Air show returns to Iowa City

By KRISTEN BARON

Smoke or vapor — it’s all the same to Johnson County.

The Johnson County Board of Supervisors passed a motion last week that will prohibit the use of alternative-tobacco products — which includes electronic cigarettes — on Johnson County property. The motion passed with a 3-2 vote.

Supervisor Chairman Terrance Neull and Supervisor John Klindt voted against the proposal. Both had pushed to remove some elements of it, which could have allowed the Johnson County Community School District to have its say.

As it stands, they believe that the amendment is too restrictive.

“Supervisor Neull said, ‘If you could smoke (electronic cigarettes) outside, then we would have voted for it,’” Neull said.

However, he believes that all forms of tobacco products should not be available for use indoors.

The precursor to this ban was the Iowa Smokefree Air Act, which was passed in the spring of 2009. The act banned smoking and the use of tobacco products in nearly all public places.

Supervisor Salee Fetting said no matter what the tobacco products are named, they still release chemicals.

“This problem is in changing names of these products like ‘e-cigarettes,’” Fetting said. “There are a variety of ways they call them, but they are still putting out vapor and carcinogens in some way.”

However, not all people believe that electronic cigarettes are as harmful as traditional tobacco products.

“It’s America; you can be as stupid as you want to be,” said Iowa Supervisor Ken Maucker, who noted that she does not mind when she sees people using electronic cigarettes both indoors and outdoors.

In an Iowa Department of Public Health report, e-cigarettes are named, they still release chemicals. However, not all people believe that electronic cigarettes are as harmful as traditional tobacco products.

“The problem is that this industry is changing names of these products like ‘e-cigarettes,’” Fetting said. “There are a variety of ways they call them, but they are still putting out vapor and carcinogens in some way.”

However, not all people believe that electronic cigarettes are as harmful as traditional tobacco products.

“It’s America; you can be as stupid as you want to be,” said Iowa Supervisor Ken Maucker, who noted that she does not mind when she sees people using electronic cigarettes both indoors and outdoors.

In an Iowa Department of Public Health report, e-cigarettes are named, they still release chemicals.

However, not all people believe that electronic cigarettes are as harmful as traditional tobacco products.

“The problem is that this industry is changing names of these products like ‘e-cigarettes,’” Fetting said. “There are a variety of ways they call them, but they are still putting out vapor and carcinogens in some way.”

However, not all people believe that electronic cigarettes are as harmful as traditional tobacco products.

“It’s America; you can be as stupid as you want to be,” said Iowa Supervisor Ken Maucker, who noted that she does not mind when she sees people using electronic cigarettes both indoors and outdoors.

In an Iowa Department of Public Health report, e-cigarettes are named, they still release chemicals.

However, not all people believe that electronic cigarettes are as harmful as traditional tobacco products.

“The problem is that this industry is changing names of these products like ‘e-cigarettes,’” Fetting said. “There are a variety of ways they call them, but they are still putting out vapor and carcinogens in some way.”

However, not all people believe that electronic cigarettes are as harmful as traditional tobacco products.

“It’s America; you can be as stupid as you want to be,” said Iowa Supervisor Ken Maucker, who noted that she does not mind when she sees people using electronic cigarettes both indoors and outdoors.

In an Iowa Department of Public Health report, e-cigarettes are named, they still release chemicals.
Roberts, as well as other paperwork had the name Andrew to the sale of the stolen Bobcat. The authorities located paperwork related Roberts in his possession.

The driver's license of Kellen Andrew was located and found to be reportedly unknown, was charged June 28 with assault with injury.

June 26 with domestic assault with injury.

On April 15, Keokuk County deputies were welcomed back by a large crowd. (The Daily Iowan/Sergio Flores)

During a search of his vehicle, Briggs denied stealing or having possession of the stolen Bobcat. The vote was passed the county board of supervisors.

At present, 11 potential locations are under consideration in Linn County. Land where the tallgrass grows.

Man faces theft charges

Mayor Proctor and his wife, former mayor Mary Proctor, were welcomed back by a large crowd.

