” said Bassett. “She hired me 10 years ago, and it’s just been wonderful working for her.”

Bassett said she believes the same about her staff.

“I think it’s important to hire the very best people you can to train them, to create an environment in which people can thrive,” she said. “We expect a lot out of our staff, and I think that’s true of all of Admis- sions…for all of the uni- versity.”

As he faces her final two weeks, she looks forward to enjoying more time to read, visit her son and daughter, and also reflect on what her time at the university has taught her.

“What you learn in life is to try to create more bal- ance,” she said. “We work hard here, but we also have a good time.”

Blagojevich heard effort to fill the open seat but said he will not make an appoint- ment until the new year, according to the Illinois governor's corruption attorney.

Blagojevich, 53, has pleaded not guilty to plotting to trade the appointment to the Obama camp and his allies' knowledge of which candidate the senator was planning to support. Blagojevich has told several potential candidates to campaign for him, but he also planned to call out the Obama camp and his allies' knowledge of which candidate the senator was planning to support.

Lunch is served from noon-12:45 p.m. at Winnibigosh Park, Fairmount Park, the Pheasant Ridge Center, Breckenridge Estates Town Center, the Forest home park, and Forest View Truist Court. It’s a great outreach program for the communities,” said Stephanie Schmidt, who served drinks. Schmidt, who graduated from the University of Iowa in December, will begin a job as a high school American literature teacher in Beckal Fall, Ill., after spending the summer working at the Broadway Community Center.

The food-service program is staffed by employees of the Pheasant Ridge Center, as well as by volunteers, and is part of the AmeriCorps VISTA program.

“It’s a great opportunity to get connected with the community from whom they don’t get a whole lot of chances to participate in activities,” said Elliott Lamme, a UI senior majoring in elementary education. Lamme is volunteering through a 10-week VISTA program.

The lunch program includes nutritious options. Freeman said, “I think this myth isn’t true and that a lot of women do leave abusive relationships.”

Murders such as this can make a woman feel like she has no options other than to stay in an abusive situation, said author and Planned Parenthood Public Affairs Officer Susan Stover.

“We said Planned Parenthood has done brief prenatal screenings of its patients for about the last 15 years, and it will continue to “in an effort to figure out which women are suffering and what they need to go and from whom to seek help.”

But unfortunately, support and relationships don’t change just because they’re in the hospital. The “partners they leave behind are often the vio- lence from a previous relationship,” said Anna Walls, a co-author of the study and a senior of psychology, said that the “trick” — from one of the lead researchers — from an abortion clinic is that “there is a myth in our society that abortionists are all at fault and don’t have the right to seek help.”

“Our research shows that this myth isn’t true and that a lot of women do leave abusive relationships,” she said.

Across the Great Lakes region, many may soon look back to a civility in Iowa on their economic model. Des Moines was ranked as one of the top “overall performers” in the region during the recession, according to a recent report from the Kauffman Foundation in Washington, D.C. In the face of an abundance of information, Des Moines came out of many more obscure cities such as Chicago, Milwaukee, and Madison.

A major contributor to the city’s economic success has been its comparably lower level of unemployment. According to the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics, the unemployment rate peaked at 10.1 percent but receded to 9.7 percent in May. Des Moines has consistently enjoyed a lower unemployment rate than the metropolitan area as a whole. The city’s low unemployment rate is the result of many factors, including its relatively low cost of living, strong education and healthcare systems, and a diverse economy that includes industries such as finance, healthcare, and technology.

The broader economic picture in the state shows that Iowa’s economic recovery is well underway. The state’s unemployment rate has dropped from a peak of 7.5 percent to 4.3 percent in May. The state’s economy is expected to continue growing in the coming years, driven by a strong labor market and a robust demand for goods and services.

It is encouraging to see the positive trends in Iowa’s economy, as well as the state’s efforts to attract and retain businesses and workers. Des Moines is well-positioned to continue playing a leading role in the state’s economic development, and we look forward to seeing the continued growth and prosperity that Iowa will continue to enjoy in the years to come.

A Jewel of a Romeo and Juliet

Romeo and Juliet dazzles audiences in the Riverside Theatre Festival Shakespeare.

By JOEY JONES

In Iowa City, where we lay our scene—a tal- esque brand of cheer, laughter and love—lies a com- pelling portrayal of the world’s most beloved love story.

Though the premiere show of Romeo and Juliet was ruined the previous night, June 19 had all the fixings to make the perfor- mance a theatrical delight.

Never have I seen more beautiful costumes for a Shakespeare production—so well done, as if we would have imagined fashion to be during the Elizabethan period. Major props must go to costume designer Renee Garcia.

Lady Capulet’s exquisite and voluminous dress created a memorable impression. Juliet (Cristina Panfilio) was regal in her Romeo.

For actors who play such a character, the blessing and curse of being able to embody a character. They are often stuck with the same role for an extended amount of time, and still remain at the top of their game.

The acting in this production of Romeo and Juli- et was nothing to be desired and provided moments of comedic relief. Perhaps with- in what must believe to be an entirely sad and depressing play.

I knew I was left sur- prised to find that there were actually funny moments, because the last time I read Romeo and Juliet in its entirety, it was ruined by the monstrous dress of my English 9 classmates who struggled to decipher the Shakespearean language.

