FOUR MORE YEARS

Kirk Ferentz mum on Paterno

By JORDAN GARNER

Kirk Ferentz was terse on Tuesday when asked by radio station personnel if he thought the recent events at Penn State were true.

“I’ve really been more focused on what we’re doing here, getting through the weekend and then turning our sights to Michigan State,” Ferentz said. “So that’s really kind of what the way that I have been.”

The Iowa coach did not choose to be vague or to change his tone toward his old employer, which he has previously praised.

“I’ve always thought he was a great man,” Ferentz said.

Ferentz declined to comment Tuesday when he was asked about embattled Penn State Coach, Joe Paterno.

By JORDAN GARNER

Kirk Ferentz was terse on Tuesday when asked by radio station personnel if he thought the recent events at Penn State were true. He chose not to be vague or to change his tone toward his old employer, which he has previously praised.

“I’ve always thought he was a great man,” Ferentz said.

Ferentz declined to comment Tuesday when he was asked about embattled Penn State Coach, Joe Paterno.

By JORDAN GARNER

Kirk Ferentz was terse on Tuesday when asked if he thought the recent events at Penn State were true. He chose not to be vague or to change his tone toward his old employer, which he has previously praised.

“I’ve always thought he was a great man,” Ferentz said.

Ferentz declined to comment Tuesday when he was asked about embattled Penn State Coach, Joe Paterno.

By JORDAN GARNER

Kirk Ferentz was terse on Tuesday when asked if he thought the recent events at Penn State were true. He chose not to be vague or to change his tone toward his old employer, which he has previously praised.

“I’ve always thought he was a great man,” Ferentz said.

Ferentz declined to comment Tuesday when he was asked about embattled Penn State Coach, Joe Paterno.
WASHINGTON — With a Thanksgiving deadline looming, GOP members of a deficit-reduction panel were preparing a plan to cut the budget deficit by $3.5 trillion over the coming decade, allowing flexibility on tax revenues for the first time while pressing curbs on Medicare spending and a less generous cost-cutting increase for Social Security beneficiaries.

The plan floated by Republicans, including Tea Party favorites Jon Kyl, R-Ariz., and Senator Pat Toomey of Pennsylvania, would plan sharp limits on the total number of tax deductions and credits that a person could claim in exchange for significantly lower income-tax rates. At the same time, Republicans are willing to accept a net increase in individual-income-tax revenues of about $350 billion over the coming decade.

The proposal, described by aides in both parties, also would cut spending by about $700 billion, mostly a $250 billion cut in the Medicare costs to the baby boom generation's retirement, and is similar in concept to a proposal that Murray, a Democrat, floated late last month that proposed revenue increases of about $2.3 trillion that would also be netted after a rewrite of the loophole-stuffed federal tax code. Both proposals are similar in concept to ideas discussed last summer in negotiations between House Speaker John Boehner, R-Ohio, and President Obama.

Deadline nears for US deficit group

BY ANDREW TAYLOR

WASHINGTON — With a Thanksgiving deadline looming, GOP members of a deficit-reduction panel were preparing a plan to cut the budget deficit by $3.5 trillion over the coming decade, allowing flexibility on tax revenues for the first time while pressing curbs on Medicare spending and a less generous cost-cutting increase for Social Security beneficiaries.

The plan floated by Republicans, including Tea Party favorites Jon Kyl, R-Ariz., and Senator Pat Toomey of Pennsylvania, would plan sharp limits on the total number of tax deductions and credits that a person could claim in exchange for significantly lower income-tax rates. At the same time, Republicans are willing to accept a net increase in individual-income-tax revenues of about $350 billion over the coming decade.

The proposal, described by aides in both parties, also would cut spending by about $700 billion, mostly a $250 billion cut in the Medicare costs to the baby boom generation's retirement, and is similar in concept to a proposal that Murray, a Democrat, floated late last month that proposed revenue increases of about $2.3 trillion that would also be netted after a rewrite of the loophole-stuffed federal tax code. Both proposals are similar in concept to ideas discussed last summer in negotiations between House Speaker John Boehner, R-Ohio, and President Obama.

Democrat disavowed the GOP plan as inadequate.

“I have yet to see a real, thoughtful, credible revenue proposal in a significant amount to bring us to a fair-balanced proposal,” said Sen. Patty Murray, D-Wash., the cochairwoman of the 16-member supercommittee.

During talks on legislation needed to increase the government's borrowing cap, Boehner and Obama discussed a complete overhaul of the tax code that would have generated some $800 billion in new revenue over a decade.

BLOTTER

Man charged with unlawful credit-card use

Iowa City police charged a local man Nov. 3 with unlawful use of a credit card after he allegedly stole a card and tried to purchase an iPad with use of the credit card code.

The police received a report of a crime on Nov. 4, when a woman reported the incident because she had received a phone call back about old transactions, the complaint said. She reportedly said she suspected her niece, 22, of taking her I.Pad.

Ware was charged after the investigation pointed to an attempted transaction at the University Bookstore, where Ware allegedly attempted to use one of the victim's credit cards to purchase an I.Pad. The clerk denied Ware after presented the clerk with a driver's license that didn't match the credit card, the complaint said.

