2008

November 22

Iowa handed Minnesota a 55-0 defeat in its last-ever game in the Metrodome. Shonn Greene carried the ball 22 times for 146 yards and two touchdowns. The Hawkeyes went on to win the Outback Bowl over South Carolina to close out the year.

1997

November 22

Tim Dwight completed his final career home game with just four receptions for 29 yards against Minnesota, but he didn't fail to excite Hawkeye fans — he also returned a punt 44 yards for a touchdown. The Hawkeyes blew out the Golden Gophers, 31-0.

1991

November 23

Iowa quarterback Matt Rodgers threw for 390 yards and three touchdowns in a 23-8 win over Minnesota, despite a foot of snowfall in Iowa City the night before. Danan Hughes joined in on the fun, celebrating by making a snow angel in the end zone after catching a touchdown pass from Rodgers.

1986

November 22

Despite facing a 17-0 halftime defecit at Minnesota, the Hawkeyes stormed back to capture a 30-27 victory. Iowa concluded its 9-3 season with a 39-38 win over San Diego State in the Holiday Bowl.

1970

November 21

Iowa's Dave Brooks recorded 26 tackles against Illinois — 13 of which were unassisted. The Hawkeyes beat the Illini, 22-16, in Iowa City. Iowa closed out the year 3-6-1 in Ray Nagel's last season.

Former Hawkeye safety Sean Considine intercepted Colt McCoy's pass late in the fourth quarter on Nov. 21 for the Jacksonville Jaguars. His interception sealed the Jags' sixth victory of the season. They're tied atop the AFC South with the Colts.

Iowa's Brad Banks high steps into the endzone during the second quarter for the first of his two rushing touchdowns during the Hawkeyes' game against Northwestern on Nov. 11, 2002. The Heisman candidate accounted for three more touchdowns.

MINNESOTA

For offensive lineman Julian Vandervelde and tight end Allen Reisner, this week isn't only about football. They both have class projects due the week after break, and they'll work on those while also preparing for the Minnesota defense.

Vandervelde said it's not the altered game preparation that's weird. "The odd part is [going to be] coming back after the game and going right back into school," he said. "Normally, the guys who live in Minnesota after that last game, they can just stay in Minnesota with their families."

The Gophers come into Saturday's matchup sporting the conference's worst overall record at 2-9, but they're coming off their first conference win of the season, a 38-34 thriller over Illinois. As safety Tyler Sash said, "They have nothing to lose."

Adam Weber will start his 50th-consecutive game under center for Minnesota against the Hawkeyes, making him the most experienced quarterback in the country. Earlier this season, Weber became only the fifth quarterback in Big Ten history to pass for more than 10,000 yards in his career. Iowa's Chuck Long is also on that list.

Weber has done all of this despite playing under his third offensive coordinator in four years. With each coaching change, the Gophers have altered their scheme considerably.

"What he has had to go through is a lot harder than what I've had to go through," said Stanzi, who has played in the same scheme all five years in Iowa City. "I'm not going to try to pretend to know what that's like. My hat's off to him for what he has been able to do with all that adversity."

Perhaps more worrisome than Weber's passing prowess is Minnesota's kickoff return specialist, Troy Stoudermire. Ferentz remembers the junior all too well from the teams' 2008 matchup inside the Metrodome.

Stoudermire got a lot of action that game, as the Hawkeyes scored eight times. In nine kickoff returns, he posted a 31.4-yard average, including a long of 58 yards. Last week against Illinois, he returned a kickoff 90 yards before being tripped up at the 4-yard line.

He ranks No. 1 in the Big Ten and No. 15 in the Football Bowl Subdivision with at 27.9-yard average this season. The Hawkeyes' kickoff coverage has been suspect all season, ranking 86th in the Football Bowl Subdivision. It allowed a 100-yard touchdown against Arizona and more than 40 yards per return against Iowa State.

"If we're smart, we will," Ferentz said when asked if the Hawkeyes will kick away from Stoudermire. "It's not like we cover very well. So that's a sore subject."

With the Hawkeyes sitting at 7-4 and far below preseason expectations, Sash said the Hawkeyes still have plenty to play for — a better bowl game, especially. But both he and defensive tackle Karl Klug pointed to a more tangible reason to take Saturday's matchup seriously: Floyd of Rosedale.

The trophy for the annual rivalry game sat in the first-floor hallway of the Hayden Fry Football complex Tuesday, serving as a constant reminder of what's at stake this weekend.

"It just reminds you how important this game is, how bad we need to win it," Klug said. "We can't go into the postseason with three-straight losses. We have to win this game."

Hawks try to break streak

Iowa expects a tough game on Saturday from Minnesota — a team coming off a win with 'nothing to lose.'

