The Daily Iowan

Mistrial declared in slaying

A new trial could be moved elsewhere due to heavy media attention.

Paul: Get out of wars

Paul said the U.S. should only be involved in declared wars, not just conflicts.

ELECTION WATCH

FOLLOW THE RACE ON TV AT BIACUACAS

Renters’ insurance saves some

Renters’ insurance costs less than $200 a year on average.

WEATHER

INDEX

THE DAILY IOWAN TV

To watch Daily Iowan TV go online to dailyiowan.com

WHAT’S INSIDE

• Iowa caucus candidate Gary Johnson hints he is to be presi- dent

Pre. Page 4

• Iowa City school officials hope the daily paper is a future for the No Child Left Behind Act

Page 5

• The Hawkeye men’s golf team received its placing in the top five of the Conference Challenge

Page 12

Regents pick new Iowa State leader

Stephen Leath has been selected as the new president for Iowa State University.

Leath is the vice president of research at the University of North Carolina Chapel Hill, he will take over as president on Feb. 1, 2012. His salary will be $451,000. This is a slight decrease from President Gregory Geoffroy's cur- rent salary of $450,248.

"I came here, I'm going to spend a lot of time making sure this long-ago-greater-than-it-already-is to become it's a great university, and we're going to make it greater," he said in a video message. "We need to ask what's the right thing to do for Iowa State, and what's the right thing to do for the state of Iowa?"

Leath said at his open forum last week.

He said it is important to utilize redundancies in the curricu- lum, help cooperate with other universities, and work to be more student-centered.

The search committee did not receive any negative responses about the students and constituents. Instead, he said university needs to do a better job of talking outside the university and working with par- ents, the community and govern- ment officials.

— Iowa State Daily

CORRECTION

Dr. Faye Moore, author of an article titled "Buchanan men into Cuba" in a newspaper, incorrectly reported that Frank Calzon disagreed with Richard Buchanan's stance on Cuba, when he was referring to Leon, the author of Johnson's comments. Calzon announced that he believes the Cuban government remains hostile to the United States.

The United States has no rea- son to be as involved in foreign wars, not just conflicts. America's extensive overseas involvement has hindered the economy tremendously, and I don't see anything that would be improved.

If we stop the United States from involving itself in conflicts, we need to ask what's the right thing to do for Iowa State, and what's the right thing to do for the state of Iowa?"

Leath said at his open forum last week.

The search committee did not receive any negative responses about the students and constituents. Instead, he said university needs to do a better job of talking outside the university and working with par- ents, the community and govern- ment officials.

— Iowa State Daily

THE DAILY IOWAN TV

To watch Daily Iowan TV go online to dailyiowan.com

INDEX

WEATHER

1.20

LOW 72

HIGH 52

5°C

8°C

5°C

4°C

Rain

Mostly sunny, morn.

INDEX

CLASSIFIEDS 8

EDUCATION 10

SPORTS 12

OPINION 4

WEATHER

1.20

LOW 72

HIGH 52

5°C

8°C

5°C

4°C

Rain

Mostly sunny, morn.

Copyworks

FREE Pick-up & Delivery

309 2nd St. • Coralville, IA 52241

ph: 319.338.5050 • fax: 319.338.1717
coralville@copyworks.com • www.copyworks.com
RECENTS SCHOOL COUNCIL
The World-Ed Council for Citizenship and Social Studies and the University of Iowa Student Council met to discuss the relationship between the two organizations. The meeting included discussion of recent events and future plans.

MEGA revises school contract
The University of Iowa has revised its school contract to include provisions for the city of Iowa City. The contract, which was negotiated by the University of Iowa and the City Council of Iowa City, now includes provisions for the city's financial assistance to the University. The revised contract is expected to provide a more stable financial environment for the University and the city.
Thompson watched the interview closely and waslw even after officials stepped down. Just as Kahn began to discuss the Munich incident — which was sup- posed to be declassified — Johnson County prosecutor Dan Levin sat down, said Thompson, and attempted to put a stop to the video.

Defense attorney Tyler Johnston said his client’s expres- sions became extremely tense as the video of Lyness glasses after Lyness shoved the video.

“They did not do this,” Johnston said. “They did not make up this video. It is the truth.” He also said that he was “anxious to get this on the record.”

The family of John Versypt thanked the Iowa City police and Johnson County officials in a press release on Tuesday. Jennifer Wakefield, County officials in a press release on Tuesday. Jennifer Wakefield made a statement on behalf of the Versypt family members, saying they ‘hope that justice will be served.” (The Daily Iowan/Chad Burtch)

Jennifer Wakefield, County officials in a press release on Tuesday. Jennifer Wakefield made a statement on behalf of the Versypt family members, saying they ‘hope that justice will be served.” (The Daily Iowan/Chad Burtch)

Jennifer Wakefield, County officials in a press release on Tuesday. Jennifer Wakefield made a statement on behalf of the Versypt family members, saying they ‘hope that justice will be served.” (The Daily Iowan/Chad Burtch)

Jennifer Wakefield, County officials in a press release on Tuesday. Jennifer Wakefield made a statement on behalf of the Versypt family members, saying they ‘hope that justice will be served.” (The Daily Iowan/Chad Burtch)

Jennifer Wakefield, County officials in a press release on Tuesday. Jennifer Wakefield made a statement on behalf of the Versypt family members, saying they ‘hope that justice will be served.” (The Daily Iowan/Chad Burtch)

Jennifer Wakefield, County officials in a press release on Tuesday. Jennifer Wakefield made a statement on behalf of the Versypt family members, saying they ‘hope that justice will be served.” (The Daily Iowan/Chad Burtch)

Jennifer Wakefield, County officials in a press release on Tuesday. Jennifer Wakefield made a statement on behalf of the Versypt family members, saying they ‘hope that justice will be served.” (The Daily Iowan/Chad Burtch)

Jennifer Wakefield, County officials in a press release on Tuesday. Jennifer Wakefield made a statement on behalf of the Versypt family members, saying they ‘hope that justice will be served.” (The Daily Iowan/Chad Burtch)

Jennifer Wakefield, County officials in a press release on Tuesday. Jennifer Wakefield made a statement on behalf of the Versypt family members, saying they ‘hope that justice will be served.” (The Daily Iowan/Chad Burtch)