Ware then allegedly tried to persuade the clerk the card belonged to a friend, but the clerk didn't allow him to purchase the I.Pad. The complaint said the clerk wasn't able to identify Ware or a photo from the police station.

---

Man charged with impersonating an official

An Iowa City man was charged Nov. 7 with impersonating a public official after he allegedly referred to himself as a sheriff.

According to a complaint by Coralville police, officers responded to a report of a suspicious person on the Highway 96/Byway in Coralville.

Atmosions at the scene said Aaron Fisher, 26, said he was a "sheriff," took from touriste-multiples numbers, and transferred a $120 bill, according to the complaint.

Impersonating a public official is an aggravated misdemeanor.

---

For more news:

dailyowan.com

The Daily Iowan

Volume 143

BREAKING NEWS

Phone: 319-335-6000
E-mail: news@daily-iowan.com
Fax: 335-6018

CORRECTIONS

Phone: 319-335-6030
Fax: 335-6018

STAFF

Editor: Alicia Kramme
Managing Editor: Sam Lane
News Editor: William Casey
Features Editor: Jake Koep
Online Editor: Joni Reihlen
Design: Alicia Kramme
\n
PUBLISHERS INFORM

The Daily Iowan (ISSN 0036-4674) is published by Student Publications, Inc., 170 Adler Journalism Building, 724 S. 14th St., Iowa City, IA 52242-2000, and is also published as a print newspaper by The Daily Iowan, 170 Adler Journalism Building, Iowa City, IA 52242. Periodicals postage paid at Cedar Rapids, Iowa, and additional mailing offices.

Subscriptions

Call: 319-335-6030 or (319) 335-6018
E-mail: daily-iowan@uiowa.edu

Microform:

In Iowa and Canada: 12 per year
In foreign countries: 12 per year
Rate outside Canada: 20 per year
Rate outside the United States: 20 per year

Special rate: $47.00 for government stations.

SUBSCRIPTIONS

Call: 319-335-6030 or (319) 335-6018
E-mail: daily-iowan@uiowa.edu

METRO

Man charged with unlawful credit-card use

Iowa City police charged a local man Nov. 3 with unlawful use of a credit card after he allegedly stole a card and tried to purchase an iPad with use of the credit card code.

The police received a report of a crime on Nov. 4, when a woman reported the incident because she had received a phone call back about old transactions, the complaint said. She reportedly said she suspected her niece, 22, of taking her I.Pad.

Ware was charged after the investigation pointed to an attempted transaction at the University Bookstore, where Ware allegedly attempted to use one of the victim's credit cards to purchase an I.Pad. The clerk denied Ware after presented the clerk with a driver's license that didn't match the credit card, the complaint said. Ware then allegedly tried to persuade the clerk the card belonged to a friend, but the clerk didn't allow him to purchase the I.Pad. The complaint said the clerk wasn't able to identify Ware or a photo from the police station.

---

Man charged with impersonating an official

An Iowa City man was charged Nov. 7 with impersonating a public official after he allegedly referred to himself as a sheriff.

According to a complaint by Coralville police, officers responded to a report of a suspicious person on the Highway 96/Byway in Coralville.

Atmosions at the scene said Aaron Fisher, 26, said he was a "sheriff," took from touriste-multiples numbers, and transferred a $120 bill, according to the complaint.

Impersonating a public official is an aggravated misdemeanor.

---

For more news:

dailyowan.com
EID AL-ADHA

PATRONE CONTINUED FROM IA

Paterno has been linked to September 23, 1999, when he became a fellow head Big Ten football coach in 1999. He was 10 years old when Paterno — a Penn State assistant coach for 30 years — became the Nittany Lion's head coach.

Paterno notched his 409th career victory when Penn State beat Iowa 38-14 on Oct. 25, moving him past Eddie Robinson for the most wins in NCAA Divi

The 13th-year Hawkeye head coach grew up in the Pittsburgh area and attended Upper St. Clair High.

I don’t think there are any coaches who have affected college sports more than Coach Paterno, in any sport," Ferentz said last month. “One guy on com-pens for him, Dan Gable, pretty small class that he’s in. Three out names like Bear Bryant and John Wooden, there aren’t many it’s a pretty small discussion,” Ferentz may even walked on at Penn State and played for Paterno had his high-school coach not suggested otherwise.

“My high-school coach was consistent that I didn’t do not fit in,” Ferentz recalled. “He knew I wasn’t good enough — so did Coach Paterno, he knew I was not good enough. It probably would have worked out, but I would have learned a lot of things, but I would not have played there. I had two problems small but doesn’t mean a guy can do a great job,” Paterno said. “I think when he played Penn State, there’s a little bit something there, because he is a Pennsylvania kid.”

HAYEK CONTINUED FROM IA

Hospitals and Clinics.

said. “I think that’s pretty

But Dykhe said he does not necessarily see himself as representing the UI. "I don’t represent the University of Iowa," he said. "I think when he plays Penn State, there’s a little bit something there, because he is a Pennsylvania kid."

