UI Student Government leaders pass a resolution supporting Raj Patel in his campaign for Iowa City City Council, Monday night. The move passed without much discussion.

"We offered a balanced way to pay for the American Jobs Act," said Senate Majority Leader Harry Reid, D-Nev., outlining plans for a $1.2 trillion deficit reduction bill at Tuesday night’s Senate meeting. The action was previously tabled because some senators wanted Patel, a candidate for Iowa City City Council, to formally ask UISG for its support. Patel attended the meeting Tuesday to do just that.

"I can’t win this election without your support," he said. "The student population makes up a significant portion of the population in Iowa City, and it’s absolutely essential that we work together to help achieve the Iowa City we all want. There hasn’t been a student elected to City Council in 32 years, and this is the opportunity for us to make history together."

Although the move passed, some senators remained hesitant about whether endorsing Patel was the right action to take. Several senators asked Patel to speak on behalf of the controversy between him and the media, as well as between him and UISG after Patel and UISG leaders disagreed on the reason Patel resigned his UISG post last month.

"I’m not here to speak about the past," he said. "I’m here to speak about the future."

The act was created by Sens. Blanche Lincoln and Joe Van Zant after Patel announced his candidacy in the last month.

MAN Charged with Assault After Bar Fight

An Iowa City man has been charged with assault causing bodily injury after an altercation with another man last week.

White House officials released a “Teachers Jobs Project” report on Tuesday.

RIVERFRONT CROSSINGS PLAN

The Iowa City City Council, on a 7-0 vote, approved the Riverfront Crossings development plan on Tuesday.

The development is projected to run along the Gilbert Street corridor and cover the area of the north water main utility, which will be consolidated with the project.

Plans include enhancing Ralston Creek, establishing recreational parks, and conserving wetlands, said city planner Robert Moisio.

The Iowa City City Council also adopted a resolution to include several development projects in the list of public works projects for the fiscal year 2012.

Factors contributing to uncertainty for the district:

- Growth expected for the district.
- Money from federal stimulus is expected to run out between 2011 and 2012.
- School’s need for less money due to federal stimulus programs.
- The report said the fight occurred in the bar.

Micheline Payne attend the Tuesday Senate meeting to speak on their own behalf.

There was no formal del
tate the legislation (on Sept. 29) because we understand the opportunity for everyone who was a student to come in,” Riffel said. “Patel was the only person who chose to capitalize that opportunity. If we’re looking at someone who is willing to come in, that really speaks volumes to the kind of leader he is.”

Speaker of the Senate Nick Pettersen emphasized that he didn’t invite Patel or Payne to Tuesday’s meeting. Patel was invited by Riffel and Van Zant.

Sen. Brad Phillips noted that Payne’s campaign is in no way similar to Patel’s. “It was very difficult to find information on the other candidate,” Phillips said. “All [UI] students know where Raj is coming from.”

Sen. Abbey Moffitt said supporting Patel by passing the act was the right action to take. “It’s a student running,” she said. “It’s not a fight or a battle.”

Warnock said in the end, “That’s what we want to have with the small-claims cases. Warnock said, “Let’s not have the landlord decide. Let’s let the judge decide. Take it to court.”

Both the Apartments Downtown, aside from the small-claims case, and Barkalow cases are now pending certification for class-action status. A hearing on the legibility of the Clarke/Apartments Downtown lawsuit is set for Nov. 18.

UI official notes disrespect

The number of visitor complaints involving disrespectful behavior has increased 8 percent in the past two years.

By JOYCE KELAND

One University of Iowa official said disrespectful behavior is on the rise and there aren’t enough resources to counter the trend.

“It’s not just the administration and Facilities we should change the culture,” said UI Ombudsperson Cynthia Joyce. The Office of the Ombudsperson reported a 3 percent rise in reports regarding disrespectful behavior.