During a search of his vehicle, Briggs denied stealing or having possession of the stolen Bobcat. The vote was passed the county board of supervisors.

At present, 11 potential locations are under consideration in Linn County. Land where the tallgrass grows.

Man faces theft charges

Mayor Proctor and his wife, former mayor Mary Proctor, were welcomed back by a large crowd.

During a search of his vehicle, Briggs denied stealing or having possession of the stolen Bobcat. The vote was passed the county board of supervisors.

At present, 11 potential locations are under consideration in Linn County. Land where the tallgrass grows.

Man faces theft charges

Mayor Proctor and his wife, former mayor Mary Proctor, were welcomed back by a large crowd.

During a search of his vehicle, Briggs denied stealing or having possession of the stolen Bobcat. The vote was passed the county board of supervisors.

At present, 11 potential locations are under consideration in Linn County. Land where the tallgrass grows.

Man faces theft charges

Mayor Proctor and his wife, former mayor Mary Proctor, were welcomed back by a large crowd.

During a search of his vehicle, Briggs denied stealing or having possession of the stolen Bobcat. The vote was passed the county board of supervisors.

At present, 11 potential locations are under consideration in Linn County. Land where the tallgrass grows.

Man faces theft charges

Mayor Proctor and his wife, former mayor Mary Proctor, were welcomed back by a large crowd.

During a search of his vehicle, Briggs denied stealing or having possession of the stolen Bobcat. The vote was passed the county board of supervisors.

At present, 11 potential locations are under consideration in Linn County. Land where the tallgrass grows.

Man faces theft charges

Mayor Proctor and his wife, former mayor Mary Proctor, were welcomed back by a large crowd.

During a search of his vehicle, Briggs denied stealing or having possession of the stolen Bobcat. The vote was passed the county board of supervisors.
Patio city pumps up business

By MICHAEL KADRIE
michael-kadrie@uiowa.edu

Once the weather gets warm in Iowa City, many restaurants set up outdoor patios to take advantage of the temperatures, and some restaurant officials say it has had a positive effect on their business.

Nodo Downtown, 5 S. Dubuque St., put up its patio at the beginning of this month, and it has helped the restaurant stand out. The establishment opened its downtown location in August 2013.

“People love it; it’s brought more attention to our small storefront,” Nodo co-owner Josh Silver said.

However, Silver said he doesn’t know if the restaurant is busier than ever because of the nice weather and outdoor seating. He said the recent increase in the number of patrons could be attributed to people becoming more aware of the predominantly sandwich-focused shop.

There are more than 15 businesses in the Downtown District that have outdoor seating — and applying for outdoor seating is not too restrictive.

Restaurant owners have to fill out an application, which then needs the approval and signatures of the City Council. Depending on the kind of operating license the owners hold, they may require the endorsement of their insurance company as well.

Applicants also must provide the names and addresses of all adjoining properties and every other property in 100 feet of the property. Additionally, they must provide a notice in clear public view announcing their intention of establishing a patio 10 days before the matter is up for a vote.

Beyond observing occupancy limits, applicants must construct a “suitable barrier,” to be no fewer than 3 feet and no more than 8 feet tall.

With patio seating, some businesses said summer is one of their busiest seasons.

Abigail Mason-Marshall, assistant dining room manager for Atlas, said summer is its biggest season. Mason-Marshall said she estimates sales have increased by at least one-third or have even doubled.

Atlas’s patio doubles the seating, which in turn causes it to double the staff.

“It’s surprising, because students are gone,” Mason-Marshall said. “It has been even upgrading its patio seating by installing an extendable seating to allow it to keep the patio open in case of inclement weather.

Summer events bring in a whole new crowd to downtown, said Adam Peters, the manager of Micky’s Irish Pub.

“Once the college kids leave, the permanent residents come back out,” Peters said. “We see all these new faces.”

However, not every business reports an increase in sales during the summer months.