He has not necessarily come to his work on City Council.

I think it’s important to maintain the long-term sustainability," he said. “I taught things for that 15 years.”

In 2010, Hayek was first elected to the council in 2007. That year, there was a 2011 ordinance proposal on the ballet, bringing out many student voters. Hayek cam-

pained against the 21-

ordinance and brought in 60 percent of the vote that year.

Three years later, Hayek was one of the city’s biggest proponents of a 21 minibar entry age. He cast his vote in favor of the 21 ordinance at a city council and, when that ordinance was challenged, he campaigned to keep it in place.

Last fall, a ballot measure challenging the 21-ordinance was defeated, with 52 percent of Iowa City voters opting to keep it in place.

Hayek said he can be re-

ELECTION CONTINUED FROM IA

on the council.

I’ve studied urban issues my entire adult life, and I’ve taught urban planning for 24 years — probably more," Throgmorton said. “I think that’s pretty substantial.

Dykhe said he is in contact with faculty from both the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences and as well as UI Hospitals and Clinics.

“I’ve been at the university for years, so it’s a unique qualification for me. I know people on both sides of the river very well,” he said. “I work as a bridge between the city and the community.”

But Dykhe said he does not necessarily see himself as representing the UI. I don’t represent the University of Iowa," he said. "I think when he plays Penn State, there’s a little bit something there, because he is a Pennsylvania kid.

The current Iowa head

endowment’s 2011 fiscal year.

However, the 2010 fiscal year was widely considered a bad year for the state. Hayek was one of the city’s biggest proponents of a 21 minibar entry age. He cast his vote in favor of the 21 ordinance at a city council and, when that ordinance was challenged, he campaigned to keep it in place.

Last fall, a ballot measure challenging the 21-ordinance was defeated, with 52 percent of Iowa City voters opting to keep it in place.

Hayek said he can be re-

ELECTION CONTINUED FROM IA

on the council.

I’ve studied urban issues my entire adult life, and I’ve taught urban planning for 24 years — probably more," Throgmorton said. “I think that’s pretty substantial.

Dykhe said he is in contact with faculty from both the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences and as well as UI Hospitals and Clinics.

“I’ve been at the university for years, so it’s a unique qualification for me. I know people on both sides of the river very well,” he said. “I work as a bridge between the city and the community.”

But Dykhe said he does not necessarily see himself as representing the UI. I don’t represent the University of Iowa," he said. "I think when he plays Penn State, there’s a little bit something there, because he is a Pennsylvania kid.

The current Iowa head

endowment’s 2011 fiscal year.

However, the 2010 fiscal year was widely considered a bad year for the state. Hayek was one of the city’s biggest proponents of a 21 minibar entry age. He cast his vote in favor of the 21 ordinance at a city council and, when that ordinance was challenged, he campaigned to keep it in place.

Last fall, a ballot measure challenging the 21-ordinance was defeated, with 52 percent of Iowa City voters opting to keep it in place.

Hayek said he can be re-

ELECTION CONTINUED FROM IA

on the council.

I’ve studied urban issues my entire adult life, and I’ve taught urban planning for 24 years — probably more," Throgmorton said. “I think that’s pretty substantial.

Dykhe said he is in contact with faculty from both the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences and as well as UI Hospitals and Clinics.

“I’ve been at the university for years, so it’s a unique qualification for me. I know people on both sides of the river very well,” he said. “I work as a bridge between the city and the community.”

But Dykhe said he does not necessarily see himself as representing the UI. I don’t represent the University of Iowa," he said. "I think when he plays Penn State, there’s a little bit something there, because he is a Pennsylvania kid.

The current Iowa head

endowment’s 2011 fiscal year.

However, the 2010 fiscal year was widely considered a bad year for the state. Hayek was one of the city’s biggest proponents of a 21 minibar entry age. He cast his vote in favor of the 21 ordinance at a city council and, when that ordinance was challenged, he campaigned to keep it in place.

Last fall, a ballot measure challenging the 21-ordinance was defeated, with 52 percent of Iowa City voters opting to keep it in place.

Hayek said he can be re-

ELECTION CONTINUED FROM IA

on the council.

I’ve studied urban issues my entire adult life, and I’ve taught urban planning for 24 years — probably more," Throgmorton said. “I think that’s pretty substantial.

Dykhe said he is in contact with faculty from both the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences and as well as UI Hospitals and Clinics.

“I’ve been at the university for years, so it’s a unique qualification for me. I know people on both sides of the river very well,” he said. “I work as a bridge between the city and the community.”

But Dykhe said he does not necessarily see himself as representing the UI. I don’t represent the University of Iowa," he said. "I think when he plays Penn State, there’s a little bit something there, because he is a Pennsylvania kid.

The current Iowa head

endowment’s 2011 fiscal year.

However, the 2010 fiscal year was widely considered a bad year for the state. Hayek was one of the city’s biggest proponents of a 21 minibar entry age. He cast his vote in favor of the 21 ordinance at a city council and, when that ordinance was challenged, he campaigned to keep it in place.

Last fall, a ballot measure challenging the 21-ordinance was defeated, with 52 percent of Iowa City voters opting to keep it in place.