Jennifer Wakefield, County officials in a press release on Tuesday. Jennifer Wakefield made a statement on behalf of the Versypt family members, saying they ‘hope that justice will be served.” (The Daily Iowan/Chad Burtch)

Jennifer Wakefield, County officials in a press release on Tuesday. Jennifer Wakefield made a statement on behalf of the Versypt family members, saying they ‘hope that justice will be served.” (The Daily Iowan/Chad Burtch)

Jennifer Wakefield, County officials in a press release on Tuesday. Jennifer Wakefield made a statement on behalf of the Versypt family members, saying they ‘hope that justice will be served.” (The Daily Iowan/Chad Burtch)

Jennifer Wakefield, County officials in a press release on Tuesday. Jennifer Wakefield made a statement on behalf of the Versypt family members, saying they ‘hope that justice will be served.” (The Daily Iowan/Chad Burtch)

Jennifer Wakefield, County officials in a press release on Tuesday. Jennifer Wakefield made a statement on behalf of the Versypt family members, saying they ‘hope that justice will be served.” (The Daily Iowan/Chad Burtch)

Jennifer Wakefield, County officials in a press release on Tuesday. Jennifer Wakefield made a statement on behalf of the Versypt family members, saying they ‘hope that justice will be served.” (The Daily Iowan/Chad Burtch)

Jennifer Wakefield, County officials in a press release on Tuesday. Jennifer Wakefield made a statement on behalf of the Versypt family members, saying they ‘hope that justice will be served.” (The Daily Iowan/Chad Burtch)

Jennifer Wakefield, County officials in a press release on Tuesday. Jennifer Wakefield made a statement on behalf of the Versypt family members, saying they ‘hope that justice will be served.” (The Daily Iowan/Chad Burtch)

Jennifer Wakefield, County officials in a press release on Tuesday. Jennifer Wakefield made a statement on behalf of the Versypt family members, saying they ‘hope that justice will be served.” (The Daily Iowan/Chad Burtch)

Jennifer Wakefield, County officials in a press release on Tuesday. Jennifer Wakefield made a statement on behalf of the Versypt family members, saying they ‘hope that justice will be served.” (The Daily Iowan/Chad Burtch)

Jennifer Wakefield, County officials in a press release on Tuesday. Jennifer Wakefield made a statement on behalf of the Versypt family members, saying they ‘hope that justice will be served.” (The Daily Iowan/Chad Burtch)

Jennifer Wakefield, County officials in a press release on Tuesday. Jennifer Wakefield made a statement on behalf of the Versypt family members, saying they ‘hope that justice will be served.” (The Daily Iowan/Chad Burtch)

Jennifer Wakefield, County officials in a press release on Tuesday. Jennifer Wakefield made a statement on behalf of the Versypt family members, saying they ‘hope that justice will be served.” (The Daily Iowan/Chad Burtch)

Jennifer Wakefield, County officials in a press release on Tuesday. Jennifer Wakefield made a statement on behalf of the Versypt family members, saying they ‘hope that justice will be served.” (The Daily Iowan/Chad Burtch)

Jennifer Wakefield, County officials in a press release on Tuesday. Jennifer Wakefield made a statement on behalf of the Versypt family members, saying they ‘hope that justice will be served.” (The Daily Iowan/Chad Burtch)

Jennifer Wakefield, County officials in a press release on Tuesday. Jennifer Wakefield made a statement on behalf of the Versypt family members, saying they ‘hope that justice will be served.” (The Daily Iowan/Chad Burtch)

Jennifer Wakefield, County officials in a press release on Tuesday. Jennifer Wakefield made a statement on behalf of the Versypt family members, saying they ‘hope that justice will be served.” (The Daily Iowan/Chad Burtch)

Jennifer Wakefield, County officials in a press release on Tuesday. Jennifer Wakefield made a statement on behalf of the Versypt family members, saying they ‘hope that justice will be served.” (The Daily Iowan/Chad Burtch)

Jennifer Wakefield, County officials in a press release on Tuesday. Jennifer Wakefield made a statement on behalf of the Versypt family members, saying they ‘hope that justice will be served.” (The Daily Iowan/Chad Burtch)

Jennifer Wakefield, County officials in a press release on Tuesday. Jennifer Wakefield made a statement on behalf of the Versypt family members, saying they ‘hope that justice will be served.” (The Daily Iowan/Chad Burtch)

Jennifer Wakefield, County officials in a press release on Tuesday. Jennifer Wakefield made a statement on behalf of the Versypt family members, saying they ‘hope that justice will be served.” (The Daily Iowan/Chad Burtch)

Jennifer Wakefield, County officials in a press release on Tuesday. Jennifer Wakefield made a statement on behalf of the Versypt family members, saying they ‘hope that justice will be served.” (The Daily Iowan/Chad Burtch)

Jennifer Wakefield, County officials in a press release on Tuesday. Jennifer Wakefield made a statement on behalf of the Versypt family members, saying they ‘hope that justice will be served.” (The Daily Iowan/Chad Burtch)

Jennifer Wakefield, County officials in a press release on Tuesday. Jennifer Wakefield made a statement on behalf of the Versypt family members, saying they ‘hope that justice will be served.” (The Daily Iowan/Chad Burtch)

Jennifer Wakefield, County officials in a press release on Tuesday. Jennifer Wakefield made a statement on behalf of the Versypt family members, saying they ‘hope that justice will be served.” (The Daily Iowan/Chad Burtch)

Jennifer Wakefield, County officials in a press release on Tuesday. Jennifer Wakefield made a statement on behalf of the Versypt family members, saying they ‘hope that justice will be served.” (The Daily Iowan/Chad Burtch)
About a half million dollars has been saved by alleviation and a reduction of more than 500 beds. ... the voters. The bar-entry commitment to work with all

Hayek should remain on City Council

Here it comes – a col-

Adam S. Sullivan

Here it comes – a col-

Here it comes – a col-

Hayek's endorsement was a endorsement worth pondering. His fellow councilmen recognized his leadership by choosing him in many 2022

Althu...
Iowa City school district officials said a plan that would leave No Child Left Behind up to the states might be a sensible alternative. Following President Obama’s Dec. 20 announcemen

The Daily Iowan - Iowa City, Iowa - Wednesday, September 28, 2011 - 5

Iowa City is expected to apply for the waiver. However, the Iowa Department of Education has yet to determine any specifics, state officials said.