By SCOTT MILLER
scott-t-miller@uiowa.edu

Ricky Stanzi arrived at a Tuesday interview session with a new look. His customary beard, which has been ever-present throughout the 2010 season, was shaved.

And so began a strange week in the Hayden Fry Football Complex.

A beard-less Stanzi will lead Iowa into Minnesota's TCF Bank Stadium, an outdoor venue, for the first time on Saturday. The Hawkeyes haven't played outdoors in Minneapolis since 1980 — a year before head coach Kirk Ferentz arrived as an assistant.

The 2:37 p.m. kickoff against the Gophers (2-9, 1-6 Big Ten) will mark the first time Iowa has played a regular-season game after Thanksgiving since its 2001 matchup against Iowa State. That contest was postponed because of the 9/11 terrorist attacks.

With classes on hiatus all week for the holiday, Ferentz said his players are "like pro football players this week. That could be good or bad. … Fortunately, none of them have the money pro football players do, so they can only go so far."

The Hawkeyes' routine will be different this week.

They'll practice earlier in the day — they had a 3:30 p.m. practice scheduled for Tuesday. They'll practice outside to prepare for the Minnesota weather — as of Tuesday afternoon, a high of 32 degrees was expected for the game, according to the National Weather Service. And they'll even do some work on Thanksgiving before quitting around midday so that coaches and players can get to their holiday dinners.

Matchups	Scott Miller pregame editor (41-14)	Jordan Garretson sports editor (34-21)	JT Bugos sports reporter (42-13)	Mitch Smith sports reporter (34-21)	Chelsea Burn DITV sports director (36-19)	Sam Lane metro reporter (39-16)	Fans' Choice (39-16)
No. 24 Iowa at Minnesota	IOWA This one won't be close enough for a fourth-quarter collapse.	IOWA Gophers provide the perfect remedy for Hawks' two-game slump.	IOWA Three straight shut-outs? Yes.	IOWA It would be nice to see the Hawkeyes close out the season with a blowout win.	IOWA The Hawkeye defense will easily be able to contain Adam Weber.	IOWA It has been a rough season, but it'd be tough for the Hawks to screw this one up.	IOWA (81%) Having two weeks to prepare for the Hawkeyes isn't near enough time for this talentless bunch of goofers.
No. 2 Auburn at No. 9 Alabama	ALABAMA Karma, meet Cam Newton.	ALABAMA Tide rolls Auburn's BCS title game hopes.	ALABAMA The Tide won't lose a third game this season, especially not at home.	ALABAMA Tide rolls to spoils Auburn's undefeated season.	AUBURN They don't give points, and they take points. That wins the game.	ALABAMA Who knows how distracting this Cam Newton stuff actually is?	ALABAMA (79%) Though, I heard Cecil Newton was attempting to pay off Nick Saban to throw the game.
No. 3 Boise State at No. 19 Nevada	BOISE STATE Will it be enough to get the Broncos ahead of TCU in the BCS?	BOISE STATE Nevada's a good team ... and Boise will still dominate.	BOISE STATE The Broncos will roll to a perfect season.	BOISE STATE Nevada might keep it close for a half, but the Broncos will still win big.	BOISE STATE I'd love to be able to say Nevada, but they won't be able to beat the Broncos.	BOISE STATE I still don't think they can play with the big dogs. Luckily, Nevada can't either.	BOISE STATE (90%) Close, but no cigar.
No. 6 LSU at No. 12 Arkansas	ARKANSAS Maybe there's a silver lining in Iowa's loss to Ohio State: The Hawkeyes won't have to play Arkansas in a bowl game.	ARKANSAS The Razorbacks are on fire right now.	LSU My head says take the home team, but my gut wants LSU.	LSU The Mad Hatter Les Miles will find a way to win on the road.	LSU A near loss for both teams last weekend will make things interesting.	LSU Bayou Bengals prevail.	LSU (88%) Les Miles is either the dumbest or luckiest coach in the country – still trying to figure it out.
No. 14 Oklahoma at No. 10 Oklahoma State	OKLAHOMA STATE I still don't trust Oklahoma on the road.	OKLAHOMA Superior defense leads the Sooners to victory.	OKLAHOMA STATE The Cowboys offense is too explosive for the Sooners to handle.	OKLAHOMA STATE Cowboys win a shootout in a game featuring two of the nation's top passing attacks.	OKLAHOMA The only shot Okie State would have is the fact that they're at home.	OKLAHOMA STATE Cowboys should be able to overpower their in-state rival at home.	OKIAHOMA STATE (68%) The Cowboys are just better this year.

The Fans' Choice is based on a poll put up on dailyiowan.com/ontheline. The comments were selected from readers' submissions. To get your comments in future editions of Pregame, make your picks online starting Sunday.
