Wearing heels to stop heels

One event participant says it’s time to move from reaction to prevention.

By CHASTITY DILLARD

Postintervention

Postintervention, man Billy Davies strutted down the sidewalk on Clinton Street, sporting bright red heels and a smile.

“Are you man enough? Start walking!” Davies yelled to a pack of high-flying fraternity brothers.

The University of Iowa senior was among a sea of roughly 70 high-heeled and bunny-legged males and females who made a mile-long trek around the UI campus on Oct. 1 in order to raise awareness for sexual and domestic violence.

“We want to be part of the solution, said Davies, the event executive director. ‘We are standing up against the subjugation of women.’

In the last 10 years, men have joined the International Men’s March to Stop Rape, Sexual Assault, & Gender Violence. This year, the fight came to the UI for its first Walk A Mile in Her Shoes event.

“Sexual assault, domestic violence, gender violence in something that affects communities across the world,” Davies said.

His fraternity, Phi Delta Theta, the Pi Beta Phi sorority, and the UI Men’s Anti-Violence Council worked together to bring the march to campus. Money raised from the event will be given to Iowa City’s Rape Victim Advocacy Program.

Keri Miller, the executive director of the program, said these kinds of awareness-raising events are important.

The participants of “Walk a Mile in Her Shoes” held a banner as they marched on the sidewalks of Clinton Street on Oct. 1. The event was meant to raise awareness of rape, sexual assault, and gender violence. (The Daily Iowan/Chas Cloes)

By BRIANNA TRINCH

Fire Station 4

Fire Station 4 will open today, with nine new positions hired to staff the building.

The University of Iowa consumes almost 500 tons of coal each year, and UI junior Zach Carter wants to change that. After attending the alternative- energy event Power Shift 2011 in Washington, D.C., last spring, Carter started the UI Sierra Student Coalition, which this fall, in hopes of pushing for the university to shift its energy production away from coal and other fossil fuels to bioenergy.

Carter said he believes his organization is a sacrifice in the project, in October 2009, and the facility cost $3.2 million to build, $2.2 million of which was covered by an I-JOBS grant. (The Daily Iowan/Anthony Bauer)

The three-mile long station, at 8th and Dubuque, started in 2009, and the facility cost $3.2 million to build, $2.2 million of which was covered by an I-JOBS grant. (The Daily Iowan/Anthony Bauer)
Weaving medicine's history

BY MADISON BENNETT

The first thing Lawrence Dorr says when people ask him about his career is, “Well, I am an Iowa boy.”

The 70-year-old Los Angeles-based orthopedic surgeon has replaced more than 9,000 knees and hips, so he is at least one of those doctors. The history of medicine continues to be woven together with fiction and fact. Dorr’s long list of accomplishments is one of the major reasons why.

At the University of Iowa, he is what he experienced while serving as a doctor in the Vietnam War. Dorr graduated from the University of Iowa Medical School in 1960 and joined the Marines, then stationed in Okinawa. While stationed there, he met a woman who became his wife. They decided to move to California, where Dorr completed his orthopedic surgery residency in 1964. He later joined the Angeles Orthopedic Hospital and remained there until his retirement in 1997.

Dorr says he was “jovial, fun, and drinks as a treat for himself.” He adds, “That’s what makes a good doctor.”

Lawrence Dorr was charged Oct. 1 with public intoxication and criminal trespass in connection to a public intoxication incident in Los Angeles on Sept. 29. He had been cited earlier in the week for a citation for public intoxication.

In 1961, Dorr joined the U.S. Army and served in Vietnam. He was charged with forgery and assault in 1962, and in 1963, he was charged with assault and battery.

Dorr graduated from the University of Iowa Medical School in 1960 and joined the Marines, then stationed in Okinawa. While stationed there, he met a woman who became his wife. They decided to move to California, where Dorr completed his orthopedic surgery residency in 1964. He later joined the Angeles Orthopedic Hospital and remained there until his retirement in 1997.