“There are different parts to the application. We have to look at what assessments will be put in place. How are we going to measure student growth? It’s a comprehensive waiver,” said Kevin Fangman, a deputy director of the Iowa Department of Education.

“We have to make sure that we’re going to measure student growth? It’s a comprehensive waiver,” said Kevin Fangman, a deputy director of the Iowa Department of Education.

“We have to make sure that we’re going to measure student growth? It’s a comprehensive waiver,” said Kevin Fangman, a deputy director of the Iowa Department of Education.

“We have to make sure that we’re going to measure student growth? It’s a comprehensive waiver,” said Kevin Fangman, a deputy director of the Iowa Department of Education.

“We have to make sure that we’re going to measure student growth? It’s a comprehensive waiver,” said Kevin Fangman, a deputy director of the Iowa Department of Education.

“The waivers are going to only be for a two and a half years in length. There’s some question about what happens at that point. There has been some talk of being able to extend those deadlines. The hope is that during that time frames Congress would be able to reauthorize the law.

Fangman, along with Melissa Gajde — Title 1 coordinator, said the waiver will allow the district to be more flexible in its programming and assessment of student growth.

“The waiver would be impactful in Iowa. Many districts, D-Iowa City, and she said that has never been supportive of No Child Left Behind. But the district still feels effective. The current system of public schools enforces the laws of Iowa and allows us to be reading at grade level.” She thanked those who want to use a curriculum that is not the way to get there.

Hon. David Johnson, R-Iowa City, said he has never been a supporter of No Child Left Behind. Johnson said it is possible that the district might be reading at grade level, but that “That can be measured.

We want students to be successful and to see their achievements in structured education. The program curriculum has expanded options for students with special needs.

It also has helped to provide the expansion of the staff in the past year that are responsible for assisting students in student life, transition, and academics.

The program serves 41 students. Participants of the program help students with disabilities receive an array of opportunities in the residence halls, on campus, and in the community.

They learn to manage their time and money and to solve problems constructively.

“A waiver would allow us the opportunity to cut from underneath rules and regulations that clearly should have been re-examined,” Murley said.

Under No Child, a school that does not have every student performing at grade-level proficiency is deemed a “failure.”

“Failure” has yet to determine any specifics, state officials said.

“The waiver has bipartisan support in Iowa. Many districts, D-Iowa City, and she said that has never been supportive of No Child Left Behind. But the district still feels effective. The current system of public schools enforces the laws of Iowa and allows us to be reading at grade level.” She thanked those who want to use a curriculum that is not the way to get there.

Hon. David Johnson, R-Iowa City, said he has never been a supporter of No Child Left Behind. Johnson said it is possible that the district might be reading at grade level, but that “That can be measured.

We want students to be successful and to see their achievements in structured education. The program curriculum has expanded options for students with special needs.

It also has helped to provide the expansion of the staff in the past year that are responsible for assisting students in student life, transition, and academics.

The program serves 41 students. Participants of the program help students with disabilities receive an array of opportunities in the residence halls, on campus, and in the community.

They learn to manage their time and money and to solve problems constructively.

“A waiver would allow us the opportunity to cut from underneath rules and regulations that clearly should have been re-examined,” Murley said.

Under No Child, a school that does not have every student performing at grade-level proficiency is deemed a “failure.”

“Failure” has yet to determine any specifics, state officials said.

“The waiver has bipartisan support in Iowa. Many districts, D-Iowa City, and she said that has never been supportive of No Child Left Behind. But the district still feels effective. The current system of public schools enforces the laws of Iowa and allows us to be reading at grade level.” She thanked those who want to use a curriculum that is not the way to get there.

Hon. David Johnson, R-Iowa City, said he has never been a supporter of No Child Left Behind. Johnson said it is possible that the district might be reading at grade level, but that “That can be measured.

We want students to be successful and to see their achievements in structured education. The program curriculum has expanded options for students with special needs.

It also has helped to provide the expansion of the staff in the past year that are responsible for assisting students in student life, transition, and academics.

The program serves 41 students. Participants of the program help students with disabilities receive an array of opportunities in the residence halls, on campus, and in the community.

They learn to manage their time and money and to solve problems constructively.

“A waiver would allow us the opportunity to cut from underneath rules and regulations that clearly should have been re-examined,” Murley said.

Under No Child, a school that does not have every student performing at grade-level proficiency is deemed a “failure.”

“Failure” has yet to determine any specifics, state officials said.

“The waiver has bipartisan support in Iowa. Many districts, D-Iowa City, and she said that has never been supportive of No Child Left Behind. But the district still feels effective. The current system of public schools enforces the laws of Iowa and allows us to be reading at grade level.” She thanked those who want to use a curriculum that is not the way to get there.

Hon. David Johnson, R-Iowa City, said he has never been a supporter of No Child Left Behind. Johnson said it is possible that the district might be reading at grade level, but that “That can be measured.

We want students to be successful and to see their achievements in structured education. The program curriculum has expanded options for students with special needs.

It also has helped to provide the expansion of the staff in the past year that are responsible for assisting students in student life, transition, and academics.

The program serves 41 students. Participants of the program help students with disabilities receive an array of opportunities in the residence halls, on campus, and in the community.

They learn to manage their time and money and to solve problems constructively.

“A waiver would allow us the opportunity to cut from underneath rules and regulations that clearly should have been re-examined,” Murley said.

Under No Child, a school that does not have every student performing at grade-level proficiency is deemed a “failure.”

“Failure” has yet to determine any specifics, state officials said.

“The waiver has bipartisan support in Iowa. Many districts, D-Iowa City, and she said that has never been supportive of No Child Left Behind. But the district still feels effective. The current system of public schools enforces the laws of Iowa and allows us to be reading at grade level.” She thanked those who want to use a curriculum that is not the way to get there.

Hon. David Johnson, R-Iowa City, said he has never been a supporter of No Child Left Behind. Johnson said it is possible that the district might be reading at grade level, but that “That can be measured.

We want students to be successful and to see their achievements in structured education. The program curriculum has expanded options for students with special needs.

It also has helped to provide the expansion of the staff in the past year that are responsible for assisting students in student life, transition, and academics.

The program serves 41 students. Participants of the program help students with disabilities receive an array of opportunities in the residence halls, on campus, and in the community.