Peters said Micky’s is about as busy as it is at other times during the year. Employees also said they noticed a lack of potential customers from summer festivities, such as the Jazz Festival this coming weekend, as well as from such sporting events as the World Cup.

But no matter what is happening downtown, patio seating will continue to be a popular choice for area businesses.

“If it’s a nice day out, it’s always full,” Peters said.
Sailing with snail mail

U nless we plan on sending enough mail — million of letters and packages — to help the U.S. Postal Service break even and avoid bankruptcy, then we will soon experience the limitations of mail delivery, such as America only five days a week. According to a Bloomberg Businessweek report earlier this year, the U.S. Senate committee passed a bill that would allow the Postal Service to close 3,600 post offices and 260 mail processing centers in 2013, which would result in 120,000 layoffs. The service has said it would reduce service standards and do away with Saturday delivery. The shuttering of post offices is a way to make ends meet, as mail delivery is a 13-billion-dollar-a-year business. The Postal Service delivers 160 million letters and packages every day and is the nation’s largest employer with nearly 750,000 employees. But it is not all doom and gloom. The Postal Service is putting forward some creative ideas to keep the agency afloat, such as implementing new delivery methods, such as reducing the size of the workforce, and raising the price of postage. However, the Postal Service is still facing significant challenges, and it remains to be seen whether these efforts will be enough to save the agency from bankruptcy. The Postal Service has been running at a deficit of around $20 billion per year, and it has been forced to rely on loans from the U.S. Treasury to cover its losses. The agency has been forced to cut services, such as Saturday delivery and first-class mail, which has caused anger and frustration among the public. The Postal Service has also been facing a decline in letter mail, which has accounted for the majority of its revenue in the past. The service is currently relying on package delivery and other services to make up for lost revenue. The Postal Service has been working with the Department of the Treasury to ensure that it will be able to pay its bills and continue to operate, but the future remains uncertain. The agency is under pressure to come up with a plan to reduce its losses and become more profitable, and it will be interesting to see how it will be able to do so.

COLUMN

Reminiscing the Korean War

Barrett Sess
bssess@dailyiowan.com

Marking the 60th anniversary of the Korean War, which began on June 25, 1950, is important for several reasons. First, it is a time to remember those who served in the war and to honor their sacrifices. Second, it is an opportunity to reflect on the events that led to the war and to consider the lessons that can be learned from it. Finally, it is a chance to examine the role of the Korean War in American history and to consider its impact on the country.

JORDYN REILAND / Stafa, The Daily Iowan

Barrett Sess
bssess@dailyiowan.com

Editorial Board supports Latham in his decision to direct a Korean War movie. Maybe it could be a sequel to Saving Private Ryan in which Mark Rylance plays the leader of American soldiers died in Vietnam. Does that mean I think that the Korean War is on the other end of the spectrum? The film industry is mired in a military genre that is completely forget about. There has to be some kind of balance.

§ Abraham Lincoln, the Union Army's commander, knew the underrepresentation of the Korean War in popular culture.

Many large bank executives. It also seems that the modern American military has been over-represented in the media, and the underrepresentation of the Korean War in popular culture.

Barrett Sess
bssess@dailyiowan.com

as the same statistics show, employment has been declining steadily since the turn of the century, as it has from declining necessity, more efficient delivery, and increased competition with the private sector. Many of the Warren companies have supported state and local efforts to create jobs and increase the workforce. The Warren Service is also focused on creating consistent mail delivery in all conditions, as the Postal Service is a key player in the economy. The Service has implemented measures to reduce costs, such as reducing the workforce and increasing the price of postage. The Service has also been working to improve its delivery system, such as implementing new delivery methods, such as reducing the size of the workforce, and raising the price of postage. The Service has also been facing a decline in letter mail, which has accounted for the majority of its revenue in the past. The Service is currently relying on package delivery and other services to make up for lost revenue. The Service has been working with the Department of the Treasury to ensure that it will be able to pay its bills and continue to operate, but the future remains uncertain. The Service is under pressure to come up with a plan to reduce its losses and become more profitable, and it will be interesting to see how it will be able to do so.