Bachmann: I stand for ‘life’

Bob Demastus said. “The reason is, if you don’t allow a true social conservative, so for all senators.

“We hope to forget the issue of life. Because you can get a lot of things wrong but you can’t get life wrong” Bachmann said at a news conference at the Embassy Suite. “That’s why this is a particular election, it’s important that we not sit back, for a candidate who doesn’t stand up for it.”

UI Ombudsperson Annual Report

The Office of the Ombudsperson has reported a 19 percent increase in disrespectful behavior on campus.

Joyce reported that reported that disrespectful behavior increased 3 percent in 2008-09 as compared to 2007-08.

Data from the Office of the Ombudsperson shows:

• 2007-08: 12 percent complaints reported that were disrespectful.
• 2008-09: 17 percent complaints reported that were disrespectful.

Disrespectful behavior is not limited to swearing, yelling, name-calling, ignoring people, and explicit criticism, according to the code.

Bachmann said. “The reason is, if you don’t allow a true social conservative, so for all senators.

“We hope to forget the issue of life. Because you can get a lot of things wrong but you can’t get life wrong” Bachmann said at a news conference at the Embassy Suite. “That’s why this is a particular election, it’s important that we not sit back, for a candidate who doesn’t stand up for it.”

UI Ombudsperson Annual Report

The Office of the Ombudsperson has reported a 19 percent increase in disrespectful behavior on campus.

The Hawkeyes have gone back to work after their bye week. Nebraska looked like a team that was absent after her surgery.

Ohio State—neither team is as dominant as in previous years, but neither is likely to be uncompetitive.

“Quinton’s very intelligent, a very skilled athlete, and he’s a guy we were trying to look at the situation when we’ve got some ground to make up in the two-deep this season,” Ferentz said when asked about Quinton's role.

Another freshman, tight end James Kernan, has also made some progress this season.

The Buckeyes suffered an ugly loss of their own two weeks ago against the University of Washington.

It looked like the Big Ten would lose a bowl bid this year because of the team's performance in the conference.

The Hawkeyes aren’t buying into Penn State linebacker Carson’s comments. The Hawkeyes aren’t buying into Penn State linebacker Carson’s comments.

Penn State linebacker Glenn Carson made some controversial comments last week during a Tuesday teleconference.

“We never really got to play with each other growing up unless it was a pickup game, but now that we’re playing together, so it was good to get back at it,” Carson said. “It works out really well. I try to be myself. I try to let my actions do the talking and if I happen to say something one in a while, it’s usually nice.”

Linebacker James Morris and Carson’s comments were hardly inflammatory.

“We do have a very successful wrestling history,” said Morris, who was a promising high-school grappler in Illinois. “We’re trying to add a little history, maybe, to the Iowa, football team.”

“Roy Devyn Marble, said he’s looking forward to playing with the Prime Time League this past summer. “It was a good experience,” Marble said. “It was a chance for me to get to see how my future teammates play. It was a different pace for me because I had a year off from playing, so I was glad to get back at it.”

Don’t look to see many changes in Coach’s lineup.

“I was a good experience,” Marble said. “It was a chance for me to see who we have on the mat under former Nebraska head coach Tom Brands. I was glad to get back at it because what Marc and Will are doing, it’s almost as if I wasn’t meant to play soccer.”

Houghton said he has been very pleased with how Carson and Morris are handling the new situation.

The Hawkeyes' first home event, the Big Ten Singles/Doubles Tournament, ends the fall season Oct. 28-31 at the Hawkeye Tennis & Recreation Center.

Houghton, comparing the break to a lay week in football, said the hus-cus from competition comes at a opportune time for the Hawkeyes.

The break gives the team a chance to refocus and allows the players to work on the fundamentals of the game, he said.

“It serves a good purpose because, coaching-wise, we’ve all been really able to do is get guys prepared for tournament,” he said. “We really haven’t had the time to work individually with some things that probably need to be broken down a little bit.”
