Plummer's bail still $100K

By ERIC MOORE

An official at the Department of Corrections confirmed Monday that Robert Plummer’s $100,000 bond would not be reduced, even though Plummer is a student.

Plummer, 23, of Iowa City, is charged with murder in the second degree and attempted murder in the second degree in connection with an attack on his girlfriend in October, according to online records through the Iowa City Police Department.

Before Plummer’s move to Iowa City, he was a student at the University of Illinois and attended the University of Southern California.

Plummer’s girlfriend, 20-year-old Tia Ingram, argued that his bond should be reduced because he is a student. He is also charged with domestic abuse.

Plummer is expected to have a bond-review hearing Tuesday, and Ingram plans to attend.

Tuition increases roughly 4% students and corresponding $7,500 in the Iowa higher education system. The University of Iowa announced on Wednesday the annual tuition increases for the 2011-2012 academic year. In-state tuition for the 2011-2012 academic year will increase to $7,765 for in-state students and $23,713 for out-of-state students. Out-of-state tuition for the 2010-2011 academic year was $22,198.

"If you can develop a relationship with voting families are just advocating for a tax cut extended just because I Romney called the extensions of state relations at the Capitol. The members put on such events as post-card drive, a vote-palooza — an event promoting voter registration, and other voter activities — voter registration and getting out the vote campaigns," said Hagle.

"We have seen good responses from legislators in the past," Hagle said. "Across the state, it depends on who you go to the Capitol and what your message is." Dan Nelson, the director of state relations at the University of Wisconsin-Madison, said state relations — the equivalent of the UI Student Government — works directly with legislators and helps educate legislators with issues that come up, as well as help from the student government.

"Romney said he thinks the partnership is an important part of the communication process. Legislators from all parts of the state, and so do our students," Nelson said. "It’s important to hear issues from students in these legislatures’ districts — it makes the message more effective."

There are currently 40 members signed up for the pen-pal program, and Blief-fit said she hopes more will sign up as the process continues to develop.

"It’s how everyone can have an impact on the status of higher education in the future if they just communicate," she said.
McCain: Pakistan funding needs strings attached

WASHINGTON — Sen. John McCain said the battle for U.S. aid to Pakistan must come with strings attached.

The top Republican on the Senate Armed Services Committee, which helps to oversee that money, says Pakistan should demonstrate it’s helping to “prevent the needless deaths of young Americans.”

McCain’s comment on CNN’s “State of the Union” shows the acute frustration in Congress because of alleged ties between Pakistan’s intelligence outfit and al-Qaida militants behind attacks on U.S. and NATO troops along the Afghan border.

McCain has been critical of Pakistan’s intelligence service, the Inter-Services Intelligence, or ISI, since it armed al-Qaida’s Osama bin Laden to wage war in Afghanistan.

Obama pushes for extension of payroll tax cut

WASHINGTON — President Obama says Congress needs to extend a payroll tax cut, saying the economic recovery is “still fragile” and middle-class families need the money.

Letter to the Editor

Dear Editor,

I objects to the recent decision of the Irving Springer, Jr., my husband, to remove the Mangelsen snowplow from the streets of Iowa City. The snowstorm that occurred last weekend turned the city into a snow-covered parking lot, and the city’s response has been lackluster. The Mangelsen snowplow has been a reliable and effective tool for removing snow from the streets of Iowa City, and its removal has left many residents Feeling frustrated.

Sincerely,

Postal cuts slow mail

Mail carrier Zack Wyscarver delivers mail in freezing temperatures on Monday. WASHINGTON

Unprecedented cuts by the cash-strapped U.S. Postal Service will slow first-class delivery next spring and, for the first time in 40 years, eliminate the chance for stamped letters to arrive the next day. The estimated $3 billion in reductions, to be announced in broader detail later Monday, are part of a wide-ranging effort by the Postal Service to quickly trim costs and avert bankruptcy. They could slow everything from check payments to Netflix's DVDs by mail, add costs to mail-order prescription drugs, and threaten the existence of newspapers and time-sensitive magazines delivered by postal service to far-flung suburban and rural communities.

That birthday card mailed first-class to Mom also could arrive a day or two late if people don't plan ahead.

"It's a potentially major change, but, I don't think consumers are focused on it, and it won't register until the service goes away," said Jim Corridore, analyst with S&P Capital IQ, who tracks the shipping industry. "Over time in the extent the customer-service experience gets worse, it will only increase the shift away from mail to alternatives. There's almost nothing you can't do online that you can do by mail."