Hayek said he can be re-
UI gender gap smaller than nation’s gap

By MATT STARNS

The University of Iowa’s male-to-female enrollment ratio is more balanced than the national trend, statistics show.

American female enrollment in higher education was significantly higher than male enrollment in the World Economic Forum’s 2011 Global Gender Gap report. But at the UI, the gap is less sizable.

The report showed 58.36 percent of American college students are female and 41.62 percent are male, a trend that the United States shares with many other developed nations, including Canada and the United Kingdom.

However, the UI’s gender gap in 2011 was 51.38 percent female and 48.62 percent male.

But UI Regent Larry Luckow said the disparity still exists.

“For all the time that I’ve been here, it’s been more women than men,” he said, and he believes women are generally more prepared for higher education as young adults. “They are more mature, they understand where they want to go, and they’re ready to go to college.”

Lauren Pena, a University of Pennsylvania professor of education, said higher female enrollment in competitive job markets may be due to different educational systems.

“For many that’s happened is women have needed to have higher education in order to have access to things,” she said. “I think part of that’s going on, especially in the higher market opportunities that have been kind of closed off to women.”

She said she believes many women may pursue college educations in an effort to be more marketable to employers.

“Women may have to go to college in order to get jobs that are going to be available in the most distant future,” she said.

Experts said the gap might not just have to do with an increasingly competitive job market.

“We see a pretty big difference between girls and boys with the SAT in high school and college,” the director of research for the American Association of University Women, Jo Matson, said.

In the U.S., we see that women are more likely to graduate from high school,” she said. “That makes it a lot easier to apply for colleges.”

Hill also said the gap might be due to trends in minority male high school graduation rates.

“Among Asian-American and white males, we still see high rates of high school graduation,” she said. “But for African-American and Latino males and young men who are not graduating, whereas African-American and Latino people are more educated at the high-school graduation rate than white males.”

Hill, like Luckow, said the trend isn’t new.

“The gap has been and there has been a majority on college campuses,” she said.

The numbers reinforced a change on the higher education system.

“Part of what I see in our history where many more men went to college than women,” she said. “Now, the populations of careers are changing, it’s more diverse.”

That’s why 72% of Iowans say newspapers are very important in their daily life, according to a recent survey.

Yet, your newspaper is the place to go. No one talks the time to tell the whole story like we do.

Newspapers know better than anyone who is making news and who you need to get to know.

That’s why 72% of Iowans say newspapers are very important in their daily life, according to a recent survey.

Yet, your newspaper is the place to go. No one talks the time to tell the whole story like we do.

Newspapers know better than anyone who is making news and who you need to get to know.

UI junior Lauren Engeling studies structural engineering in the Seamans Center on Tuesday. She is majoring in civil engineering. (The Daily Iowan/Tom Nguyen)
WHERE YOU START

HAS A LOT TO DO WITH HOW YOU FINISH

Time and time again on satisfaction surveys we come out on top. Our quality outcomes are the result of experienced physicians and staff who support you every step of the way with respect, compassion and kindness. Our brand of exceptional medicine is raised to new levels because we care. That’s the Mercy difference. For more information, check us out at www.mercyiowacity.org/mercydifference.

MERCY
IOWA CITY

Exceptional Medicine.
Extraordinary Care.
Has the 21st-century changed the UI's party reputation?

Yes.

One year after Iowa City upheld its decision to keep its bars open, the University of Iowa has little reason to celebrate the end of a chapter in its history or to bask in the afterglow of that fame.

The university's reputation as a "bar" school is rooted in the image that may appear below were originally posted on DailyIowan.com. They are坐在 close by, as their life dictated, listening to their stories, and the current Managing Editor • University of Iowa.

There seems to be an unsettling number of con- flicts of interest that come when it comes to the party scene on the UI campus.

It is not at the buildings that make a city nor is it the businesses that make this city. It is the people. And the people in this city have not changed. Although many may say that you cannot make dumb jokes. Unless it is cheap vodka and the horse is a...
Dems and GOP winners Tuesday

By CHRIS SUNDMAN

Kentucky’s Democratic governor won another term Tuesday, and Mississippi voters kept their governor’s office in Republican hands, decisions that suggested both states are ready to abandon staunchly bimodal politics, despite the nation’s economic woes.

In Kentucky, voters rejected the bargaining rights of public employees, and in Mississippi, they rejected an initiative that would have defined life as beginning at conception. Support of the Mississippi measure fell by nearly 20 percentage points, while support for the Kentucky measure fell by 18 points.

Across the nation, voters’ leanings were little changed from 2011.

Kentucky voters rejected the bargaining rights of public employees, and in Mississippi, they rejected an initiative that would have defined life as beginning at conception. Support of the Mississippi measure fell by nearly 20 percentage points, while support for the Kentucky measure fell by 18 points.

Judith S. Johnson, an expert on poverty measures at Iowa State University, said she doesn’t know what to make of the new benchmark.

“I don’t know how I would classify it. I would just spend all my time,” Klosterman said. “I don’t know how I would classify.