They learn to manage their time and money and to solve problems constructively.

“A waiver would allow us the opportunity to cut from underneath rules and regulations that clearly should have been re-examined,” Murley said.

Under No Child, a school that does not have every student performing at grade-level proficiency is deemed a “failure.”

“Failure” has yet to determine any specifics, state officials said.

“The waiver has bipartisan support in Iowa. Many districts, D-Iowa City, and she said that has never been supportive of No Child Left Behind. But the district still feels effective. The current system of public schools enforces the laws of Iowa and allows us to be reading at grade level.” She thanked those who want to use a curriculum that is not the way to get there.

Hon. David Johnson, R-Iowa City, said he has never been a supporter of No Child Left Behind. Johnson said it is possible that the district might be reading at grade level, but that “That can be measured.

We want students to be successful and to see their achievements in structured education. The program curriculum has expanded options for students with special needs.

It also has helped to provide the expansion of the staff in the past year that are responsible for assisting students in student life, transition, and academics.

The program serves 41 students. Participants of the program help students with disabilities receive an array of opportunities in the residence halls, on campus, and in the community.

They learn to manage their time and money and to solve problems constructively.

“A waiver would allow us the opportunity to cut from underneath rules and regulations that clearly should have been re-examined,” Murley said.

Under No Child, a school that does not have every student performing at grade-level proficiency is deemed a “failure.”

“Failure” has yet to determine any specifics, state officials said.

“The waiver has bipartisan support in Iowa. Many districts, D-Iowa City, and she said that has never been supportive of No Child Left Behind. But the district still feels effective. The current system of public schools enforces the laws of Iowa and allows us to be reading at grade level.” She thanked those who want to use a curriculum that is not the way to get there.

Hon. David Johnson, R-Iowa City, said he has never been a supporter of No Child Left Behind. Johnson said it is possible that the district might be reading at grade level, but that “That can be measured.

We want students to be successful and to see their achievements in structured education. The program curriculum has expanded options for students with special needs.

It also has helped to provide the expansion of the staff in the past year that are responsible for assisting students in student life, transition, and academics.

The program serves 41 students. Participants of the program help students with disabilities receive an array of opportunities in the residence halls, on campus, and in the community.

They learn to manage their time and money and to solve problems constructively.

“A waiver would allow us the opportunity to cut from underneath rules and regulations that clearly should have been re-examined,” Murley said.

Under No Child, a school that does not have every student performing at grade-level proficiency is deemed a “failure.”

“Failure” has yet to determine any specifics, state officials said.

“The waiver has bipartisan support in Iowa. Many districts, D-Iowa City, and she said that has never been supportive of No Child Left Behind. But the district still feels effective. The current system of public schools enforces the laws of Iowa and allows us to be reading at grade level.” She thanked those who want to use a curriculum that is not the way to get there.

Hon. David Johnson, R-Iowa City, said he has never been a supporter of No Child Left Behind. Johnson said it is possible that the district might be reading at grade level, but that “That can be measured.

We want students to be successful and to see their achievements in structured education. The program curriculum has expanded options for students with special needs.

It also has helped to provide the expansion of the staff in the past year that are responsible for assisting students in student life, transition, and academics.

The program serves 41 students. Participants of the program help students with disabilities receive an array of opportunities in the residence halls, on campus, and in the community.
Perry: Delay air rule

By MADISON BENNETT

Author Neal Stephenson graduated from Ames High in 1977.

Stephenson will read excerpts from his latest work at 7 p.m. on Thursdays at the Iowa City Public Library. Admission: Free Author Neal Stephenson managed to link computer hacking, the Russians, Mal- flora, video games, and terrorism all in one story. But he also managed to give a how-to about his newest novel, Reamde, as well.

“Neal spent most of his childhood in Ames and graduated from high school there, so he has ties to Iowa,” said Terry Paulios, a co-owner of Prairie Lights.

Perry released the letter in July. The state has asked a federal appeals court to enforce, even after the EPA offered to help the companies meet the tighter standards.

“Mr. President, you have committed to creating a lot of jobs,” Perry wrote. “These rules, if enforced, even after the EPA offered to help the companies meet the tighter standards, will cost your administration over

The standards have stirred up Texas’ largest energy companies, which say they don’t have adequate time to meet the deadlines without shutting down plants and jeopardizing the reliability of Texas electric grid. Implementation of the rules will start Jan. 1.

The standards have stirred up Texas’ largest energy companies, which say they don’t have adequate time to meet the deadlines without shutting down plants and jeopardizing the reliability of Texas electric grid. Implementation of the rules will start Jan. 1.

The White House said the new standards will save lives.

“We stand behind common sense, vital Clean Air Protections for public health and clean air,” White House spokesman Clark Hernon said. “This rule will prevent more than 34,000 premature deaths each year and ensure that American families aren’t suffering the consequences of harmful air pollution generated far from home.”

The new clean-air rules are designed to significantly reduce smog and sulfur pollution by requiring 21 states, including Texas, to decrease smokestack emissions. The new guidelines apply to sulfur dioxide and nitrogen-oxide emissions, which mostly come from coal-fired power plants.

Texas has 19 coal-fired power plants — more than any other state — and plants to build more soon. It is one of the few states with four new energy sources, and hot weather, has been vocal in its opposition to the rules since they were announced in July. The state has asked a federal appeals court to review the rules.

Perry has used the new standards in his long-standing accusation that the EPA under Obama malfunctions in state affairs, lays down expensive regulations during tough economic times, and is forcing companies to cut jobs to offset the cost of complying with environmental rules.

The White House said the new standards will save lives.

“We stand behind common sense, vital Clean Air Protections for public health and clean air,” White House spokesman Clark Hernon said. “This rule will prevent more than 34,000 premature deaths each year and ensure that American families aren’t suffering the consequences of harmful air pollution generated far from home.”

The new clean-air rules are designed to significantly reduce smog and sulfur pollution by requiring 21 states, including Texas, to decrease smokestack emissions. The new guidelines apply to sulfur dioxide and nitrogen-oxide emissions, which mostly come from coal-fired power plants.

Texas has 19 coal-fired power plants — more than any other state — and plants to build more soon. It is one of the few states with four new energy sources, and hot weather, has been vocal in its opposition to the rules since they were announced in July. The state has asked a federal appeals court to review the rules.

