MY LADY'S RING

THE NEW COMEDY PLAY OF MISS ALICE BROWN

Katherine Jewell Everts Presents the Play Written Especially For Her

Katherine Jewell Everts won new friends and charmed old ones again in presentation of, "My Lady's Ring" at the opera house last night. The play was written especially for her by the talented young authoress, Miss Alice Brown. It is a clean-cut comedy, well suited to Miss Everts' style. The characters are few and strong. The time is modern. The scene is laid in sunny France at Nice. The play is based upon an anonymous story from Temple Bar. The characters are Russian, Italian, and French.

In introducing the speaker, Professor Gordon said, "There was little need of introducing Miss Everts; but he would take the opportunity to explain his purpose in the course. For I assure you I have a purpose. The primary object is to place before the students of the public speaking courses examples of the different styles. To this aim I secured one who believes that the true reader must read: Bertha Kunz Baker. Then Samuel Arthur King recently brought to you the actor's conception. The school of impersonators was represented by Leland T. Powers, and will be tonight by Miss Everts. I assure you that William Jennings Bryan will be here. Edmund Bourke Cochrane is never guaranteed, yet I still believe we will be able to secure him."

Katherine Jewell Everts is too well known to Iowa City audiences to need much comment. Julie Marlow, says of her, "I have heard a great many people read, but can safely say you are among the few, very few that I have really enjoyed." Nature has richly endowed her. Attractive in person and personality, gifted with a rich musical voice, she added to this, thorough and systematic training. So thorough has been the training that she shows no training, and is perfectly natural. To an excellent interpretation she adds a dramatic power of rendition. Tonight Miss Everts will appear in the Spanish Gypsy by Eliot.

The front row of the balcony was occupied by the Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority of which Miss Everts is a member. Miss Everts is an alumna of the Minnesota Chapter. While in the city last year, she made many friends among members of the Iowa chapter. Their attendance in body last night complimented her ability as a reader, and showed the high esteem in which she was held as a sister.

Polygon meets this evening with Miss Jacobs.

Phi Rho Sigma will hold a smoker at its hall tomorrow evening.

Sophomore Debaters.

The sophomore debaters of Zet and Irving have picked a question and chosen sides. The subject of discussion will be "Resolved that railway freight rates in the United States should be fixed by federal authority." The Zets submitted the question and Irving chose to uphold the affirmative. The Irving debaters are B. S. Allen, J. E. Goodwin and A. C. Gordon, and Zetagathian is represented by Ray Randall, F. E. Snedcor and S. E. Skelly. The debate will be held during March.

TODAY'S ASSEMBLY

Miss Everts Speaks Upon Her Chosen Profession

Katherine Jewell Everts gave an informal talk at assembly this morning. "It is difficult to talk informally" she said, "when I have such a formal background. Therein lies one of the great dangers in the art of expression. I freely confess to you there is a danger. One can become so dependent upon the words and thoughts of another, that he has none of his own. His brain becomes deadened and he cannot express a thought. Some even go so far that they have no thoughts to express.

"I always delight in asking questions; and one of the first questions I ask any one, who is in a different profession than my own, is why are you following it? That is no doubt the question you would all ask me. The chief reason is because I like it. In theory I have always thought that one who properly interpreted and expressed glowing periods, must himself be capable of thinking them. Practically I have found this is not true.

"No matter what your profession may be you must have a creed. You must have one definite aim and object. If people know what you are working for they will help you. I have formulated a creed for my own profession. But I found that another had already anticipated me. Whenever I have been struck with a great thought I have found as doubtless you all have that some one else has already thought it out. My creed I found voiced by Edmund Roland Sill."

Miss Everts then read two selections from Sill, which set forth her faith.

Yale's endowment fund now amounts to $6,806,000.

California is to secure an appropriation of $500,000 from the legislature.

A modern philosopher says you seldom see real concentration until you observe the students reading the notices on the bulletin board. They will stand and blockade the hall and nothing less than a washout, a landslide, or flood, will move them.

CLASS YELLS

What the Various Classes Yell at Scraps and Celebrations

After much effort the following slogans and battle cries have been collected. The junior laws have not as yet adopted a yell. The 1906 liberal arts class have favorably considered the yell printed below and may adopt it. Some of these yells would properly fall within Sam T. Clover's definition of news, as that which has not been heard of before and is of interest to the public.

The medical classes have no individual yells. What yells have been given were improvised for the occasion and have slipped the memory of those who gave them.

Senior Societies

Are senior societies of any value to the university or to the class? The question has been answered with favors by the girls and answered with disfavor or, totally ignored by the boys. For a number of years the girls have had strong societies. These societies have been a source of temporary pleasure, but they have left no permanent effect. The organization has died with the class that brought it forth. There should be some means of perpetuating the society. Last year the boys society made an attempt, but it failed in its making. Senior societies can be of value. They should however have a means of perpetuating the organization. Moreover, to be most effective, membership cannot be promiscuous. It must be limited to those who have done something. Scholarship alone cannot be the test. Digs, never using their scholarship, can be of no value. Those who have used their brains or brawn for the honor of their class and the variety, should compose these societies.

University circles will always welcome Katherine Jewell Everts. She needs little advertising to a university audience. Those who have once heard her will hear her again. An announcement of her coming is all that is needed. To those, who have never heard her, we cannot recommend her two highly. She is one of the most popular reciters before the American people today.

In this issue, we run a number of the class yells. The yells of the other colleges and classes will be run this week. These class yells are not generally known, even to the members of the class. They should be as well known as the university yell. They help to keep up class spirit, and class spirit is but the child of university spirit.

Amusements

On next Friday evening, January 30, that charming actress, "Mary Elizabeth Forbes" and her strong supporting company, will appear at the opera house in Clyde Fitch's most enthusiastic play, "Barbara Frietchie," universally described as the most consistent and stirring American war drama ever written, and of which it is said has a record of having played to larger gross receipts than any American play produced during the past ten years.

The theatre-goer who likes excitement and thrill will have an opportunity to satisfy all his desires in that direction at the opera house next Monday, February 2, when Percy Williams' big scenic and spectacular production of the New American Comedy melodrama, "Tracy, the Outlaw," will be the attraction. While the play is full of intensely exciting situations, still there is a great amount of pure comedy, strong heart interest, and a number of bright specialties, all going to make a play to please all kinds of people.

Those who saw Miss Adelaide Thurston when she played "Lady Babbie" in "The Little Minister" several seasons ago, and last year in "Sweet Clover," will remember what a pretty and clever little actress she was. Mr. Col-dren has arranged with her and her fine company to appear here soon in "A Cozy Corner," which has been making a big hit every where they have appeared.