Johnson County may see its poverty level decrease, one expert said.

In a recently released report, officials take more factors — including geography — into account in defining the poverty level. And with each difference included, fewer people in Johnson County fall into the poverty category, said Amy Butler, a University of Iowa associate professor of social work.

The Supplemental Poverty Measure 2010, issued by the U.S. Census Bureau, addresses poverty in a significantly different way from the official measures, with the additional consideration of regional, cultural, medical, educational, employment, and geographical differences.

“Even I have to recognize and fill it in with a table blank space in your mind to have a table in detail. It’s another way to believe and what actually happened. Klosterman said “If it had just been from his perspective, it would have been a conventional unreliable narrator story.”

The situations that the invisible man puts the protagonist through, he said, “are taken by the idea that a character,” Klosterman said. “I was teaching an American studies course at the University of Iowa, and I was teaching an American man who can render himself invisible. The Visible Man Klosterman’s inspirations, he ruminated man taught in Leipzig, Germany, he ruminated Klosterman’s seventh book, the suite of your story.” Klosterman said. “I wasn’t so much taken by ‘The Visible Man’ in a legal challenge.

The study will not replace statistics officials use when distributing benefits, Butler said. However, it said it provides a more comprehensive look at the scope of poverty in the United States.

In comparison to the official poverty measure, which relies on the number of those living in poverty in America, the Supplemental Poverty Measure accounts for the number of people living in poverty as 45.1 million.

When Chuck Klosterman taught in Leipzig, Germany, he ruminated Klosterman’s seventh book, the suite of your story.” Klosterman said. “I wasn’t so much taken by ‘The Visible Man’ in a legal challenge.

The study will not replace statistics officials use when distributing benefits, Butler said. However, it said it provides a more comprehensive look at the scope of poverty in the United States.

In comparison to the official poverty measure, which relies on the number of those living in poverty in America, the Supplemental Poverty Measure accounts for the number of people living in poverty as 45.1 million.

In Kentucky, Gov. Steve Beshear issued a news release that said, “I am extremely proud of this significant achievement for the people of Kentucky.”

The debate around the law, however, did not end with the approval. In 2010, the U.S. Supreme Court decided that means there are fewer services.

The Daily Iowan - Iowa City, Iowa - Wednesday, November 9, 2011 - - 7

Visible invisibility

Journalist and best-selling author Chuck Klosterman will read at the Iowa City Public Library today.

By JORDAN MONTGOMERY

When Chuck Klosterman taught in Leipzig, Germany, he ruminated about the notion that per- ceptively, the invisible man’s ability and the immorality to make a void would then be captured.

The Visible Man

Johnson County may see its poverty level decrease, one expert said.

In a recently released report, officials take more factors — including geography — into account in defining the poverty level. And with each difference included, fewer people in Johnson County fall into the poverty category, said Amy Butler, a University of Iowa associate professor of social work.

The Supplemental Poverty Measure 2010, issued by the U.S. Census Bureau, addresses poverty in a significantly different way from the official measures, with the additional consideration of regional, cultural, medical, educational, employment, and geographical differences.

“Even I have to recognize and fill it in with a table blank space in your mind to have a table in detail. It’s another way to believe and what actually happened. Klosterman said “If it had just been from his perspective, it would have been a conventional unreliable narrator story.”

The situations that the invisible man puts the protagonist through, he said, “are taken by the idea that a character,” Klosterman said. “I wasn’t so much taken by ‘The Visible Man’ in a legal challenge.

The study will not replace statistics officials use when distributing benefits, Butler said. However, it said it provides a more comprehensive look at the scope of poverty in the United States.

In comparison to the official poverty measure, which relies on the number of those living in poverty in America, the Supplemental Poverty Measure accounts for the number of people living in poverty as 45.1 million.

In Kentucky, Gov. Steve Beshear issued a news release that said, “I am extremely proud of this significant achievement for the people of Kentucky.”

The debate around the law, however, did not end with the approval. In 2010, the U.S. Supreme Court decided that means there are fewer services.

The Daily Iowan - Iowa City, Iowa - Wednesday, November 9, 2011 - - 7

Visible invisibility

Journalist and best-selling author Chuck Klosterman will read at the Iowa City Public Library today.

By JORDAN MONTGOMERY

When Chuck Kloster- man taught in Leipzig, Germany, he ruminated about the notion that per- ceptively, the invisible man’s ability and the immorality to make a void would then be captured.

The Visible Man

Johnson County may see its poverty level decrease, one expert said.

In a recently released report, officials take more factors — including geography — into account in defining the poverty level. And with each difference included, fewer people in Johnson County fall into the poverty category, said Amy Butler, a University of Iowa associate professor of social work.

The Supplemental Poverty Measure 2010, issued by the U.S. Census Bureau, addresses poverty in a significantly different way from the official measures, with the additional consideration of regional, cultural, medical, educational, employment, and geographical differences.

“Even I have to recognize and fill it in with a table blank space in your mind to have a table in detail. It’s another way to believe and what actually happened. Klosterman said “If it had just been from his perspective, it would have been a conventional unreliable narrator story.”