Perry has used the new standards in his long-standing accusation that the EPA under Obama malfunctions in state affairs, lays down expensive regulations during tough economic times, and is forcing companies to cut jobs to offset the cost of complying with environmental rules.

More than 500 of Ioawans buy based on newspaper ads

Looking for customers who are ready to do more than window shop? In a recent survey, more than 500 of Ioawans said they’ve made a purchase in the last two weeks based on an ad they saw in their local newspaper.

Newspapers attract a more affluent and more educated audience than any other media. And those readers buy local.

That’s why your next customer is spending more time with their newspaper than any other news source. They count on the in-depth coverage, local content and access to shopping information.

Get access to the people you need when sales matter. They’re reading your local newspaper.

Source: Newton Marketing and Research 2010

This gets you an unbelievable experience, 7 meals and a 1-Shirt

Video-game reality

What can you do in 54 Hours? Here’s your chance to find out.

How to work:

You can register for: www.Iocautility.startweekend.org

You can register for: www.Iocautility.startweekend.org

You have one at the Pappajohn Pavilion on Friday September 10th from 5:00 to 8:00

You have one at the Pappajohn Pavilion on Friday September 10th from 5:00 to 8:00

You can register for: www.Iocautility.startweekend.org

You can register for: www.Iocautility.startweekend.org

You can register for: www.Iocautility.startweekend.org

This is a chance to try out the ground floor of something new or just put a roof for when it becomes a reality.

It’s a three week adventure and you can find more information about the weekend on the website.

This gets you an unbelievable experience, 7 meals and a 1-Shirt
Iowa Democratic Party officials say Gov. Terry Branstad’s administration took more than 50 days to respond to an open-records request filed by the party.

"We methodically review every single document in order to protect the privacy rights of Iowans, redacting any and all personal information according to Iowa Code," Tim Albrecht, Branstad spokesman, said.

Democrats said the actions violate Iowa Code Section 22A.2 that states the delay for a response to an open-records request "shall not exceed 20 calendar days and ordinarily should not exceed 10 business days." They said the average unique request to the Governor’s Office takes 23 days to fulfill, and the Governor’s Office withheld 678 documents from Democrats.

Iowa Democratic Party spokesman Sam Roecker said a request from a professor at the University of Pennsylvania, which cost $1,078.80, was left out of the Democrats’ investigation because the Governor’s Office did not provide the date the information was requested.

But Albrecht said those numbers aren’t true. He said the Governor’s Office has completed 49 open-records requests this year. He said the office averaged 17 days to complete all requests, and 95 percent of requests have been completed with no charge for staff review time.

"We methodically review every single document in order to protect the privacy rights of Iowans, redacting any and all personal information according to Iowa Code," Albrecht said.

The Governor’s Office provides the first 10 copies of open records for free. Any additional copies are 10 cents per page. Emails are provided on a disk at no charge.

Democrats that it could take longer than 20 days.

On Tuesday accused Gov. Terry Branstad’s administration of violating the state’s open-records law by taking more than 50 days to respond to an open-records request filed by the Iowa Democratic Party on July 6.

"This request took a lot of time, but we strictly adhere to the state’s open-records law in providing a timely response," he said.

Earlier this month, Bill Monroe said that in his three years in office, he took office Jan. 14. According to Democrats, the Branstad administration took as long as 55 days to respond to a single request to the Governor’s Office.

"There was a 55-day delay for a response to an open-records request July 6, which cost $1,078.80, to be reviewed at a revised, lower rate of 10 cents per page," Monroe said.

The governor’s staff told the Democrats that it could take longer than 20 days to review the documents.

"Iowa Democratic Party spokesman Tim Albrecht maintained Tuesday that the Governor’s Office is “timely and thorough in completing all open-records requests.” He called the Democrats’ allegations “yet another hyper-partisan political attack.”

"The Iowa Democratic Party has proved itself incapable of producing a thoughtful, cohesive plan for job creation and has instead returned to the same tired, careless, wan- dering juvenile tantrums that we’ve come to expect," Monroe said.

"The Governor’s Office did not provide the date the information was requested, so the Democrats were unable to review the documents.

"Iowa Democrats’ allegations are meant to ensure transparency and account-ability in government," said Iowa Democratic Party Chairwoman Sue Dvorsky. "Governor’s Office took as long as 55 days to respond to a single request to the Governor’s Office and ordinarily should not exceed 10 business days."

Democrats said the average unique request to the Governor’s Office has taken 23 days to fulfill, and the Governor’s Office withheld 678 documents from Democrats.

Monroe said that in his three years in office, he has completed 49 open-records requests this year. He said the office averaged 17 days to complete all requests, and 95 percent of requests have been completed with no charge for staff review time.

"We methodically review every single document in order to protect the privacy rights of Iowans, redacting any and all personal information according to Iowa Code," Monroe said.

The Governor’s Office provides the first 10 copies of open records for free. Any additional copies are 10 cents per page. Emails are provided on a disk at no charge.

Democrats said the actions violate Iowa Code Section 22A.2 that states the delay for a response to an open-records request "shall not exceed 20 calendar days and ordinarily should not exceed 10 business days." They said the average unique request to the Governor’s Office takes 23 days to fulfill, and the Governor’s Office withheld 678 documents from Democrats.

The governor’s staff told the Democrats that it could take longer than 20 days to review the documents.

"Iowa Democrats’ allegations are meant to ensure transparency and account-ability in government," said Iowa Democratic Party Chairwoman Sue Dvorsky. "Governor’s Office took as long as 55 days to respond to a single request to the Governor’s Office and ordinarily should not exceed 10 business days."

Democrats said the actions violate Iowa Code Section 22A.2 that states the delay for a response to an open-records request "shall not exceed 20 calendar days and ordinarily should not exceed 10 business days." They said the average unique request to the Governor’s Office takes 23 days to fulfill, and the Governor’s Office withheld 678 documents from Democrats.

"We methodically review every single document in order to protect the privacy rights of Iowans, redacting any and all personal information according to Iowa Code," Tim Albrecht, Branstad spokesman, said.

Democrats said the actions violate Iowa Code Section 22A.2 that states the delay for a response to an open-records request "shall not exceed 20 calendar days and ordinarily should not exceed 10 business days." They said the average unique request to the Governor’s Office takes 23 days to fulfill, and the Governor’s Office withheld 678 documents from Democrats.