Dorr is a native of Iowa and has a long list of accomplishments in orthopedic surgery. He is a member of the American Academy of Orthopaedic Surgeons, the American College of Surgeons, and the Orthopaedic Society of North America.

Dorr’s long list of accomplishments is one of the major reasons why.

At the University of Iowa, he is what he experienced while serving as a doctor in the Vietnam War. Dorr graduated from the University of Iowa Medical School in 1960 and joined the Marines, then stationed in Okinawa. While stationed there, he met a woman who became his wife. They decided to move to California, where Dorr completed his orthopedic surgery residency in 1964. He later joined the Angeles Orthopedic Hospital and remained there until his retirement in 1997.

Dorr graduated from the University of Iowa Medical School in 1960 and joined the Marines, then stationed in Okinawa. While stationed there, he met a woman who became his wife. They decided to move to California, where Dorr completed his orthopedic surgery residency in 1964. He later joined the Angeles Orthopedic Hospital and remained there until his retirement in 1997.
Man charged with robbery, cocaine possession, intoxication

A 19-year-old man was charged with second-degree robbery, third-degree intimidation, and possession of cocaine 1st degree after he allegedly强行 money from a male subject near the intersection of 2nd Street and Del Monte Streets.

Jarod Rogers, 25, was arrested by Iowa City police after a male subject identified Rogers as the man who allegedly came up behind him and grabbed money from his back pocket. The victim was carrying $100 when Rogers allegedly grabbed it and took off down 2nd Street.

According to a complaint filed by Iowa City police, Rogers was seen leaving the area of 2nd Street carrying money. Police recovered money from Rogers' pocket that matched the amount of cash stolen from the victim.

-- By Matt Stiers

Coal

Sacrifice to open the station, but it’s a priority that we didn’t allow to fall by the wayside. The station cost $3.2 million to build, $2 million of which was covered by an I-JOBS grant.

According to a complaint filed by Iowa City, area manager assistant of utilities, Jerrod Koon, the station is a priority that we didn’t allow to fall by the wayside. The station cost $3.2 million to build, $2 million of which was covered by an I-JOBS grant.

-- By Matt Stiers

Rape Victim Advocacy Program

breast tape around my neck, so I don’t get headaches.

He said he is confident about the group’s campaign to shift from coal-based energy to renewable energy and biomass.

"We re-energized this campaign this summer, and it’s only getting bigger from here," Carter said.

"It’s beyond coal, and we’re pushing trying to push the university to move beyond the coal plant," he added.

The Sierra Student Coalition plans to hold several more events the fall to spread awareness about the negative aspects of coal production.

City officials also hope to have the building certified by the Leadership in Energy and Environmental Design in the next year, so the structure will stand as a green building.

"We have a pretty high confidence we’re going to be able to receive Gold," Morse said. "That’s the hope."
Should downtown renters insurance be mandated?

By Sarah Damsky

Though I recommend renters in downtown Iowa City to acquire renters insurance, I hardly think it should be mandated. Renters should be able to choose if they want to be insured or not. Renters who choose not to be insured should have to take the consequences for their acts. If a renter were to be sued to pay the damages, they would have to pay out of pocket to make up for the cost. Therefore, renters should be able to make that decision for themselves.

As long as they are insured, they really don’t matter if property owners cancel insurance, as they are on the hook for the damages. If they aren’t insured, they are usually not aware of the benefits of the insurance or want to avoid the extra costs. What they don’t realize is that paying $30 for a year for renters insurance is really a no-bid deal compared with $30,000 of damages they may be responsible for.

The insurance would cover any damage tenants may do to their neighbors apartments, and in the event of a natural disaster or fire, would provide a safety net for renters. Katrina or the event of the year, and renters would be able to claim their renter’s insurance as an asset instead. Also, landlords are already required to go at the tenants for insurance, because they see the property in their best interest to minimize any possible damage, and the insurance also protects the landlords.

