Zetagathian.

In pursuance to a call issued by the prime movers in the Populist ranks, notable representatives of this rapidly growing party from all sections of the United States assembled in convention at Zetagathian Hall, last Friday evening, to discuss the state of the country and to propose measures for its relief from the tyrannous rule of the "gold bug of Wall Street." Among the more notable Populists present were Senator Wolcott (Kinmonth), Senator Pfeffer (Williams), Weaver (Pratt), J. Simpson (VanLaw), Ex-Gov. Waite (Hagemann), Gov. Holcomb (Davis), Senator Jones (Rowell), and Ignatius Donnelly (Keefe).

Shortly after 8 o'clock Senator Wolcott called the meeting to order, and made a short address welcoming the delegates to his city. As he concluded he placed in nomination the name of Jeremiah Simpson for temporary chairman; the nomination was quickly seconded and the election made unanimous amid the most vociferous applause of the convention. Simpson took the chair and made a ringing speech. He strongly arraigned the money interests which control our government, and pleaded earnestly for the rights of labor everywhere. Mr. Simpson's speech was frequently interrupted by applause.

The convention now proceeded with the work of organization. Committees on permanent organization and on resolutions were appointed. While these committees were out at work loud calls were made upon Senator Wolcott for a speech on silver. The senator responded in a stirring address in which he ably discussed the money question. He strongly advocated free silver, and showed the need of a new party—a Populist party—to carry out reforms for the benefit of the laborer and farmer. The committee on permanent organization now reported and recommended James B. Weaver, of Iowa for permanent chairman, and Bell, of Colorado (Thomas) for Secretary. This report was unanimously adopted. Weaver was called to the chair, and eloquently thanked the convention for the honor that had been conferred upon him.

The interest of the convention now centered about the next order of business—the report of the committee on resolutions. The resolutions that were offered were strong and bitter in their denunciation of the old parties, and the control of the "gold bug;" they demanded restriction upon the "ravenous" trusts and corporations, and greater freedom and liberty for labor; they denounced our present financial systems and demanded more money and a free and unlimited coinage of silver "at 16 to 1."

Among others were planks demanding universal suffrage, and a governmental department for promoting dress reforms among women. The discussion of these planks gave rise to considerable merriment.

After an hour's consideration of the resolutions, during which time eloquent speeches were made by Holcomb, Pfeffer, Donnelly, Waite, Teller (Dunlap), Stewart (Guthrie), and Newlands, they were unanimously adopted, and for a few minutes populist yells and cheers rang throughout the hall.

The most eloquent address of the evening was made by Senator Pfeffer (Williams) in presenting to the convention the name of James B. Weaver as the next Populist candidate for president. This nomination was overwhelmingly adopted. Immediately after this a motion for adjournment prevailed and the convention was dissolved.

This was one of the most successful programs that the Zets have presented this year, and brought out their ability as "political" speakers. A large audience crowded the hall.

Baconian.

Being the last session of the school year last Friday evening was devoted to voluntary reports.

Dr. Calvin was the first to respond with a short talk on the elevation and relief of continents. There are several theories as to the cause, the more modern of which is that it is due to lightness; the earth in cooling shrinks causing a wrinkling of the crust, being too large. There are many traces of old beaches to be found way above present sea level, indicating that an upward movement of crust must have taken place, due to adjustment under strain. There are other more remote evidences, but not so easy to trace; when the crust is raised drainage streams are established which continue to cut down until they reach a certain limit, called base level, then they commence to widen their channels until eventually all the divides are cut away and the region is reduced to a peneplain, but by outlines which remain we can see that the region must have been higher; again we find streams having cut below this peneplain indicating also an upward movement. Sometimes we find near the mouth of streams a cut of forty or fifty feet, below the peneplain, silted up again, indicating a subsidence; this may be only apparent and due to other causes, although we find on the New Jersey and New England coast seemingly more proofs.

Dr. Andrews spoke of the phenomena of elasticity as bearing on the thermometric measurements of temperature. In heating a thermometer glass and mercury both will of course expand; but cooling again the mercury becomes as before while the glass, on the other hand, remains larger, resulting in the mercury standing lower. If, however, the temperature is kept constant the glass will decrease until the mercury stands higher than before. These facts introduce a complexity into the exact measurement of temperature; when first made the thermometers are largest and they shrink continually, but not steadily, owing to variation in temperature. Thermometers for careful measurements are now tested before putting the divisions on the stem for these reasons. The changes in different kinds of glass vary also. Tests made by the German government have resulted in their having a glass which changes much less.

Mr. Arner spoke of the municipal control of electric lighting plants, in which he showed that it is quite an open question whether municipal control is more favorable than private.

Professor Currier spoke on the cleanliness of the ancients as compared with ourselves. People ask him "is it true that the old Romans were so cleanly, or is their cleanliness overrated; and what provisions had they for water supply?" Statistics show that the million people of Rome received many times more gallons of water per capita than those of any modern city, and of the very best quality, being brought in over viaducts from neighboring springs, etc. They would not have been satisfied with the quality of water which we get. The public baths, to which admission cost but one-quarter cent, some free, could accommodate sixty thousand people at one time; and besides this there were all the private. Their clothing was in itself of a more cleanly kind, and they were constantly changing. Their drainage system was excellent. In their houses they had the advantage of polished wood or mosaic floors in place of the dust-collecting carpets. Beyond a doubt no modern community can compare with Rome in these respects.

Professor Veblen followed on telegraphy without wires. Communication was established between an island, three and one half miles off shore, and the mainland; lines were put up along either shore, parallel to each other, and by means of pulsating alternating currents messages were sent to a station about fourteen miles inland. This is the first authentic case of communication without conductors, although many experiments have been tried.