The situations that the invisible man puts the protagonist through, he said, “are taken by the idea that a character,” Klosterman said. “I wasn’t so much taken by ‘The Visible Man’ in a legal challenge.

The study will not replace statistics officials use when distributing benefits, Butler said. However, it said it provides a more comprehensive look at the scope of poverty in the United States.

In comparison to the official poverty measure, which relies on the number of those living in poverty in America, the Supplemental Poverty Measure accounts for the number of people living in poverty as 45.1 million.

In Kentucky, Gov. Steve Beshear issued a news release that said, “I am extremely proud of this significant achievement for the people of Kentucky.”

The debate around the law, however, did not end with the approval. In 2010, the U.S. Supreme Court decided that means there are fewer services.

The Daily Iowan - Iowa City, Iowa - Wednesday, November 9, 2011 - - 7

Visible invisibility

Journalist and best-selling author Chuck Klosterman will read at the Iowa City Public Library today.
Thoughts on Zombies:

• Apparently, the best way to become a zombie is to break into an old hospital, because otherwise you'd have to shave, dress, and take care of yourself.

• Regardless of the fact that they can't open doors or operate simple latches, zombies are often found knocking in doors, windows, and locked basements.

• Give a zombie a fish, and he'll eat for a day. Teach a zombie to fish, and he'll eat for a lifetime.

• You totally just Googled “What was the weirdest thing you've seen in class?” to try to scare them away.

• Sometimes when I'm feeling like a zombie to fish, and he'll eat for a day. Teach a zombie to fish, and he'll eat for a lifetime.

• The compulsive gumming of a zombie seems to come in waves—there is a lot you can do about it until it passes.

• A zombie, yet.

• You totally just Googled “What was the weirdest thing you've seen in class?” to try to scare them away.

• Regardless of the fact that they can't open doors or operate simple latches, zombies are often found knocking in doors, windows, and locked basements.

• The only thing you can do with a zombie is to keep it away from the food: Zombies love food, and they will eat it if they can.

• Keep busy. Learn all you can about something you are trying to master. Participation in your field promises not to bring any negative rewards.

• Life is a series of puzzles, and you need to find the right puzzle to your personality. If you don't, you won't be able to survive a zombie out-of-town.

• Keep busy. Learn all you can about something you are trying to master. Participation in your field promises not to bring any negative rewards.

• Regardless of the fact that they can't open doors or operate simple latches, zombies are often found knocking in doors, windows, and locked basements.

• A zombie is a past, part record, and if you give him one, you will find out that much you do about the complications and problems that result, not even with a riled brain. Zombies are always a possibility.

• The only thing you can do with a zombie is to keep it away from the food: Zombies love food, and they will eat it if they can.

• Your home is your castle. Spend time fixing things up to better suit your needs. Take a look at your house. It is probably the key to change. Keep your eyes open for you can be a riled brain.

• Ask questions, and talk about what's expected of you. Preparation will be a key component to your success. Your mood will be dependent on how things go. Romance is in the stars, and a celebration today.
ASSOCIATED PRESS

MONTREAL — RESTED and refreshed, Nikolai Khabibulin brought his A game to the Bell Centre on Tuesday night as 10 Otiers teammates showed up with less than their best.

Khabibulin, 32, made 32 saves, and Ryan Jones scored a short-handed goal in the second period to send Edmonton to a 3-1 win over the Canadiens in the second game of a four-game series.

Tom Gilbert scored at 16:26 of the third to put the Oilers up 2-0. Ryan Smyth skated in and sent a shot past Brodeur. Khabibulin makes 28 saves, and Ryan Jones scored a short-handed goal in the second period.

“Khabibulin has to be our best,” coach Tom Renney said. “I think there’s maybe been one other where we weren’t as good as we needed to be for 60 minutes and you know what, that’s not bad. We have lots of stats one here, but you find ways to win, and he certainly is giving us lots of confidence. We just have to make sure that we use that a little bit to get us going on the ice.”

Montreal’s Max Pacioretty scored 22 seconds after Gilbert to make it 2-1. Carey Price stopped 11 shots for the Canadiens, who have lost two in a row after a four-game winning streak.

“It seemed like a similar game plan, and they get a couple of bounces,” Pacioretty said.

Edmonton came into the game leading theway for one night when his shot struck Montreal’s Max Pacioretty’s stick and the puck hit the net. "It was tough, but I had to tell myself that I wasn’t going to get back in there and dewil on it. I knew some shots would get by him and some would miss, and you just contribute.”

Henrique skated around the back of Carolina goalie Cam Ward and slid the puck under Ward for the game-winner 22 seconds later.

"It was the second straight game win and a huge win for us,” said Carolina’s head coach Lindy Ritz. "It was a big win for us, and it was good to see our team play well and still come up with the win.”

Devil rookie redeems himself with winning goal

ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEWARK, N.J. — After breaking his collarbone, rookie center Adam Henrique is the first Devils’ rookie to be credited with the game-winning goal Tuesday night, Devil goaltender Martin Brodeur (right) saves a shot by Carolina Hurricanes’ Chad LaRose during the second period Tuesday in Newark, N.J.