The governor’s staff told the Democrats that it could take longer than 20 days to review the documents.

"Iowa Democrats’ allegations are meant to ensure transparency and account-ability in government," said Iowa Democratic Party Chairwoman Sue Dvorsky. "Governor’s Office took as long as 55 days to respond to a single request to the Governor’s Office and ordinarily should not exceed 10 business days."

Democrats said the actions violate Iowa Code Section 22A.2 that states the delay for a response to an open-records request "shall not exceed 20 calendar days and ordinarily should not exceed 10 business days." They said the average unique request to the Governor’s Office takes 23 days to fulfill, and the Governor’s Office withheld 678 documents from Democrats.
Unprecedented New Facebook Features:

• "Like" something, it will follow you around waiting for opportunities to catch your interest.

• Photo uploads now physically affect the person in the background.

• Poke, now physo-poke, surf Facebook with your actual face. Don't feed it and have three settings: Pokes, Lil' Pokey, and Pokey of Death.

• Not only can you find friends of friends of friends, you will be able to friend Friends of Friends.

In the mail, you will get a local book with a binding made from a second-hand face. Don't feed it in public.

All uploaded photos are now privately owned by Facebook Corporation, a totally owned subsidiary, and can be used by an ad-based photo art for greeting cards or wrapping paper with a message of Mark Zuckerberg love you.

• Whenever a tag gets on the ledge, call Claudia Swan, 5:30 p.m., 285 Boyd Law Building.

• As you pass over the edge and look into Facebook, Facebook is looking back at you, a separation hazard leaves behind you, and a half.

• Sharing cross-paints chats with friends, it will totally call you to give you an "I like you".

For every 10 clicks, you will be offered a "Like" button.

• Every so often, a friend will ask you if you want to be a friend. You may have to reassess a relationship.

• Your profile picture will become a little more obvious. You will feel the interest of someone who wants to form a partnership.

• A new feature will push you into a leadership position. Love is in the mix, along with a vacation.

• Your aggressive and playful way of handling others will impress people and help you drum up support. Strive to achieve, and you will succeed.

• You can manage more than you realize. Communicate how you feel matters should be handled. Your suggestions, coupled with being proactive, will propel you to a position of power.

• There's a secret message hidden in the HTML code, which can be used as photo art and appear here? Simply submit the details at: dailyiowan.com.

The Daily Iowan
dailyiowan.com

The Guardian
theguardian.com

The New York Times
crossword

The New York Times
crossword

The Daily Break
dailybreak.com

The Daily Iowan
dailyiowan.com

Today's events

• Pain Research Seminar, "Thermal Filtration of Tactile Exposed to "New Waves on an Old Gait," C. Colley Woodbury, University of Wisconsin, 9 a.m., 151 Medical Education & Research Facility Building.

• Preschool Story Time, 11 a.m., Library.

• Seniors & Pets Story Time, 5:30 p.m., Iowa City Public Library.

• Cinematic and Critical Moment Information Session, 11:30 a.m., 130 Pennsylvania Ave.

• CIMBA Informational Session, 7:30 p.m., 285 Boyd Law Building.

• Inaugural-Seminar-Media Day, 9:30 a.m., 308 Bovard Building.

• Latinus Council Meeting, 12-30 p.m., 300 University Capitol Center.

• Academic Success Workshop: Time Management & Organizational Skills, 3-10 p.m., Library.

• Art in the Park, 5-7 p.m., Campus.

• Farmers’ Market, 5 p.m., Campus (Saturday parking ramp).

• Bicyclists of Iowa City Ride, 5:30-7:30 p.m., Sycamore, 600 W. Fifth Ave.

• Cinetopia and Dutch Cultural Center, "Global Content," 10:00 a.m., Cinetopia (Sunday), 7:30 p.m., Destination Family, 1150 N. W. Market St.

• Zumbathon, 5-10 a.m., Old Bruck

SUMMIT EVENT

A special social event against teen bullying schedules the details at: dailyiowan.com/autosummit

The Daily Iowan
dailyiowan.com

Today's events

• Pain Research Seminar, "Thermal Filtration of Tactile Exposed to "New Waves on an Old Gait," C. Colley Woodbury, University of Wisconsin, 9 a.m., 151 Medical Education & Research Facility Building.

• Preschool Story Time, 11 a.m., Library.

• Seniors & Pets Story Time, 5:30 p.m., Iowa City Public Library.

• Cinematic and Critical Moment Information Session, 11:30 a.m., 130 Pennsylvania Ave.

• CIMBA Informational Session, 7:30 p.m., 285 Boyd Law Building.

• Inaugural-Seminar-Media Day, 9:30 a.m., 308 Bovard Building.

• Latinus Council Meeting, 12-30 p.m., 300 University Capitol Center.

• Academic Success Workshop: Time Management & Organizational Skills, 3-10 p.m., Library.

• Art in the Park, 5-7 p.m., Campus.

• Farmers’ Market, 5 p.m., Campus (Saturday parking ramp).

• Bicyclists of Iowa City Ride, 5:30-7:30 p.m., Sycamore, 600 W. Fifth Ave.

• Cinetopia and Dutch Cultural Center, "Global Content," 10:00 a.m., Cinetopia (Sunday), 7:30 p.m., Destination Family, 1150 N. W. Market St.

• Zumbathon, 5-10 a.m., Old Bruck
he didn’t really look very good in our first game or the second couple of weeks, so we’ve seen him start to climb back. Obviously, we’re going to need him to play up with us.

Jared Marshall said he felt Coker had run well against Pittsburgh, putting in a solid effort for the tailback’s ability.

“We thought he was running hard — we just weren’t real sure of his second chance to showcase his skills,” James Forest said. “As an offensive line, we’re going to do our best work to make sure that he has his best shot at it.”

A No. 2 back behind Coker, Marshall said, would be an established running back for that matter ever since the very beginning of McCall out of action in the opening game. The starting position search might finally be over, with true freshman — Jordan Consen- soule — getting the bulk of against Montrose, running into the end zone.

“Hell, he’s fast. He can break tackles,” Coker said of Consensole. “I played with him in high school and he was physically ready. He just had to get mentally ready. He’s really excited about it.”