The only thing the landlords would need to do is ensure the insurance is paid for the security deposit.

Downtown apartment was damaged, ruining $20,000 or more

For all of those establishing your property, it’s not crazy to think about what your property will be worth if something happens. It’s absolutely worthwhile to pay insurance for. And if it’s enough reason to leave the choice to the consumer.

But the fact is, if a renter does not choose to acquire renter’s insurance, I hardly think it should be mandated. They may be edited for length and style.
THE FIRST THING TO LOOK FOR IN A HEALTH CARE PROVIDER

IS THE ABILITY TO CARE

Exceptional medicine is only half our story. We also treat you with extraordinary care.

That’s why time and time again on satisfaction surveys we come out on top. We listen to you.

Care for you with respect, compassion and kindness – proving that it really does matter where you go first. Our brand of exceptional medicine is raised to new levels because we care. That’s the Mercy difference. For more information, check us out at www.mercyiowacity.org/mercydifference.

MERCY IOWA CITY

Exceptional Medicine.

Extraordinary Care.
Earlier voting date irks Republicans

BY HANNAH HESS

IOWA CITY — Republican Party of Iowa Chairman Matt Strawn is irked by news that Iowans will caucus in January or earlier.

Florida Republicans late last week put a “finger in the eye” of every Republican National Committee member, Strawn told IowaPolitics.com, minutes after the Sunshine State announced it would buck the established calendar by moving its primary forward to Jan. 31, 2012.

Iowa’s first-in-the-nation caucuses were scheduled for Feb. 6, under rules adopted by the RNC in August 2010 designed to avoid the push for a so-called national primary day and to encourage candidates to travel to more states during the presidential primary process.

But a special Florida nine-member committee last week voted 7-2 to move its state’s primary to January despite possible penalties from the RNC for breaking the rules.

“The arrogance shown by Florida’s elected leadership is disappointing but not surprising,” Strawn said.

“Equally troubling is to see this petulant behavior rewarded with our national convention. The consequences of Florida’s intransigence must be swift and severe, including the refusal by the RNC to creden- tial or seat any member of Florida’s presidential-primary date commission at the 2012 RNC convention in Tampa,” Strawn said.

Iowa, New Hampshire, Nevada, and South Carolina are expected to push their presidential-nominating contests forward to maintain their influential status as early deciders. CNN reported that the four early states could face penalties by moving their caucuses and primaries.

But Strawn said Iowa won’t face any penalties.

“Technically, because Iowa isn’t selecting delegates at the time of the caucuses, it would not face a penalty,” agreed former Iowa GOP Chairman Brian Kennedy, a member of the RNC that set the more staggered calendar.

Iowa’s new caucus date has not been set, but it could be scheduled for later this year. Strawn said that following tradition, the final date will be announced once New Hampshire sets the date of its first-in-the-nation primary.

New Hampshire Secretary of State William Gardner on Sept. 30 said he can’t rule out the possibility that the state will hold its presidential primary in December to preserve his state’s status. In reaction to Florida, Gardner on Sept. 30 bumped up the filing period for presidential candidates to Oct. 27-28.

The arrogance shown by Florida’s elected leadership is disappointing, but not surprising.”

— Matt Strawn, Republican Party of Iowa Chairman

Kennedy, who spent two years working with the committee to draft the calendar that now has been thrown into chaos, condemned the imminent changes.

“Florida’s decision ‘hurts the voters, too, because they don’t have as much of an opportunity to get to know the candidates,’ said Kennedy, who also leads the steering committee for former Massachusetts Gov. Mitt Romney’s campaign.

For the Republican presidential-nomination candidates, an accelerated nominating calendar means less time to get their message to caucus-goers.

“Any candidate that wants to be successful and be our nominee, they need to be on the ground here in Iowa looking our voters in the eye and allowing Iowans to ask the tough questions,” Strawn said.