New Jersey Devil goaltender Martin Brodeur (right) saves a shot by Carolina Hurricanes’ Chad LaRose during the second period Tuesday in Newark, N.J. (Associated Press/Bill Kostroun)

New Jersey Devils center Adam Henrique, right, celebrates his goal against the Carolina Hurricanes during the third period of an NHL hockey game Tuesday in Newark, N.J. (AP Photo/Bill Kostroun)

New ElfDevil Devdirkockey redeems himself with winning goal

New Jersey Devil center Adam Henrique, right, celebrates his goal against the Carolina Hurricanes during the third period of an NHL hockey game Tuesday in Newark, N.J. (AP Photo/Bill Kostroun)

The Devils had a great chance to score on that power play, but Patrik Elias on Sutter's goal was his fourth of the season, and the Hurricanes are just 2-0-1 against Carolina.

16:28 of the third period to lift the Devils to a 1-0 lead at 2:37 of the third period Tuesday in Newark, N.J. (Associated Press/Bill Kostroun)

16:28 of the third period to lift the Devils to a 1-0 lead at 2:37 of the third period Tuesday in Newark, N.J. (Associated Press/Bill Kostroun)

16:28 of the third period to lift the Devils to a 1-0 lead at 2:37 of the third period Tuesday in Newark, N.J. (Associated Press/Bill Kostroun)

16:28 of the third period to lift the Devils to a 1-0 lead at 2:37 of the third period Tuesday in Newark, N.J. (Associated Press/Bill Kostroun)

16:28 of the third period to lift the Devils to a 1-0 lead at 2:37 of the third period Tuesday in Newark, N.J. (Associated Press/Bill Kostroun)

"It's tough to take," But- ler said. "We've had a tough go the last few games. We competed tonight the way we wanted to, but things didn't go our way. The last game was different, because we didn't play hard enough. Tonight, we get back to our game, play well and still come up short. It's a game that we could have gone either way and it didn't go our way.”

Butler said. "We've had a tough go the last few games. We competed tonight the way we wanted to, but things didn't go our way. The last game was different, because we didn't play hard enough. Tonight, we get back to our game, play well and still come up short. It's a game that we could have gone either way and it didn't go our way.”
FOOTBALL CONTINUED FROM 2

was tough and unfortunate for us. I'm just looking to step up and do whatever the coach asks me to do."

Flederowski to continue starting
C.J. Flederowski said his stomach dropped in shock when he was told he would miss Michigan State's Big Ten last week.

"I was just like 'Wow, it's finally my time,'" the sopho- more right and said. The thought of starting the game and playing the entire game was a little nerve-racking. Once that first serve got over, though, we were just fine."

Flederowski caught 14 of 92 serves against the Wolverines, coming up large after a yard or so of a touchdown. He has 4 catches for 62 yards this season.

The Johnsburg, Ill., native has shown a better job of paying attention to "the little details" in prac- tice, said, leading to increased trust from the coaching staff.

"He felt like we was on the upward climb," Parente said. "We went off to camp, and he really worked last week, so he'll continue to be our star setter, and we'll see where it goes."

Seniors prepare for final home game
Eighteen seniors will play their final home games as Hawkeye players on Saturday against Michigan State. Receiver Mark McNutt said the day will be emotional.

"This is my final time here to get a chance to play in front of these won- derful fans in Kinnick Stadium," he said. Asked to name his favorite Kinnick Stadium moment, the former quar- terback couldn't pick just one.

"There have been a lot of them. So I don't really have a favorite," he said. "Any- time you walk out of the tunnel, you still get the same feeling as the first time you walked out of it."}

FOOTBALL CONTINUED FROM 2

Yeager suffered from an undiscovered back injury, had to leave the game in the third set. Yeager tallied only four digs before leaving the match. Straumann replaced her and wore the libero jersey for the first time this season. She struggled with Damning Sea dig in the set.

Freshman defensive spe- cialist Kari Mueller remains on the court with a foot injury. Straumann replaced her and wore the libero jersey for the first time this season. She struggled with Damning Sea dig in the set.

"I'm not qualified to speak on this, but in regards to Coach Pater- son, he has been an out- standing role model for col- lege football," Dantonio said. "It's a pleasure to speak on the situation, but we've got to show confidence in our starter, and we'll get to make sure you can do this."

Yeager has received treatment from athletics training staff since missing her first set of the year last week, including a back brace, and medica- tion. She said she is feeling "a lot better" since the match with the Spartans.

But even if she had to sit, she and her teammates are doing what they can to help her instead of looking for excuses.

"It's sad," he said. "It's the man."
Big Ten coaches praise Paterno

Head coaches around the Big Ten declined to comment on specifics of Penn State's sex-abuse scandal, but they expressed admiration for Nittany Lion's head coach Joe Paterno.

By SAM LOUWAGIE

Head coaches from around the Big Ten reacted to the sex-abuse scandal surrounding the Penn State football program during the conference's weekly teleconference on Tuesday. The coaches all declined to speak on the controversy itself, but most expressed admiration for 48th-year Nittany Lion head coach Joe Paterno.

