Conversation Recital.
A rare treat was presented to the lovers of music who attended the preparatory recital given by Miss Chase at the Congregational Church, Wednesday evening. In the conver-sateur she gives of the sort a short sketch of the life and works of each composer before reading a selection from his works. Miss Chase had arranged her program in chronological order, beginning with Bach, the father of modern music, and coming down through Schumann, Beethoven, Dvořák, and Wagner, to the composer of the present day. Miss Chase's masterly execution of the representative sections of the works of these composers was a source of the greatest delight to her highly pleased appreciative audience. She was assisted by Miss Larabee, who by her masterful rendering of Beethoven's sixth violin sonata, and of the violin obligato in the song from Wagner's Tristan, which called forth the unbounded enthusiasm of her auditors.

The following was the programme: Saturday, 10. WALTzes, Temp. Claritoon, A. H. Underwood, 10 Fagots, 16 French Horns, 32 French Horns
16 French Horns, 24 French Horns.

content. Already in the windmill we see a crude beginning to this human mystery, but the end is not yet.
We are proud to point to the achievement of the University along this line.
For many centuries men have been experimenting for some means by which they might support themsever in the air; earth and sky, and now, when scientists are well high discouraged, the State University of Iowa comes forward with suggestions that may solve the problem.
The students of the electrical laboratory under the direction of their efficient instructors, have been testing the practicability of what is called "air-cycling." It has been found that, with a proper frame-work, air can be utilized, even under normal pressure, to support a mass of considerable weight. This seems to be the goal of the discovery. The appatratus is used to demonstrate this important fact in fully used and, though capable of being much improved, works strongly quite satisfactedly from an economical standpoint.

The discovery was made quite acidently and speaks well for the plausibility of the discoveries. The narrative which once provided precepts for the laboratory students,