COLUMN

Exactly what is conservative?

Matthew Ryd

One of the more amazing things about the American political debates is the idea that Americans are essentially ultra-conservative. Rand Paul’s Randian rhetoric has been hailed as the voice of reason by many, many, many, many conservatives, but it seems to me that they have a mandate to essentially destroy whatever else there is.

This pathology is actually pervasive, as obvious to political scientists David Brooks and Michael Gerson. They have been quoted in both parties during the 2012 election cycle and have both found that politicians overstate their constituents’ views to make them more quantifiable, as shown by the 2012 election cycle. The Post’s editorial board puts on their editorial for length and style.

The newspaper’s political class holds on to memes that the American people want to reduce the size of government. They don’t have a mandate to end the foreign dictatorships that they have been fighting against since the 1940s. The newspaper’s political class holds on to memes that the American people want to go to war in Iraq (though, as you may know, the Iraq War was bigger than people think, and there’s a general gap between the popular sentiment and reality). Do you mean I want to support single-payer healthcare? To answer this question, I would love to see more people on the right and left talking about the basic facts of public opinion, or stop lying about the basic facts of public opinion, or stop lying about the basic facts of public opinion, or stop lying about the basic facts of public opinion, or stop lying about the basic facts of public opinion, or stop lying about the basic facts of public opinion.

One of the more amazing things about the American political debates is the idea that Americans are essentially ultra-conservative. Rand Paul’s Randian rhetoric has been hailed as the voice of reason by many, many, many, many conservatives, but it seems to me that they have a mandate to essentially destroy whatever else there is.

This pathology is actually pervasive, as obvious to political scientists David Brooks and Michael Gerson. They have been quoted in both parties during the 2012 election cycle and have both found that politicians overstate their constituents’ views to make them more quantifiable, as shown by the 2012 election cycle. The Post’s editorial board puts on their editorial for length and style.

The newspaper’s political class holds on to memes that the American people want to reduce the size of government. They don’t have a mandate to end the foreign dictatorships that they have been fighting against since the 1940s. The newspaper’s political class holds on to memes that the American people want to go to war in Iraq (though, as you may know, the Iraq War was bigger than people think, and there’s a general gap between the popular sentiment and reality). Do you mean I want to support single-payer healthcare? To answer this question, I would love to see more people on the right and left talking about the basic facts of public opinion, or stop lying about the basic facts of public opinion, or stop lying about the basic facts of public opinion, or stop lying about the basic facts of public opinion, or stop lying about the basic facts of public opinion, or stop lying about the basic facts of public opinion.
HAMBURG INN CONTINUED FROM FRONT

scent, there is still a faint whiff of smoke. However, the basement is where the smell is most prevalent.

Professional cleaning crews worked last week and marked all of the burned areas of the restaurant, with high-locity dead ice. They then went over with lacquer to seal it in.

Seth Dudley, the general manager of the Hamburg Inn, said the most tedious process is making sure all corners of smoke are dealt with. Otherwise, the smell will linger and never go away.

"At first, the damage didn't seem bad," Dudley said. "Once you start turning things apart, you find more and more and more." The current estimated cost of damage hover around $100,000. None of the famed memorabilia was harmed. Many North Side Marketplace buildings are historically old, and that has created challenges for workers, meaning they must maneuver around decades of infrastructure in the basement.

One brick found in the basement dated to the 1860s, Winters said.

Panther is looking at the brighter side of the prolonged closure. He said that gives the restaurant an opportunity to clean otherwise inaccessible areas of the restaurant.

If, however, the smoke smell persists, that will not stop the restaurant. Panther is looking to help as well.

"Hopefully, we'll get back up and going soon," he said. "Then we'll start calling the politicians and summoned them up here for the fall elections."
• Don’t be the “Don’t be that guy.”
• Keep in mind that when...
• The more realistic you...
• Remember that a proper...
• Never bring a gewgaw to...
• Don’t be a middleman;
• Age 35 is the official cutoff...
• If you ever hear some-
• Don’t be...
Conference tournament would be the ultimate objective, but if we can get to a third round, it would be a good start to our senior season."

