Despite legislators’ assurance, Johnson County officials worry about scope of disaster.

The state budget is set to expire in the next week, but it’s not clear what that means. Local lawmakers are assuring constituents that services won’t be shut down and most things will continue to function normal.

The Legislature has not yet come to a budget for the next fiscal year, according to House Speaker Zoe Lofgren. “We don’t have a budget yet. We’ve got to make progress on that before the session shuts down,” she said.

While lawmakers said they’re making progress on a compromise, it’s not clear when they’ll complete the process. “It’s not clear yet what they’ll send it to the governor,” said Rep. Michael J. Ray, D-Burlington. “It’s a work in progress.”

Kansas City’s mayor, Steve Adler, said he was “extremely disappointed” that the city was not included in the proposed federal bailout.

“Despite the fact that urban areas are facing significant costs related to the pandemic, it’s not clear that all cities will receive funding,” he said.

The mayor said the city had recommended a plan that would provide $40 billion in funding for cities and states to help cover pandemic-related expenses.

Adler said the city had requested that the federal government consider creating a national fund to support cities and states as they address the ongoing public health crisis.

For the love of the disc

Former UI student Martin Murray is a member of the Vicious Circle Disc Golf league.

by Brian Albert

Martin Murray started playing disc golf four years ago. And today the sport is his greatest passion.

“It’s a really great sport that you can play with people over- here,” he said. “It keeps me coming back every day.”

The 24-year-old native of Italy moved to Corydon, Iowa, when he was 6. He came to Iowa City and graduated from the University of Iowa in 2010 with a degree in med- ical laboratory technology.

Murray now works at Holiday Jewelry, 200 Washington St., and he heads out to a disc-golf course nearly every day after work.

“I try to get out to a local course or Turkey Creek or Sugar Bottom golf course as many nights as possible. It’s a way to get out there as often as I can,” he said.

During the week, he usually plays Tuesday and Thursday, but every Thursday, he plays in the ‘Most Delicious’ tournament, a part of the ‘Most Delicious’ disc golf league. The organization serves disc golfers, most of them from the Iowa City area and Marquette County outside of the city.

“I don’t care if you play tech or whatever it is, as long as you’re having fun.”

The Iowa Legislature is in a time crunch as it struggles with a budget that must be balanced by June 30. Both parties want property tax reform, but the Republican majority in control will publish only one letter per author per month. Letters will be realistic, long-term solutions that balance the budget. And like America Now on June 18, Column 4 — individuals are more dependent on them than ever. The development of the state.

we must reduce our spending in the areas that make up two-thirds of the federal budget: the military budget, veterans and the Department of Defense. If the challenge is doing it without compromising security or American values, we must take steps to end.

The necessity of these reforms is evident if Iowa’s property taxes are substantially higher than in other states. Iowa's property taxes are substantially higher than

The rising federal debt is a huge problem that affects the American public. It affects the economy, it affects our credit and currency markets, but it also, perhaps most importantly, is a threat to the future of this country.

Dain Swetalla brings the ball up the court during the first half of a Prime Time game on Tuesday. Swetalla scored 10 points in an 80-78 loss.

Anthony Ruptash/The Daily Iowan

“Swetalla: It was clearly maintaining my focus on the court (as the coach) with what I needed to accomplish as a player to advance my career. It was difficult balancing my on-the-court playing time and my coaching duties, but it helped me feel better as a player but at the same time really trying to run a team. You can do that when you’re on the bench and you can see where defenses are having breakdowns or where you have matchup issues.

When I would play in the past, I had to play inside and read what was going on — road matchup situations and see what they’re playing on defense, all while running down the court and setting up the offense. A coach can sit on the sideline, look down, and see what’s going on.”
