A University of Iowa student studying in Egypt is safe, and he has decided to stay in the country, even as protests continue, UI officials said Tuesday.

The student, who is enrolled at the American University in Cairo, has spoken with his parents, who subsequently con- tacted UI staff, and Downing Thomas, the dean of International Programs.

While Thomas couldn’t disclose the stu- dent’s name or any personal information, he described the student as a male under- graduate in the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

“I trust him and his family to make the decision that’s best for him based on the advice that’s given,” said Janis Perkins, the director of the UI Office for Study Abroad. Perkins said she believes Tuesday’s peaceful protests are a positive sign.

The wave of protests against President Hosni Mubarak that have escalated over the past week have led to violence and looting and resulted in thousands of injuries and nearly 100 deaths.

The U.S. State Department has placed Egypt under a travel warning. According to the State Department, approximately 1,600 U.S. citizens have been evacuated from Egypt, and more than 3,000 citizens have asked to be evacuated. Officials

The Iowa City area could see up to 18 inches of snow by today.

Veronica Jordan is working on four things: staying warm, staying home, stocking up on food, and trying to avoid the snow to continue into this morning, accumulating 12 to 18 inches. Wind gusts could reach 35 mph with a wind chill of 20 degrees below zero.

By 10 p.m. Tuesday, around 10 inches had fallen on Johnson County.

UI officials canceled classes through 10 a.m. today; students a 20-minute grace period — which would grant students the ability to safely make it to class before their parties get busted — on hold after they said students showed no interest.

New lawsuits allege

A former tenant said an Iowa City landlord is taking advantage of the student population.

By JOSH QUINNETT

An Iowa City resident has filed a pending class action lawsuit against Apartments Downtown LLC, alleging var- ious rental-code violations.

Michael Conroy, 53, filed the lawsuit against the company — which owns a large portion of student-housing down- town — on Dec. 22, 2010. The ex-tenant said he believes Apartments Downtown takes advantage of students who may not know their rights.

Attorney Christopher Warnock and Christine Boyer filed the case and petitioned to make it a class-action lawsuit because they believe a large number of people have similar legal issues with the company.

The lawsuit states Apartments Down- town violates numerous sections of the Iowa Code by creating leases that violate tenants’ rights, wrongfully withhold ten- ants’ security deposits, makes tenant responsible for common areas, and estab- lishes rules that were “for an improper purpose, unfair, unreasonable, and evaded the obligations of the landlord.”

Conroy said he decided to seek legal advice after Apartments Downtown, who owns Apartments Near Campus, bought the South Johnson Street building he was living in 2009, withheld his deposit in 2010, and fined him additional charges for reasons he felt were unfair.

The House OKs anti-gay bill

The House voted to pass a bill that would define marriage as between a man and a woman. The bill was introduced by Rep. Dave Jacoby, D-Coralville. "This is just plain, old government, and before you know it, we’ll put cameras in people’s bedrooms," Jacoby said.

More than a decade ago, the legislature had passed the Civil Rights Act of 1998, which limited the power of discrimination against sexual orientation. The Iowa House passed legislation Tuesday that would define marriage as between a man and a woman. The vote on the bill is the latest in a string of bills that have passed the legislature that would restrict marriage and other forms of discrimination against sexual orientation.

The bill was passed by a vote of 77-21, with 12 Republicans and 9 Democrats voting against the bill. "I voted no on it, and I spoke on the floor," said Rep. Dave Jacoby, D-Coralville. "This is just plain, old government, and before you know it, we’ll put cameras in people’s bedrooms," Jacoby said.

More than a decade ago, the legislature had passed the Civil Rights Act of 1998, which limited the power of discrimination against sexual orientation. "Though high-schoolers have been told to be respectful to their friends and volunteers for their organizations, the legislation passed in the past, is about only roughly 30 Dance Marathon participants," Kells said. The political landscape in Iowa changed significantly Tuesday when the Iowa House passed legislation that would define marriage as between a man and a woman. Democrats voted against the bill, but Republican lawmakers voted in favor of the bill.

When all the pain is light

Kevin Brockmeier explores the beauty of pain in his latest novel.

By ALYSSA MARIE HARN

Author Kevin Brockmeier likes to write at his desk and share in a room filled with wooden bookshelves.

“I am a creature of habits,” he says. “I hate it when I have to write anywhere but with my desk and my bookshelves surrounding me.”

Not only does Brockmeier’s office double as a personal library, he has bookshelves scattered throughout his home in Little Cedar, Iowa.

“Anywhere I can have a book, I do,” the author said.

Brockmeier, a graduate of the Writers’ Workshop, will read from his latest novel, _The Illumination_, at 7 p.m. today at Prairie Lights Books, 15 S. Dubuque St.

The illumination is the idea of a world in which people who see in pain generate light. The illumination is composed of six sections, each focusing on one of six people who suffer from injuries. The characters are loosely connected by a diary that automatically pages into each of their hands. The diary, which contains notes a man wrote to his wife, helps soothe each of the characters.

“I was hoping that those half dozen perspectives, when put together, would say something—offer some insight that I was trying to extract from a multitude of angles,” Brockmeier said.

He got the idea for the book from a series of meditations Brockmeier thought of a person who suffered from the pain of his injuries. This image ultimately gave the author the concept for the book.

Paul Ingram, Prairie Lights’ book buyer, said, “The Illumination is like anything he’s read.”

“It’s about a time in the near future, the specialization of pain and how it becomes beautiful,” Brockmeier explained.

Brockmeier asked himself questions about the purpose of pain like he did when writing the book.

“The Illumination is a38-year-old said. Brockmeier hopes readers will learn the craft, too.

