NO. 80

WILL CALL US.

Adjutant General to Call on Colleges for Volunteers.

MUST ENLIST AS AN INDEPENDENT VOLUNTEER ORGANIZATION.

The State authorities have definitely decided to call on the University and other college battalions for volunteers in case the guard does not make up the quota asked of Iowa by the President. It is expected that the Guard will not make up the required quota. The student battalions will not be called upon as battalions, but the individuals in the battalions will be asked to enlist with the State troops.

The batteries will not be called, no volunteer artillery being required. We have this statement direct from the Adjutant General, and it is authorized.

Hurrah for the Faculty.

The following resolution has been passed by the Faculty:
"Resolved, that all members of the Senior class now in good standing, who enter the services of their country, in the army or navy during the present term, shall not thereby be prevented from graduating in June."

ATHLETIC BENEFIT.

GRAND PROGRAM AT ST. BRENDEN'S HALL SUNDAY EVENING, APRIL 24TH.

Students and citizens, you are cordially invited. Let everybody come. Robert R. McBeth, the eloquent Junior Law, will deliver his masterly oration on the "Nobler Character." H. W. Hanson, in his inimitable manner, will declaim "Webster's Reply to Hayne." Senator Tyer, the humorous declaimer of the Hammond Law Senate, and M. V. Boddy, Irving's Freshman impersonator, will render choice selections. Have you heard Wesley Holt recite from Julius Caesar? Come early, get a good seat and enjoy yourself. Plenty of fine music. Albert W. Hamann will preside. Admission ten cents.

A Noble Life Cosed.

Dr. Elizabeth Hess, after nearly a year and a half of suffering—though constantly at work at her profession—passed away Thursday morning, after having undergone a dangerous operation for the removal of an abscess on the brain, which took place the first of the week, and from which she never rallied.

Dr. Hess graduated in the Normal Department of the University in 1868, and after teaching a year or so, was very sick for months with typhoid fever. At that time her feet were very near the dark waters, but by almost a miracle she recovered, and her attention was then turned to medicine. She entered the Medical Department and graduated therefrom in 1874. She at once commenced practice here at her home, and was not without honor. She very soon had a good practice, and for twenty-four years has labored in her profession, carrying good cheer to the sorrowing, ease and comfort to the suffering, and health to the sick, and now in the full fruition of a useful and happy life, she closes her earthly career.

Many homes will miss her sadly; many friends will long for the sweet music of her hushed voice; the Phi Phi fraternity, of which she was a member, will no longer receive her kindly help and good advice, and the loss to her immediate family seems too sad.

For years her strong arms have held back a dear, frail old mother from the death shadows. The sympathy of numerous friends go out to the mother and to all her people, and they mourn with them the loss of one so much needed, so much loved.

A Volunteer Company.

The patriotic spirit displayed at the University has crystallized into a company of volunteers to go to the front at once. Captains Soleman and Frailey are the leaders of the movement, and many of the boys have already enlisted, and many more are waiting for consent from home before signing the list. The company, while composed of University men, is an independent organization. Those who have signed are:

J. R. Frailey.

LAST GAME.

CEDAR RAPIDS AGAIN DEFEATS S. U. I.

Once more the weather was unsuitable to a ball game, and in the mud and puddles of water that covered the diamond, the two teams met for the last time. The spectators shivered in their overcoats or under umbrellas, while the players slipped and rolled in the treacherous mud.

The game was probably the poorest of the season, owing largely to the condition of the grounds.

The features were O'Connor's home run, Williams' put out at second, and a number of unpardonable errors.

The weakness of the S. U. I. team was shown to be in running bases. Time and again men would reach first or second only to be put out in attempting to steal to the next bag.

On the whole it has been good practice for the boys, and will enable O'Connor to pick the team for our big games.

Murphy was hit by a pitched ball, and his place was taken by Goodenough. While sliding to second Remley injured his shoulder and was compelled to leave the game, Johnson taking his place.

The tabulated score was:

CEDAR RAPIDS	R	H	P	A	E

S. U. I. SHUT OUT.

THE CEDAR RAPIDS TEAM ADMINISTERS ANOTHER DEFEAT.