Secondary stabilizing

After switching things up on the defensive side, Kirk Ferentz said, “We’re making a major change” to the defensive lineup. He’s been moving players back to corner to get back in place of possibly having Cameron Heyward, who was also hurt against Baltimore, become the safety instead of Collin Sleeper, whose injury has kept them in the group’s continuity, improving something that has been difficult to achieve after personnel changes.

“Maybe having had some guys around, you don’t need to focus on that as much as you would with 11 different players,” he said. “We’ve got the secondary taking care of the right things.”

His speed put Entourage on top of Division M.

“I guess my speed just took over that spark and it just kept going,” Bernstine said of Straumann’s play. “For the most part, she’ll be called upon to make the best of the time she’s on the court.”

The Hawkeye defense unit isn’t what it was two weeks ago against Louisiana-Monroe, but the Hawkeyes remain on top of the heap with the effort in the two wins.

The Hawkeyes gave up 352 yards to Monroe — and 18 tackles (tie for most in the 15-team field). But at the same time, Iowa knows the potential is there is finishing ahead of division schools — such as Georgia Tech, which finished last spring ranked third nationally — without its best player, “We’re a growing team,” Hawksh said. “There’s a little dis- connection at times, but he’s definitely engaged and in tune with what the sticker are doing and you never get thrown in, you’ll be right in the mix.”

“Most of us played high-school ball, and last spring she decided to get involved with the coaching staff that has been a greater asset to the team playing in the back,” Boldt said.

He did that by finding Leonzo loud and clear for the long connection. He was 7 of 10 in the third quarter when they “just took over each other,” Leonzo said.

He’s speed put Entourage on top of Division M.

“There have been some trick plays and luck fumi- nesses that have come into the equation,” Bernstine said.

Rush. His play gave Mar-

Squad remains unbeaten

Entourage used an 80-yard touchdown strike to down Roethlisberger and Cheese, 26-24.

By ALEX FRENCH

ATTACKING INTRAMURALS

COKER CONTINUED FROM 12

GOLFWEEK CONTINUED FROM 12

DEFENSE CONTINUED FROM 12

STRAUMANN CONTINUED FROM 12

ATHLETICS CONTINUED FROM 12

SPORTS

Final results from the Golfweek Conference Challenge: Place, Name, Final 1st/2nd/3rd (par 72)

1. T28. Ian Vandersee, +6 73/75/74
2. T13. Chris Brant, +2 70/73/75
3. T13. Chris Brant, +2 70/73/75
4. T13. Chris Brant, +2 70/73/75
5. Tomlinson, +7 79/72/71
6. T13. Chris Brant, +2 70/73/75
7. T13. Chris Brant, +2 70/73/75
8. Kirk Ferentz said Tues- day that likely won’t be the case.

The Hawkeyes gave up 352 yards to Monroe — and 18 tackles (tie for most in the 15-team field). But at the same time, Iowa knows the potential is there is finishing ahead of division schools — such as Georgia Tech, which finished last spring ranked third nationally — without its best player, “We’re a growing team,” Hawksh said. “There’s a little dis- connection at times, but he’s definitely engaged and in tune with what the sticker are doing and you never get thrown in, you’ll be right in the mix.”

“Most of us played high-school ball, and last spring she decided to get involved with the coaching staff that has been a greater asset to the team playing in the back,” Boldt said.

He did that by finding Leonzo loud and clear for the long connection. He was 7 of 10 in the third quarter when they “just took over each other,” Leonzo said.

He’s speed put Entourage on top of Division M.

“There have been some trick plays and luck fumi- nesses that have come into the equation,” Bernstine said.

Rush. His play gave Mar-
Hawk soccer shakes things up in the midfield
Iowa has begun using five midfielders in hopes of winning possession and generating more offense.

By BEN WOLFSON
The Daily Iowan

Summer — and the course after that day — riding along in the golf cart and watching. When she decided she wanted to try golfing, her father asked her colleagues to shoot a few holes for her.

Rainey played soccer until she was 10, when she told her father she wanted to quit the sport to focus on golf. From that point on, she competed in tournaments against other top junior golfers.

Mary Rae, said her daughter's experience competing against golfers gave her a level of maturity not commonly seen in girls so young.

"It was a golfer. He was her biggest fan, and I think he took the fact that he loved the game so much just carried over to her."

Nicole Rae picked up the game when she was 4 and accompanied her father to the 26, Charles Country Club.

"It was Mother's Day, and we were having breakfast when a group of golfers," she said. "I told my dad I wanted to play, and I begged him all day until he finally took me.

Her father said Rae spent a lot of time with him while he played on the course after that day. Riding along in the golf cart and watching. When she decided she wanted to play golf, her father asked her colleagues to shoot a few holes for her.

Rainey played soccer until she was 10, when she told her father she wanted to quit the sport to focus on golf. From that point on, she competed in tournaments against other top junior golfers.

Mary Rae, said her daughter's experience competing against golfers gave her a level of maturity not commonly seen in girls so young.

"It was a golfer. He was her biggest fan, and I think he took the fact that he loved the game so much just carried over to her."

Nicole Rae picked up the game when she was 4 and accompanied her father to the 26, Charles Country Club.

"It was Mother's Day, and we were having breakfast when a group of golfers," she said. "I told my dad I wanted to play, and I begged him all day until he finally took me.

Her father said Rae spent a lot of time with him while he played on the course after that day. Riding along in the golf cart and watching. When she decided she wanted to try golfing, her father asked her colleagues to shoot a few holes for her.

Rainey played soccer until she was 10, when she told her father she wanted to quit the sport to focus on golf. From that point on, she competed in tournaments against other top junior golfers.

Mary Rae, said her daughter's experience competing against golfers gave her a level of maturity not commonly seen in girls so young.

"It was a golfer. He was her biggest fan, and I think he took the fact that he loved the game so much just carried over to her."

Nicole Rae picked up the game when she was 4 and accompanied her father to the 26, Charles Country Club.

"It was Mother's Day, and we were having breakfast when a group of golfers," she said. "I told my dad I wanted to play, and I begged him all day until he finally took me.

Her father said Rae spent a lot of time with him while he played on the course after that day. Riding along in the golf cart and watching. When she decided she wanted to play golf, her father asked her colleagues to shoot a few holes for her.

Rainey played soccer until she was 10, when she told her father she wanted to quit the sport to focus on golf. From that point on, she competed in tournaments against other top junior golfers.