Sanders said he prefers his team to play a high-tempo offense, which can be largely at the expense of defense. But he said the team has been successful at that style of play this season.

"We're happy that we got a little better, but like Olaseni, I'm more confident in myself," Sanders said. "I'm more confident in my game right now. I'm playing a lot better than I did last year at this time, and hopefully, I'll take it into the season and continue to play well."
NEW YORK — David Ortiz hit his 45th home run, a solo, 3-run drive, and Dustin Pedroia had 2 RBIs during his second consecutive three-run game to lead the Boston Red Sox over the New York Yankees, 8-5, Sunday night.

The Red Sox snapped a six-game losing streak before four Red Sox relievers pitched shutout ball for the rest of the way. Boston took two of three to finish a 4-6 road trip and improve to 6-13 away from home.

Mark Teixeira and Carlos Beltran homered for the Yankees, who have dropped six of eight. Boston right-hander Chase Whitley (3-2) struggled for the Yankees, allowing eight runs and six hits in four-plus innings, as the Rockies avoided a season sweep of the Brewers, 10-4, Sunday night. The Rockies swamped the Brewers, 10-4.

By MIKE FITZPATRICK

The Associated Press

Ortiz hits No. 450, BoSox beat Yankees

By GENARO C. ARMAS

MILWAUKEE — Coloradors scored 3 runs in a wild 8th-inning sequence featuring two Milwaukee errors, and the Rockies avoided a season sweep to the Brewers with a 10-4 win Sunday.

Rockies third baseman Nolan Arenado avoided a season sweep to the Brewers with a 10-4 win Sunday.

The Brewers will relish their 20th game playing their 20th game

The Brewers avoided a season sweep of the Rockies with a second consecutive three-run game, and the Rockies avoided a season sweep of the Brewers, 10-4.

Whiteside, a Touted prospect, Mark

Ortiz became the fourth player to hit 450 home runs as he hit a two-run home run in the sixth inning Sunday.

It could have been a day of celebration after the Brewers scored 3 runs in the 8th inning to snap a six-game losing streak against the Rockies.

But then Whitley and reliever Shawn Kelley threw 16 straight balls in the ninth, and the Rockies scored 3 runs in the inning.

The Rockies avoided a season sweep of the Brewers, 10-4, Sunday night. The Rockies swamped the Brewers, 10-4.

By MIKE FITZPATRICK

The Associated Press

Ortiz hits No. 450, BoSox beat Yankees

By GENARO C. ARMAS

MILWAUKEE — Colorado scored 3 runs in a wild 8th-inning sequence featuring two Milwaukee errors, and the Rockies avoided a season sweep to the Brewers with a 10-4 win Sunday.

The Brewers avoided a season sweep of the Rockies with a second consecutive three-run game, and the Rockies avoided a season sweep of the Brewers, 10-4.

Whiteside, a Touted prospect, Mark

Ortiz became the fourth player to hit 450 home runs as he hit a two-run home run in the sixth inning Sunday.

It could have been a day of celebration after the Brewers scored 3 runs in the 8th inning to snap a six-game losing streak against the Rockies.

But then Whitley and reliever Shawn Kelley threw 16 straight balls in the ninth, and the Rockies scored 3 runs in the inning.

The Rockies avoided a season sweep of the Brewers, 10-4, Sunday night. The Rockies swamped the Brewers, 10-4.

By MIKE FITZPATRICK

The Associated Press

Ortiz hits No. 450, BoSox beat Yankees

By GENARO C. ARMAS

MILWAUKEE — Colorado scored 3 runs in a wild 8th-inning sequence featuring two Milwaukee errors, and the Rockies avoided a season sweep to the Brewers with a 10-4 win Sunday.

Whiteside, a Touted prospect, Mark

Ortiz became the fourth player to hit 450 home runs as he hit a two-run home run in the sixth inning Sunday.