Brockmeier joined UI Juggalos as a freshman, recruiting members from his dorm. Rockafellow could be seen juggling in his dorm, on his floor witnessed his talent. He then tried to learn the craft, too. When Rockafellow started juggling at the age of 12, his father gave him a set of juggling balls. Ten years later, he hasn’t stopped.

In high school, Rockafellow made videos of his juggling routines at home. His father, Tim Rockafellow, said he was impressed with his son’s juggling accomplishments.

“I was proud of his son’s juggling accomplishments and his dedication to the practice,” Tim Rockafellow said. “It’s been a pretty amazing show of how hard you can stick with juggling even if you can’t stick to keeping better.”

Tim Rockafellow said, “He has a tremendous amount of self-discipline, which is really impressive.”

The review of his latest novel, _The Dead Country_, was written in the New York Times.

“The reviews of his previous books speak for themselves regarding his unique talent and innovativeness, and his loyal readers will not be disappointed by this latest novel, already being praised by critics around the country,” Kals said.

Student loan payments, heavy homework loads, time-consuming jobs and uncertain job prospects can all add up to overwhelming levels of stress, particularly for academically prepared students. When college newcomers get caught up in physical and mental exhaustion that has little to do with work, they may be experiencing symptoms of burnout.

In this case, the physical and mental exhaustion may be的症状是burnout.

In the abstract, we can see that stress and burnout are common among college students, and the effects can vary widely. The text mentions that stress can lead to physical exhaustion and mental burnout, and that the symptoms can be difficult to manage. The text also highlights the importance of recognizing and addressing these issues in order to prevent long-term negative outcomes.

The text further discusses how stress and burnout can affect academic performance, mental health, and overall well-being. It suggests that early intervention and support can help students overcome these challenges. In conclusion, the text emphasizes the need for awareness and resources to support college students who may be experiencing burnout and stress.

In summary, the text provides valuable insights into the prevalence and impact of stress and burnout among college students, and underscores the importance of recognizing and addressing these issues to promote students' well-being and academic success.

VOTER REGISTRATION CONTINUES ON MONDAY

The deadline to register to vote is Monday, March 7. "We are not nearly the deadline," said Joanne Mallon, county clerk. "We have plenty of time." Mallon said she was hoping to register at least 2,000 people to vote in the presidential primary. "That would be great," she said. "We are hoping for more." Mallon said she was encouraged by the high registration rates in previous elections. "We have a lot of people coming out," she said. "We are definitely seeing a lot of interest." Mallon said she was confident that the election will be a success. "We have a lot of experience," she said. "We know how to handle things." Mallon said she was looking forward to the election. "It's going to be a great day," she said. "We are ready." Mallon said she was committed to making sure that the election goes smoothly. "We are doing everything we can to ensure a fair and safe election," she said. "We are working hard to make sure that everyone has a voice." Mallon said she was optimistic about the outcome of the election. "We are going to have a winner," she said. "We are going to have a new president." Mallon said she was proud of the work that her team has done. "We have been working hard," she said. "We have been planning for this for a long time." WASHINGTON (AP) — Republicans are racing to fill a Senate vacancy in Washington state after the death of Democratic Sen. Patty Murray. The Senate is expected to vote on a replacement in coming days. Republican Sen. Dean Heller is expected to vote in favor of Murray's successor, Sen. Mitt Romney. Romney is a moderate Republican who was previously elected as governor of Massachusetts. Romney is expected to vote against President Donald Trump's Supreme Court nominee, Judge Amy Coney Barrett. Barrett is a conservative jurist who has previously served as a judge on the 7th Circuit Court of Appeals. Barrett is expected to be confirmed to the Supreme Court by a narrow margin. The confirmation is expected to be a contentious one, with Republicans and Democrats divided on the issue. Republicans are expected to vote in favor of Barrett, while Democrats are expected to vote against her. The confirmation is expected to be a key issue in the upcoming election. Republicans are expected to use the confirmation to attack Democrats and to try to paint them as weak on the issue. Aries
A very physical challenge will make your self-esteem and your energy on the move. Dealing with children and dependencies doesn't offer a great learning experience. You can't fight, but you don't have to.

Taurus
You can be very neat and something you view as being a real difference. It's your own hair, and you will find that you actually do have a lot of energy left in the tank and that you can work on your own.

Gemini
You have to be careful about how you view such locations. You will be a life of the party, and the idea is to put your best foot forward, but you will need to make your mark.

Cancer
Your overly energetic attitude will help you get things done. There is no problem as long as you are not interfering with others' projects.

Leo
You have to be careful about how you see the way things turn out today. Some will approve of what you do and say, others will be/want what you are doing. Offer your services, opinions, and solutions, and please share.

Virgo
There will be plenty of opportunities today. Others will be looking for you to lead them into the next successful venture. You have a lot to offer for the right opportunity.

Libra
Your overly energetic attitude will help you get things done. There is no problem as long as you are not interfering with others' projects.

Scorpio
You have to be careful about how you see the way things turn out today. Some will approve of what you do and say, others will be/want what you are doing. Offer your services, opinions, and solutions, and please share.

Sagittarius
You will be able to persuade others to do things that you want. Notice the way others are changing their plans.

Cappucino
Being on a mission that doesn't belong to you will make it difficult to finish your own projects. You have a tendency to get roped into projects and end up doing more than you should. Getting involved in events, social gatherings, and partnerships can offer a valuable opportunity for growth and experience. You have a lot to offer and you will not be disappointed.

Iowa may have slid to a disappointing 8-5 record this past season, but the Hawkeyes certainly didn’t sit on the recruiting trail. Head coach Kirk Ferentz has the finest tradition of talented tight ends.

Ray Hamilton says he will try to carry on Iowa’s rich tradition of tight ends. The 6-5, 230-pound recrui...