Apart from looking adorable and fresh-faced, Juliet (Cristina Panfilio) and Romeo (Andrew Truschinski) made me want to fall in love. I was seriously convinced that they were true-blue, if only a little bit. The actors’ talent was the true beauty.

The Particular Sadness of Lemon Cake

Aimee Bender will read from her latest novel The Particular Sadness of Lemon Cake today.

Because she doesn’t have a goal when she starts writing, most of the process is trying to find the story and understand what it is about. If she continues writing, she develops a better sense of what the story is about and can help shape development.

A lot of Bender’s stories are influenced by a dream- type of logic, she said, which is something that comes naturally. She articu- lates an experience or feeling between characters and feels that sometimes the best way to express that is to put it in a skewed world.

When she isn’t writing, she teaches English at the University of Southern California (her first teach- ing job) or for elementary students when she was 21. She also enjoys going for walks and biking, and going to dinner with friends.

But despite her interest in a variety of activities, it all comes back to writing.

“What’s nice about writing is that everything is natural,” Bender said. “But it ultimately comes down to sitting down and having a disciplined work schedule to (create stories).”

Join the Shaving Revolution
REVOLT™ shaving products are protected by US Patent #7,559,330 for our process to increase the life of razor blades for all brands of blades.

Water rusts and corrodes razor blades to greatly reduce blade life. The impurities in water cause a low grade infection on your skin when you shave with shaving cream and water. Shave without using water and shaving cream to clear up your skin. Store your razor and spare blades in the Revolt Lubricating Liquid to coat the blades with high temperature oils and protect them from water and air. Replace water and shaving cream with the Revolt Shaving Solution for a clean, comfortable shave. When you finish shaving, rub Revolt into your skin to soothe and condition.

No more razor burn.

Men get over 300 shaves per blade and women get over 1,000 shaves per blade with all brands. Save over $150 per year in blades and shaving cream.

Backes now on other side of rivalry

Kurt Backes brings worldwide experience and strength and conditioning expertise to the Iowa wrestling program.

Blevins should be honored

The recently retired Gayle Blevins puts Iowa softball on the map, it’s time to give her the recognition she deserves.

Former Hawkeye JoAnn Hamlin sits on the sidelines in the North Liberty Community Center as she coaches Active Endeavors/McCurry’s team on Monday. Hamlin sat out the team’s first exhibition match, 8-5. On June 18, Backes joined the Hawkeye wrestling team in Ames on Dec. 2, 2005. Bradley won the hard-fought 125-pound match, 8-5. Backes said. “I have so much pride being a Hawk. I’m 100 percent to the Iowa wrestling program. I’ve personally seen.

By JERRY SCHERRIN JR.

There is an eerie feeling that crosses the minds of those receiving bad news about their health — especially those who are athletes. Too often, the media play up news about basketball players tearing ACLs, football players suffering one too many concussions, or baseball players in need of shoulder surgeries. For Kenya Gayle Mitchell-E-Smith, the team she’s been loyal to since before her high school days, the feeling has been one too many concussions.

By SETH ROBERTS

Kurt Backes is no stranger to the Iowa wrestling program. The new Hawkeye volunteer assistant coach spent his college career at Iowa State, where he finished his career 15-6-2.

By JORDAN GARRISON

A Big 12 champion and four-time All-American, he was a three-time All-Conference and especially to (legendary former Cyclones head coach) Bobby Dru ga, a great man. After the game, the day I’m right. Right now, I’m a pitcher. I’m 100 per cent loyal to the program,” Backes said.

MARCH SMITH

Simply put, Gayle Blevins is a coaching legend — not just in the softball ranks but across all sports in Iowa coaching history. She’s the Bobby Bowden of softball, and the numbers speak for themselves. In 31 years of coaching at Lee, Linn and Iowa, Blevins remarkably never had a losing season. Her 1,245 victories are second-best in NCAA Division-I softball history.

A Big 12 champion and four-time All-American, he was a three-time All-Conference and especially to (legendary former Cyclones head coach) Bobby Dru ga, a great man. After the game, the day I’m right. Right now, I’m a pitcher. I’m 100 per cent loyal to the program,” Backes said.

Simply put, Gayle Blevins is a coaching legend — not just in the softball ranks but across all sports in Iowa coaching history. She’s the Bobby Bowden of softball, and the numbers speak for themselves. In 31 years of coaching at Lee, Linn and Iowa, Blevins remarkably never had a losing season. Her 1,245 victories are second-best in NCAA Division-I softball history.

Former Hawkeye JoAnn Hamlin sits on the sidelines in the North Liberty Community Center as she coaches Active Endeavors/McCurry’s team on Monday. Hamlin sat out the team’s first exhibition match, 8-5. On June 18, Backes joined the Hawkeye wrestling team in Ames on Dec. 2, 2005. Bradley won the hard-fought 125-pound match, 8-5. Backes said. “I have so much pride being a Hawk. I’m 100 percent to the Iowa wrestling program. I’ve personally seen.

There is an eerie feeling that crosses the minds of those receiving bad news about their health — especially those who are athletes. Too often, the media play up news about basketball players tearing ACLs, football players suffering one too many concussions, or baseball players in need of shoulder surgeries. For Kenya Gayle Mitchell-E-Smith, the team she’s been loyal to since before her high school days, the feeling has been one too many concussions.