Mary Rae, said her daughter's experience competing against golfers gave her a level of maturity not commonly seen in girls so young.

"It was a golfer. He was her biggest fan, and I think he took the fact that he loved the game so much just carried over to her."

Nicole Rae picked up the game when she was 4 and accompanied her father to the 26, Charles Country Club.

"It was Mother's Day, and we were having breakfast when a group of golfers," she said. "I told my dad I wanted to play, and I begged him all day until he finally took me.

Her father said Rae spent a lot of time with him while he played on the course after that day. Riding along in the golf cart and watching. When she decided she wanted to play golf, her father asked her colleagues to shoot a few holes for her.

Rainey played soccer until she was 10, when she told her father she wanted to quit the sport to focus on golf. From that point on, she competed in tournaments against other top junior golfers.

Mary Rae, said her daughter's experience competing against golfers gave her a level of maturity not commonly seen in girls so young.

"It was a golfer. He was her biggest fan, and I think he took the fact that he loved the game so much just carried over to her."

Nicole Rae picked up the game when she was 4 and accompanied her father to the 26, Charles Country Club.

"It was Mother's Day, and we were having breakfast when a group of golfers," she said. "I told my dad I wanted to play, and I begged him all day until he finally took me.
After a sluggish start to the season, Marcus Coker appears to be returning to the form he dazzled Hawkeye fans with at the end of 2010.

By JORDAN GARRETTON
jordan-garretson@uiowa.edu

Coker rounding into form

Iowa running back Marcus Coker dodges Tennessee Tech's Jonshon-Delbert Evans on Sept. 3 in Kinnick Stadium. After struggling against the Golden Eagles, Coker has carried 43 times for 239 yards in his past two games. (The Daily Iowan/Adam Wesley)

Following the round, Vandersee's words were similar to those of his teammates: "There was some good and there was some bad, but the Hawkeyes learned as a team. "It was a little disappointing because we were in contention as a team going into Tuesday," he said. "I don't think any of us are going to be happy with our finish. But I think in the long run, it will be good for us. It proved we don't have to play all that well to finish in the top-five against some of the best teams in the country."

Chris Brant and Barrett Kelpin were right behind Vandersee in Tuesday's finish, tying the day at 3-over 213. Brant placed the highest among Iowa's Black and Gold golfers, finishing the three-day tournament in a tie for 13th at 2-over 212. Kelpin finished tied for 19th, but he could have finished at least four spots higher had it not been for an errant drive on the par-5 15th hole. The senior couldn't find his shot off the tee, had to take a penalty stroke, and wound up with a double bogey.

"We didn't put our best swing up with a double bogey.

Iowa's supreme trademark is averaging a 4.85 yards per carry in his last two games. (The Daily Iowan/Rob Johnson)

Iowa is off to the best start in school history, thanks in large part to a new scheme in the mid-field.

Giving V-ball depth

Iowa volleyball player Allison Straumann has developed a specialized role as a server and defensive player despite getting little playing time.

By HOLLY BRENDALE
brenda@dailyiowan.com

Iowa defensive and serving special- ist Allison Straumann rotated into the court against Penn State last weekend when the Hawkeyes were down, 16-2.

Then, Iowa went on a four-point run.

"When Iowa falls behind, it needs constancy on the floor — and Straumann has proven herself to be a reliable back-row player," assistant coach Ben Boldt said.

Straumann has only played in 12 of 39 games this season, usually enters the game for about three rotations at a time, and plays only in the back row. But despite the small amount of playing time, she has registered 12 digs in the matches.

Against Penn State, however, the junior played in 20 of 25 plays in the third set because Iowa's passing began to break down.

"I go in the game whenever it's supposed to be me in there," said Straumann.

"That was the turning point for us. It spread thearts and helped us keep the ball on the floor."

Straumann and her teammates got extra credit for their work.

"We did a great job of selling out and make a difference right away," Straumann said.

Straumann communicated with the rest of the Hawkeyes on the bench to keep herself engaged in the game, cheering for her teammates and helping coach the players that rotate in more frequently.

"If we take care some of the little things a bit better, I think we would have kept some points off the board," Nielsen said.

"As winners of the Big Ten, we want to stretch our current streak of 13 games without a loss. We have a great opportunity to do that this weekend," Boldt said.

Hawkeye defense improving

Iowa's loss to Penn State on Sept. 24. (The Daily Iowan/Adam Wesley)

Iowa is off to the best start in school history, thanks in large part to a new scheme in the mid-field.

"If we take care some of the little things a bit better, I think we would have kept some points off the board," Nielsen said.

Iowa is off to the best start in school history, thanks in large part to a new scheme in the mid-field.

Giving V-ball depth

Iowa volleyball player Allison Straumann has developed a specialized role as a server and defensive player despite getting little playing time.

By HOLLY BRENDALE
brenda@dailyiowan.com

Iowa defensive and serving specialist Allison Straumann rotated into the court against Penn State last weekend when the Hawkeyes were down, 16-2.

Then, Iowa went on a four-point run.

"When Iowa falls behind, it needs constancy on the floor — and Straumann has proven herself to be a reliable back-row player," assistant coach Ben Boldt said.

Straumann has only played in 12 of 39 games this season, usually enters the game for about three rotations at a time, and plays only in the back row. But despite the small amount of playing time, she has registered 12 digs in the matches.

Against Penn State, however, the junior played in 20 of 25 plays in the third set because Iowa's passing began to break down.

"I go in the game whenever it's supposed to be me in there," said Straumann.

"That was the turning point for us. It spread thearts and helped us keep the ball on the floor."

Straumann and her teammates got extra credit for their work.

"We did a great job of selling out and make a difference right away," Straumann said.

Straumann communicated with the rest of the Hawkeyes on the bench to keep herself engaged in the game, cheering for her teammates and helping coach the players that rotate in more frequently.

"If we take care some of the little things a bit better, I think we would have kept some points off the board," Nielsen said.

Iowa is off to the best start in school history, thanks in large part to a new scheme in the mid-field.

"If we take care some of the little things a bit better, I think we would have kept some points off the board," Nielsen said.

Iowa is off to the best start in school history, thanks in large part to a new scheme in the mid-field.

Giving V-ball depth

Iowa volleyball player Allison Straumann has developed a specialized role as a server and defensive player despite getting little playing time.