A scandal involving the alleged sexual abuses of young boys by former defensive coordinator Jerry Sandusky has forced two of the school's top officials, including the athletic director, the New York Times reported Tuesday. Penn State University officials were planning for Paterno's exit, "perhaps within days or weeks," after the coach has some under criticism for failing to alert police when told of molestation.

The university canceled Paterno's weekly press conference on Tuesday, and he did not appear for his interview season on the teleconference.

Illinois head coach Ron Zook said he was "shocked," but praised Paterno's character.

"Anybody who knows Coach Paterno knows he's a great person," Zook said. "What he has done for college football is just phenomenal. I think he's one of the top two or three guys in the history of college football. I don't know the situation or what happened, but you hate to see anything like that happen to a man like Coach Paterno."

Iowa libero Bethany Yeager leaps the ball during practice on Tuesday in Carver-Hawkeye Arena's new practice facility. The seniors rank in the country's top 10 in offensive and defensive categories. The seniors are open to the public, but parking is limited. Attendees should enter Carver-Hawkeye Arena through the south entrance of the Dan Gable Wrestling Complex. They are open to the public, but parking will be limited; the Athletics Department suggests fans use the hospital parking ramp.

"The Hawkeyes have set a good tone and looked toward the net. They are putting up good digs or a good pass, it carries a heavy role in their skills," Dingman said. "One of the things that makes her good is her unselfish attitude. Bethany is a great leader and a great digger."

Iowa libero Bethany Yeager leaps the ball during practice on Tuesday in Carver-Hawkeye Arena’s new practice facility. The seniors rank in the country’s top 10 in offensive and defensive categories. The seniors are open to the public, but parking is limited. Attendees should enter Carver-Hawkeye Arena through the south entrance of the Dan Gable Wrestling Complex. They are open to the public, but parking will be limited; the Athletics Department suggests fans use the hospital parking ramp.

"The Hawkeyes have set a good tone and looked toward the net. They are putting up good digs or a good pass, it carries a heavy role in their skills," Dingman said. "One of the things that makes her good is her unselfish attitude. Bethany is a great leader and a great digger."

Yeager, a senior, is ranked sixth in the conference with 421 digs. She is close to being 100 percent after working through an undisclosed injury. The 6-5, 310-pounder may not be ready to play Saturday against Michigan State, but his presence in practice will help the Hawkeyes, Fontesta said.

"He's a young guy who's hard to play. Fontesta said. "But at least we'll have someone to practice with so we can get better at wearing each other out, so that's a positive. At least if we can have a good week of practice, we'll see what we can throw out there Saturday."

Senior linebacker Daniel will slide into Alvis' starting role. Daniel has put up tackles in seven games, starting three of them.

What happened to Dom Injuries hobble D-line

Dominic Alvis’ season-ending ACL injury further challenges Iowa’s defensive depth. Iowa defensive lineman Steve Bigach tries to bring down Indiana quarterback Tre Roberson at Kinnick Stadium on Oct. 22. Bigach is one of the few healthy Hawkeyes left on an injury-plagued defensive line that took another hit last week when Dominic Alvis tore his ACL. (The Daily Iowan/Brian Wedekind)

Iowa libero Bethany Yeager bumps the ball during practice on Tuesday in Carver-Hawkeye Arena’s new practice facility. The seniors rank in the country’s top 10 in offensive and defensive categories. The seniors are open to the public, but parking is limited. Attendees should enter Carver-Hawkeye Arena through the south entrance of the Dan Gable Wrestling Complex. They are open to the public, but parking will be limited; the Athletics Department suggests fans use the hospital parking ramp.

"The Hawkeyes have set a good tone and looked toward the net. They are putting up good digs or a good pass, it carries a heavy role in their skills," Dingman said. "One of the things that makes her good is her unselfish attitude. Bethany is a great leader and a great digger."

Iowa libero Bethany Yeager leaps the ball during practice on Tuesday in Carver-Hawkeye Arena’s new practice facility. The seniors rank in the country’s top 10 in offensive and defensive categories. The seniors are open to the public, but parking is limited. Attendees should enter Carver-Hawkeye Arena through the south entrance of the Dan Gable Wrestling Complex. They are open to the public, but parking will be limited; the Athletics Department suggests fans use the hospital parking ramp.

"The Hawkeyes have set a good tone and looked toward the net. They are putting up good digs or a good pass, it carries a heavy role in their skills," Dingman said. "One of the things that makes her good is her unselfish attitude. Bethany is a great leader and a great digger."

Yeager, a senior, is ranked sixth in the conference with 421 digs. She is close to being 100 percent after working through an undisclosed injury. The 6-5, 310-pounder may not be ready to play Saturday against Michigan State, but his presence in practice will help the Hawkeyes, Fontesta said.

"He's a young guy who's hard to play. Fontesta said. "But at least we'll have someone to practice with so we can get better at wearing each other out, so that's a positive. At least if we can have a good week of practice, we'll see what we can throw out there Saturday."

Senior linebacker Daniel will slide into Alvis' starting role. Daniel has put up tackles in seven games, starting three of them.

What happened to Dom