Professor Weld spoke on the recent discovery of a second satellite of Neptune and the especial difficulties involved in the search.

Professor Jameson, apropos to Professor Currier's remarks, told of the discovery of an old Roman built tunnel through a certain mountain in northern Africa by a party of engineers making surveys for an identical drainage tunnel through the mountain. They hit upon this old one in exactly the correct location for their purpose and the same is now in use.

Dr. Calvin called attention to the invasion of Iowa by a new species of meadow lark called the Western Meadow Lark. It differs mostly from the native in its song, which is louder and more melodious. It will crowd out the native as they cannot live together. He also remarked on the scarcity of bluebirds and other spring birds. They were plentiful last fall, and the surmise is that the severe storms in the south have destroyed them.

Colleges to Combine

Baptist colleges and academies are preparing to come under the wing of the University of Chicago. Dr. Harper's plan of affiliation is gaining favor and foothold in the northwest. There is a strong probability that as many as a dozen institutions will affiliate with the university this year.

Presidents of the leading Baptist colleges and academies in the northwest held a conference at the university last week. They did not meet solely to consider affiliation, but this was discussed in detail. The presidents are most favorably impressed with the scheme. The conference appointed a committee, which returned a favorable report.

The colleges and academies represented at the conference were: Franklin college, by President Stott; Des Moines college, by President Stetson; Kalamazoo college, by President Slocum; Shurtleff college, by President De Bois; Grand Island college, Nebraska, by President Sunderland; Ottawa college, Kansas, by President Colgrove; Wayland Academy, Wisconsin, by President Burchard; Pillsbury Academy, Minnesota, by President Abernethy, and one or two others.

Whatever Chicago University does in the Baptist line is apt to be imitated in a large degree by Northwestern University among Methodist institutions.—Cardinal.

To-morrow evening will occur the Northern Oratorical League Contest at the Opera House. This will undoubtedly be the last literary entertainment of importance that we will have an opportunity of attending this year until commencement time. It will also be the only opportunity afforded the people of this city to attend a contest of this league for six years at least, so that it behooves every student as well as many of the city people to come out and hear this contest. The price for admission has been fixed at fifty cents, and at this price it will require a large attendance to meet the necessary expenses of the league. We do not hesitate to pay that amount to attend many other entertainments which are no more worthy of our attendance than this. A large attendance is desired not only to encourage the speakers but to aid the league financially. We feel confident that no one will go away feeling that he has not been well paid for attending.

Game With Cornell Postponed.

The ball game which was to have been played between Cornell and S. U. I. to-morrow has been postponed until May 15. A lady living near Cornell's athletic grounds is dangerously ill and the noise which usually attends a game might seriously injure her condition. The Cornell team could not be induced to play here Friday so they forfeited forty dollars to our team to be applied on the trip to Ames. Otherwise our team would have gone direct to Ames from Cornell. The game with Ames will occur May 4.

Notice.

The track team will not be selected till the week before May 18, Dual Meet Day. Then the three best men in each event will be on the team. I would like to see a few more candidates in each event.

COMMITTEE.

The will of the late General George W. Cullom gives to West Point a legacy of $250,000 for the erection of a memorial building.

There is more catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for testimonials. Address.

LATEST STYLE HATS AND FURNISHING GOODS AT BLOOM & MAYERS.

The class in Criminal Law took their examination Tuesday afternoon.

W. D. Lovell, '92, now of the firm of Crellin & Lovell, of Des Moines, was in the city yesterday.

Rev. Dr. A. C. Smith, President of Parsons College, Fairfield, Iowa, will deliver the baccalaureate sermon before the graduating class, Sunday, June 9.

Two members of our Medical Faculty, Dr. Woods Hutchinson and Dr. Gersham H. Hill, will deliver addresses before the annual meeting of the National Medical Association, to be held in Baltimore, Md., soon.

Professor G. T. W. Patrick has been appointed by Governor Jackson as one of the fifteen delegates from this state to the national conference of charities and corrections, to be held in New Haven Conn., May 24-30.

The May number of the Midland contains an excellent sketch on "The Switzerland of Iowa," by Professor Samuel Calvin. The article is well illustrated with cuts from photographs which the Professor took himself.

Next week instructor Beardsley's class in Classical Economy will discuss Monometalism and Bimetallism in a general debate. Leaders have been chosen for the two sides and the discussion will undoubtedly prove valuable and interesting.

Iowa Historical Record.

The last issue of the Iowa Historical record, published by the State Historical Society, is extremely interesting to friends of the University. The first article is a sketch of Amos Dean, LL. D., the first president of our University. It also contains a brief sketch of the lives of a number of alumni of the State University in public life, collected by Professor Jas. A. Rohbach. Both of the above named articles will be of great interest to the student who is unacquainted with the early history of the University and her students. The pamphlet also contains a beautiful poem written by Mrs. Isadore Baker as a tribute of affection to the life of Mrs. Hellen Cox Fairchild, whose musical attainments were so much appreciated in this city.

College Notes.

A minstrel club has been organized at the University of Chicago.

The Sophomores won the first place at Harvard in the class games.

There are now over 40,000 women in the various colleges of America.

The law school course at Yale has been extended from two to three years.

There is a possibility that Wisconsin's crew will meet the University of Pennsylvania.

In the joint debate between Ann Arbor and Evanston the latter institution was victorious.

A new course in laboratory practice in psychology will be offered for undergraduates at Yale next year.

Bicycle races may be eliminated from the program of the Mott Haven games. A college bicycling league is proposed instead.

A new athletic field has been completed at Georgetown University. The field is 580 feet long and 390 feet wide. A quarter mile track surrounds it.

There are in the Yale Trophy room forty-seven base balls won in the games played with Princeton; forty-six in games with Harvard; and fourteen in games in Pennsylvania.