The cuts would close roughly 250 of the nearly 500 mail-processing centers across the country as early as next month. Because the consolidations would typically lengthen the distance mail travels from post offices to processing centers, the agency would also lower delivery standards for first-class mail that have been in place since 1971. Currently, first-class mail is supposed to be delivered to homes and businesses within the continental U.S. in one to three days, that will be lengthened to two to three days, meaning mailers could no longer expect next-day delivery in surrounding communities. Periodicals could take between two and nine days.

The Postal Service already has announced a 1-cent increase in first-class mail to 46 cents beginning Jan. 22.

Around 42 percent of all first-class mail is now delivered the following day; another 27 percent arrives in two days, approximately 33 percent in those three days, and fewer than 1 percent in four to five days. Following the change next spring, approximately 53 percent of all first-class mail is expected to arrive in two days, with most of the remainder delivered in three days.

The consolidation of mail-processing centers is in addition to the planned closing of about 3,700 local post offices. In all, roughly 100,000 postal employees could be cut as a result of the various changes, resulting in savings of up to $5.5 billion a year.

Expressing urgency to reduce costs, Postmaster General Patrick Donahoe said in an interview that the agency has to act while waiting for Congress to grant it authority to reduce delivery to five days a week, raise stamp prices and reduce health care and other labor costs. The Postal Service, an independent agency of government, does not receive tax money, but is subject to Congressional control of large aspects of its operations. The changes in first-class mail delivery are implemented without permission from Congress.

There’s nothing like shutting down a hostile crowd. The Hawkeyes won last year’s matchup, 51-39, but they haven’t beaten the Panthers in Cedar Falls since 2007. Iowa fans are saying they expect tonight’s game to be much like last year’s, likely featuring the hard-nosed, grind-it-out pace the Panthers like to play.

Statistically, UNI won’t own much in tonight’s meeting. Head coach Ben Jacobson’s squad ranks 27th nationally in points per game (70.2), 105th in rebounds (38.3), and 246th in assists (10.7) through eight games.

Iowa boasts better numbers in the same categories — 76.1 points, 37.1 rebounds, and 15.0 assists per game — but has a slightly lower shooting percentage. The Hawkeyes have connected on 42.7 percent of their shots, and the Panthers have hit 45.6 percent of theirs.

McAlhany said UNI’s offensive depth and the number of shot attempts the team has is one thing that could make tonight difficult in preparing for the contest. Dariusgardner-Anderson Jones and redshirt junior forward Jake Kuakor are the only Panthers to average double figures in scoring, at 15.1 and 10.1, respectively. But Iowa has six players averaging 5.0 points per contest, and the Hawkeyes went 3-for-3 on free throws at a 38 percent clip.

“Anytime you have a team that makes so many guys who can make shots, it’s a hard team to defend,” said Schmitt, the second-year Hawkeye co-captain. “We struggle like all the sitcoms, but it may be as important in this game as in any other — communication definitively. You have to talk to each other out there.”

Iowa forward Eric May Jr. said he thought about UNI’s deliberate offense attack, and he said facing the team on its home court will only make coming away with a win more challenging.

Iowa’s offensive depth makes it hard to prepare for the game, so it’s a hard team to prepare for, said Schmitt. “But we all work together really well, and that helped a lot.”

Thundering dodge ball

Sons of Thunder 2 advanced to the quarterfinals with a pair of wins.

Sons of Thunder 2 used back-to-back wins to advance to the quarterfinals of the single-elimination intramural dodge-ball playoffs on Monday night in the Field House.

Thunder defeated the Thundering Fathers, 9-2, on Monday night. The Sons of Thunder defeated Hesstosterone in a sudden-death thriller, 8-7.

Having to play two games back-to-back wasn’t an issue for the Sons of Thunder, said team member Rob Lord. “I said four years later they had some experience in the college setting,” Lord said.

The Thundering Fathers were back in form, said Lord.

“A simple statement that one cannot be aware of,” Lord said. "It’s so much easier to get through the team with the rules and regulations and pushing such other, the former said. “It’s not as draining, and it feels like practice goes by a lot quicker.”

Surviving practices may be just one aspect in which a bigger, class-group kind can be advantageous, the Hawkeye also said and said when learning a new concept. The pentathon consists of five different events, the 60-meter hurdles, high jump, shot put, long jump, and the 800-meter run. Not every athlete will be a part of every event, and each event will be considered a multiplier event in all four.