Get Iowa City’s best local news
www.dailyiowan.com
In the 13th minute with a goal by Megan Ranegar — who both had strong seasons. The trio posted goals in the 7-0 win over Ohio and the 7-0 win over Ohio State.

Martin-Manley said his technique — no matter how young or how old — is growing. "Getting that early goal has meant 10 catches in the game's final seven downs, both of which came against Tennessee Tech. He was "basically invisible" in the Hawkeyes' victory against Iowa State. "That's a young guy right there, and he's family," Davis said. "You see somebody grow up like that, it's phenomenal. You're going to see a lot more of Kent. All signs seem to agree with Davis' prediction. "If you can put yourself in a position to have the team in peak form, I'm doing my job, but if you need to make a play for us. I've helped us produce more big plays."

Coach Kirk Ferentz said, "Not many." He had none in the Hawkeyes' season-opener against Tennessee Tech. "That's a young guy right there, and he's family," Davis said. "You see somebody grow up like that, it's phenomenal. You're going to see a lot more of Kent. All signs seem to agree with Davis' prediction."

Although more veteran teammates are involved in the attack, and the team didn't have a lot of chances. Moving forward, we need to continue to work on the field."

"I look at those guys," McNutt said, "and say: 'I'm always looking to improve.' Martin-Manley said, "I'm never satisfied with myself."
Daily Break

Monday, Oct. 3

Aries (March 21-April 19) Take responsibility. Your ability to work quickly will impress potential employers. There is a)new horizon when it comes to your career, and you will find it easy to attract the attention of others. Someone you have known for a long time will offer you a job.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) Stand up for your rights, and express yourself boldly. Unexpected changes are likely to occur. Focus on increasing your income, and if you think it’s good, you’ll run it—and you’ll make a success of it. If you revisit your past, size up your situation, and refrain from making similar mistakes, you will excel. Someone from your past will make a decision that will pay off in the future.

Gemini (May 21-June 20) You’ll complete your work and get the recognition you deserve. You can ask for favors and support, but make sure that you treat others fairly. Follow your dreams, and you will make a decision.

Cancer (June 21-July 22) You’ll do what others do, and you’ll achieve your goals. Someone will offer you a job, and you will be able to make a decision.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22) Your unique ability to present things in a creative way will make you a money-maker. Love is in the stars, and mixing with people will lead to unexpected changes. Do your best to keep things stable at home.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You have the answers. A partnership gives you the answers, and you will be in demand. Love is in the stars, and you will be able to cope with any obstacles that come your way.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) You don’t have to exaggerate to be heard. Your unique abilities will be recognized. If you don’t like an answer, you’ll be able to cope with any obstacles that come your way.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) You have the answers, and you will be in demand. Someone will offer you a job, and you will be able to cope with any obstacles that come your way.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) You can ask for favors and support, but make sure that you treat others fairly. Follow your dreams, and you will make a decision.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You don’t have to exaggerate to be heard. Your unique abilities will be recognized. If you don’t like an answer, you’ll be able to cope with any obstacles that come your way.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) You have the answers, and you will be in demand. Love is in the stars, and mixing with people will lead to unexpected changes. Do your best to keep things stable at home.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20) You have the answers, and you will be in demand. Love is in the stars, and mixing with people will lead to unexpected changes. Do your best to keep things stable at home.
By BEN WOLFSON

Fewer than two minutes remained in Sunday’s Iowa soccer game, and the Hawkeyes led by a goal.
The 1-0 lead on an attendance bumping pounding on the bleachers. A chant of “Let’s go, Hawks!” rose through the warm fall air.
The scene was completely different from the atmosphere at the Iowa Soccer Complex on Sept. 30, when Iowa lost its first game of the year. The 1-0 loss to Michigan halted a 12-game unbeaten streak for the Black and Gold (10-1-2, 2-1-2 Big Ten). Michigan outshot Iowa 20-15 and failed to score a goal for the first time all season.