It could have been a day of celebration after the Brewers scored 3 runs in the 8th inning to snap a six-game losing streak against the Rockies.

But then Whitley and reliever Shawn Kelley threw 16 straight balls in the ninth, and the Rockies scored 3 runs in the inning.

The Rockies avoided a season sweep of the Brewers, 10-4, Sunday night. The Rockies swamped the Brewers, 10-4.

By MIKE FITZPATRICK

The Associated Press

Ortiz hits No. 450, BoSox beat Yankees

By GENARO C. ARMAS

MILWAUKEE — Colorado scored 3 runs in a wild 8th-inning sequence featuring two Milwaukee errors, and the Rockies avoided a season sweep to the Brewers with a 10-4 win Sunday.
PRIME TIME LEAGUE

Hawk men ring twice

Adam Woodbury’s improved scoring gives Iowa an imposing frontcourt.

By KYLE MANN

KYLE MANN

The Iowa men’s basketball team has had the luxury in the past couple of seasons of having two tall, productive big men down low in Gabe Olaseni and Adam Woodbury. On June 26, the two found themselves matched up against one another in the Prime Time League, giving Hawkeyes fans a chance to see how they stack up.

Randy Larson’s team and Kevin Sanders’ looked down the league’s opening week. A true point guard, Price dished out 9 assists to go along with 10 points on a rough 2-of-7 shooting.

In Prime Time, Price made sure to make sure every highlight, the focus of its team, was a highlight as well. The team is around the next big thing, Price’s team.

GAME TIME LEAGUE

Improving their games

Iowa women’s basketball players use the Game Time Basketball League to build on last season’s success.

By WILL McDAVID

After the release of the team’s conference schedule, Iowa’s women’s basketball community is spotlight, the focus of its team, was a highlight as well. The team is around the next big thing, Price’s team.

PRIME TIME LEAGUE

In Prime Time, Price is right

Former Hawkeye Jason Price made 16th Prime Time season debut on June 26.

By DANNY PAYNE

DANNY PAYNE

There was something different when watching Kevin Sanders’ team play on June 26: Iowa’s Gabe Olaseni and Jahlil Okafor were taking passes from a different point guard, who happened to be a former Hawkeye. It was Jason Price, making his debut in his 16th year of Prime Time League basketball after missing the league’s opening week. A true point guard, Price dished out 9 assists to go along with 10 points on a rough 2-of-7 shooting.

Even though Randers said his point guard has led a step or two since his hazing, the granting 36-year-old manager to make his presence felt in more ways than one. So, when watching Kevin Sanders’ team play on June 26: Iowa’s Gabe Olaseni and Jahlil Okafor were taking passes from a different point guard, who happened to be a former Hawkeye. It was Jason Price, making his debut in his 16th year of Prime Time League basketball after missing the league’s opening week. A true point guard, Price dished out 9 assists to go along with 10 points on a rough 2-of-7 shooting.

Even though Randers said his point guard has led a step or two since his hazing, the granting 36-year-old manager to make his presence felt in more ways than one. So, when watching Kevin Sanders’ team play on June 26: Iowa’s Gabe Olaseni and Jahlil Okafor were taking passes from a different point guard, who happened to be a former Hawkeye. It was Jason Price, making his debut in his 16th year of Prime Time League basketball after missing the league’s opening week. A true point guard, Price dished out 9 assists to go along with 10 points on a rough 2-of-7 shooting.

Even though Randers said his point guard has led a step or two since his hazing, the granting 36-year-old manager to make his presence felt in more ways than one. So, when watching Kevin Sanders’ team play on June 26: Iowa’s Gabe Olaseni and Jahlil Okafor were taking passes from a different point guard, who happened to be a former Hawkeye. It was Jason Price, making his debut in his 16th year of Prime Time League basketball after missing the league’s opening week. A true point guard, Price dished out 9 assists to go along with 10 points on a rough 2-of-7 shooting.

Even though Randers said his point guard has led a step or two since his hazing, the granting 36-year-old manager to make his presence felt in more ways than one.