Notice.

The S. T. L. Minstrel and Concert Co. will give an entertainment at Tipton, Friday evening, Feb. 5, '94. The program consists of the best parts of those given last spring with the addition of several entirely new and original features.

An extension party will be made up here to go over with the troop. The rate is $2.50, including round trip R. K. R., supper, lodging and breakfast, and admission to Opera House. Excursionists leave here at 3 p.m. Friday, and return at 9 a.m. Saturday.

These wishing to go please leave their names with W. T. Chantland, H. F. Kallenberg, W. Mason, or W. H. Ogburn.

Saturday's Run.

Instead of the usual hay and roundhouse Saturday afternoon, a short run of about a mile and a half was taken by Bailey, L. E., Lemah, L. D., White, W. J., and Emy, W. All but White surprised on the split. Ordering in the usual order: Bailey, 1st; Emy, 2nd; Newhall, 3rd; Lemah, 4th, White, 5th. The time was about 8 minutes. It is desired that more men take part in these races, which occupy but a few minutes time each Saturday afternoon, meeting at 3 o'clock at Close Hall.

College Notes.

Of the class of '93, at Yale, 82 are studying law.

The Soc. Law class of the University of Michigan, have decided to publish an annual and have named it "To-Wilt."

Thomas Stanford, of Melbourne Australia, is to receive a legacy of $500,000 from his deceased brother which is increased by an equal sum of his own money he will devote to a library to be named after him.

The Cornell University in considering the advisability of abolishing the degrees of Ph. B. and B. L. The legislature, the trustees made mutual provisions for education. Since the school property became free from taxation, and professors and students free from taxation and military duty.

Of the 974 graduates of Vassar, 360 are engaged in teaching.

A recent address of Dr. R. W. Ashburn, as reported in the Harvard Crimson, we quote the fol-

There are no cows, no butter, no common milk, no can of fruits or vegetables, not a potato or fresh vegetable, not a pound of bran or bran of can or creamed meat, or any sugar, syrup, or flour, or in short anything except fish or dry dealing meat. No oil, no candles, no stores, no books, no companionship, nor "no mail." - Frank Russell.

Rehorperian.

A fair sized audience greeted the program presented by the Rehorperian society, Saturday evening.

The program was opened by a declamation, "The Boot Rara," by Helen Stewart, '95. This was well received and closed the attention of the audience.

Theresa A. Peet, '95, in a speech on "The Mission of the Novel," gave her subject a clear interpretation, speaking of the ideal novel, and the historical novel, and the commercial offices performed by each. It was one of the best numbers of the evening.

The debate was on the question: "Are we carrying philanthropy to the edge." Martha Erady, '96, opened the old debate, her points well taken, but it was difficult for those in the rear of the room to hear. Cora Doane, '96, was the last speaker on the negative. Her arguments were clear and forcible, and well presented. Dave Kasserman, '97, closed the argument for the affirmative, her points were well-covered. Gertrude Howell, '98, was the last speaker, her arguments were clear, but they were not presented in a favorable manner.

The debate was decided in favor of the negative.

Mr. Buder favored the society, with a $5 that received a merited applause.

Anna Robinson, '95, gave a translation of Hein's "Der Habakuk," which was well-written but too long.

The declamation "Nashing the fleeting moments of life," by Alice McKee, was very well given; her gestures being exceptional appropriate.

A beautifully colored duct duct by Misses McFarland, closed the program.

Pedagogical Seminary.

At the meeting of the Pedagogical Seminary, Saturday morning, a paper was read by Rose Henderson on Child Study in the State Normal School at Worcester, Mass.; which treated of the observation of children taken in connection with Psychology.

M. E. Lambe gave a portion of his report on the "Permanent School Funds," beginning his paper by speaking of the interests taken in education by the colonists of Massachusetts, and the means provided for college education. After the reading, the States made several provisions for education, school property became free from taxation, and professors and students free from taxation and military duty.

The 97 graduate of Vassar's, 360 are engaged in teaching.