Head coach Jonatan Giraldo said the defeat would test the resiliency of his squad — and the defeat would test the resiliency of his squad — and that made our group mindset very positive.

The two games for Iowa this weekend seemed to be complete opposites of one another. The squad came out flat in the first half in the Sept. 30 loss against Michigan and didn’t generate any solid scoring opportunities until late in the second half. ‘We lost tonight and played a great competitive; we need to learn from our mistakes,’ senior midfielder Rachel Blankenship said after that match. ‘There was a lack of attack in the first half — we couldn’t have more energy. We had great chances in the second half, but the Michigan defense dropped off and parked it.’

Iowa not only scored early, but controlled the lead the rest of the game while playing solid defense. The Hawkeyes were able to get contributions from all 14 players who saw action.

When Michigan State

Iowa played its best defensive game of season in its 1-0 win over the Spartans.

By BEN SCHUFF

Fewer than two minutes remained in Sunday’s Iowa soccer game, and the Hawkeyes led by a goal.
The 1-0 lead on an attendance bumping pounding on the bleachers. A chant of “Let’s go, Hawks!” rose through the warm fall air.
The scene was completely different from the atmosphere at the Iowa Soccer Complex on Sept. 30, when Iowa lost its first game of the year. The 1-0 loss to Michigan halted a 12-game unbeaten streak for the Black and Gold (10-1-2, 2-1-2 Big Ten). Michigan outshot Iowa 20-15 and failed to score a goal for the first time all season.

Head coach Jonatan Giraldo said the defeat would test the resiliency of his squad — and the defeat would test the resiliency of his squad — and that made our group mindset very positive.

The two games for Iowa this weekend seemed to be complete opposites of one another. The squad came out flat in the first half in the Sept. 30 loss against Michigan and didn’t generate any solid scoring opportunities until late in the second half. ‘We lost tonight and played a great competitive; we need to learn from our mistakes,’ senior midfielder Rachel Blankenship said after that match. ‘There was a lack of attack in the first half — we couldn’t have more energy. We had great chances in the second half, but the Michigan defense dropped off and parked it.’

Iowa not only scored early, but controlled the lead the rest of the game while playing solid defense. The Hawkeyes were able to get contributions from all 14 players who saw action.

When Michigan State

Iowa played its best defensive game of season in its 1-0 win over the Spartans.

By BEN WOLFSON

Fewer than two minutes remained in Sunday’s Iowa soccer game, and the Hawkeyes led by a goal.
The 1-0 lead on an attendance bumping pounding on the bleachers. A chant of “Let’s go, Hawks!” rose through the warm fall air.
The scene was completely different from the atmosphere at the Iowa Soccer Complex on Sept. 30, when Iowa lost its first game of the year. The 1-0 loss to Michigan halted a 12-game unbeaten streak for the Black and Gold (10-1-2, 2-1-2 Big Ten). Michigan outshot Iowa 20-15 and failed to score a goal for the first time all season.

Head coach Jonatan Giraldo said the defeat would test the resiliency of his squad — and the defeat would test the resiliency of his squad — and that made our group mindset very positive.

The two games for Iowa this weekend seemed to be complete opposites of one another. The squad came out flat in the first half in the Sept. 30 loss against Michigan and didn’t generate any solid scoring opportunities until late in the second half. ‘We lost tonight and played a great competitive; we need to learn from our mistakes,’ senior midfielder Rachel Blankenship said after that match. ‘There was a lack of attack in the first half — we couldn’t have more energy. We had great chances in the second half, but the Michigan defense dropped off and parked it.’

Iowa not only scored early, but controlled the lead the rest of the game while playing solid defense. The Hawkeyes were able to get contributions from all 14 players who saw action.

When Michigan State

Iowa played its best defensive game of season in its 1-0 win over the Spartans.