The weather was again responsible for the small crowd that gathered at the ball park to witness the third of the games with the Cedar Rapids team. Captain O'Connor made several changes in the players, giving all the boys a chance. Hurst was in the box and pitched a good, steady game. Remley was on second, O'Connor on first, Goodenough in left field, and Johnson behind the bat.

On the whole the game was hardly up to the previous two, but several "grand-stand" plays were made.

Following is the tabulated score:

our Duty.

As is generally known, the battalion recently volunteered its services to the Governor in case such services were needed in the coming conflict. The movement was made with all sincerity and good faith, and partly because the Governor himself suggested that he would like to know the sentiment of the battalion in this regard. Our cadets here did only what has been done in every educational institution of any importance in the country. The same movement in Yale, Harvard, Princeton, in fact in all the universities and colleges, has been regarded by students and Faculty as a patriotic and commendable one.

But Iowa University is unique—it has ever been unique and original in its way. Here is the sequel to the battalion's act: Dean Currier, in the absence of President Schaeffer, wrote to Governor Shaw, and implored him to pay no attention to the battalion's action. He informed the Governor that most of the men were minors—hence did not know what they were doing; that they were under the "care" of the Faculty; that many signed the several petitions who did not want to; that irate parents were expostulating, and last but not least, that if the request was not granted it would sweep away the very flower of our American youth. The whole letter inferred that it was a thoughtless, puerile vagary of a band of school-boys. And then the Governor replied. His epistle was brief and "diplomatic," as his communications always are. It teemed with real statesmanship. He said that calling out the young men of the colleges was the last thing he would think of doing—that was all he asserted.

The above correspondence is eloquent with curious and interesting facts. The attitude of the Governor is especially interesting. He asked for the battalion's sentiment, and when he got it, he gravely asserted that he never intended to use their services at all. In ordinary men such a performance is sometimes given a rather expressive title. But the Governor—well he has already done so many queer things as regards S. U. I. that we have long ere now ceased to marvel.

The sentiment expressed in the Dean's letter is also original. It must be gratifying for the men who volunteered to know that they are mere school boys, and not accountable for their acts. It must be gratifying to have this high price set upon their patriotism; it is certainly pleasurable to know that we are going to have a policy here that is strictly our own, and that we will not ape such little and unthinking schools as Yale and Harvard and Cornell University. They don't reflect public sentiment—Iowa does.

With the crisis confronting us today we do not believe that the American student has any more right to hold back and refrain from enlisting his services than has any other American citizen. Patriotism is patriotism, whether it be found in coal heaver or millionaire, and the student owes as much, perhaps more, to his country than does any else. This talk about sweeping away the flower of the American youth, merely because a few college students enlist, ought to be more gratifying to the youth involved than it is undeniable in fact. The idea makes better material for High School orations than it does for solid argument. It is barely possible that even if a few embryo Websters, Clays and Lincolns be "swept away" the country will manage to wag on a few years yet before tottering to destruction.

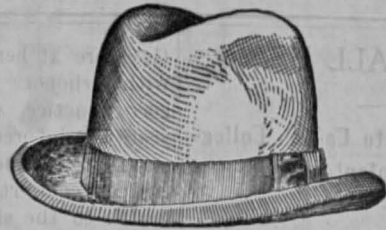

And then, why do we have military drill at S. U. I? Is it merely for ornament, or is it for exercise? Is the government of the United States paying simply to perpetuate a sham? Is that the intention of the powers that be? If so, there are easier and more profitable ways to defraud the United States. If drill is for ornament it might just as well be abolished now. If it is for exercise, there are far easier and more pleasant means of taking that. If drill is meant to give our students a knowledge of military science, as the authorities claim when there is no danger of war, why not be honest now? Why not make use of what the Faculty forces us to learn—is not that what they intend it for? If not, why carry on a sham any longer?

We may be mistaken, and our convictions may be wrongly placed, but they are honestly and sincerely expressed. We can not conceive that patriotism and a decrease in the "total attendance at S. U. I. have any connection whatsoever. It is not so considered in other schools, and the students don't consider it that way here. The duty that confronts the citizenship of America is the duty of American students, first and foremost, and the student intends to perform his part.
