MUST PLAY BALL

ILLINOIS WILL BE A HARD PROPOSITION

Iowa Can Win if the Team Plays Its Best—If the Team Loafs We Will Lose

Iowa's chance of winning against Illinois depends on the varsity playing the game it can play.

If the team plays the game it has played in practice the past two weeks, Iowa will win.

Such work as was done in the Simpson game will mean Illinois victory by ten points at least.

A duplicate of the work done in the Missouri game will mean Illinois victory by forty points.

The Iowa team has been loafing along through its games this season, playing about one in three as if it was trying. Saturday comes the third game and the varsity ought to make good. Not so good as it would have been able to make if it had continued its improvement after the Drake game and worked steadily. Nor even so good as it could have made if it had reformed after the Nebraska game and played the game, it could as well have played against Simpson and Missouri. But still a very good game can be played by the team and Saturday is practically its last chance.

Whatever the varsity does in the Illinois game Saturday will put a mark upon the season. If it wins, the season will end in comparative glory. If it loses, in comparative gloom, considerable less gloomy than last year it is true, but still gloomy, because the varsity had it in it to defeat the Illini.

ILLINOIS MUST BE DEFEATED

Every student must be a rooter. Every man must do his part. The Illini must be downed Saturday.

Dr. C. E. Seashore will lecture at Garner, today and at Clear Lake, Friday. Both lectures are numbers in a university extension course.

Edda will meet in the Physics lecture room Saturday evening. John Hexom, L. G. Johnson and Jens Christensen, will take part in the program.

Prof. B. Shimek has gone to New Mexico to finish the field work in the desert begun last summer by Prof. Shimek and Prof. Macbride. On his return he will speak, November 27, at Wilson, Kansas on "The Practicability of Higher Education."

Prof. Macbride will discuss practical education at Oskaloosa tomorrow night. This with the meeting at Drake is part of a so called "week of education," in which at various meetings over the state leading educational topics will be discussed.

Talbot Gives to Museum

The university museum is in receipt of a rare specimen in the shape of a Scoter, a duck which is hardly ever seen in Iowa, let alone saved for a collection. The donor is Mr. Talbot of Sioux City, who at one time gave the museum a very valuable collection.

New Corals for Museum

Professor C. C. Nutting has recently undertaken to report on the flexible corals collected on the government expedition to Alaska. Iowa's museum, which is one of the very best in the west, will be fortunate in receiving the first series of duplicates coming from this collection. The university's collection of corals is already a good one and this addition will be quite a prize.

Conference of Education

At the meeting of the conference of college and secondary education, which will be held in Des Moines, November 27, several university men will appear on the program. President MacLean will preside and F. C. Ensign and Professor Main of Iowa College will state the purpose of the conference. Prof. Bolton will give some facts regarding entrance requirements and Dr. J. F. Brown will present the report of the committee on uniform high school course of study in English.

The competitive shoot for the commandant's medal was held this afternoon on the university range.

President and Mrs. MacLean will entertain the children of the members of the faculty at a children's party.

Prof. Potter is spending the week inspecting high schools in the southern part of the state and Miss Hoffman is in charge of his classes.

Mrs. William Hubers and daughters Miss Olga and Lillian Hubers of Davenport will attend the Iowa-Illinois game Saturday and visit with the former's son, Henry Hubers of the college of liberal arts.

John H. Booth, the winner of the Drake Oratorical Contest, has been charged with plagiarism. The authorities substantiated the charge and requested him to return the prize money and make a public acknowledgement. His oration "The Sublimity of Conviction" in parts closely paralleled passages in "Portraits and Principles."

The coroner's verdict in the Purdue special train wreck was announced today. It practically exonerates all officials of the Big Four road except the chief train dispatcher of the Chicago division; at Kankakee, Illinois, who the coroner says, sent no orders to the Indianapolis yard master. The engineers of the wrecked trains are held blameless.

From Alumni

THE IOWAN is a great force in keeping the alumni in touch with each other.

CLIFFORD V. COX '01, L. '03, Newton, Iowa.

The alumni feature of the IOWAN for the past two years has been an enjoyable feature of the paper.

The IOWAN is now in the front rank of the college dailies and all alumni should subscribe for it. I look forward to its arrival each day with pleasure.

T. W. KLINGENBERG, L. '98, Everett, Washington.

The sample of the IOWAN sent me interested me and recalled many pleasant memories which we sometimes forget after we have left the University and removed to some neighboring state and actively engaged in business. An Appeal to Mr. Weatherman

Oh! please Mr. Weatherman won't you turn on the hot air? What's the matter with your furnace? If you haven't got the price to buy the coal, we will gladly furnish it. You seem to have had it in for us the most of the year, but if you will help us next Saturday, we will forgive the past. Don't you know that this is no football weather? You had better get a book on football etiquette, and find out what is the proper thing for you to do on such occasions. Just loosen up a little in the next two days and we will be yours truly—the football men of the middle west.

Fates of the pigskin known fore'er;
Guides of the far-famed Rugby line;
Upon whose ears the victor's cheer
I cadence like the victim's whine—
Come, help us clear away this fret,
And skin 'em yet—And skin 'em yet.
The tumult and the shouting rise;
The padded warriors stand apart;
Toward them are turned a thousand eyes;
There grows an eagerness at heart.
I charge you now last you forget—
We'll skin 'em yet—We'll skin 'em yet.
Old Illinois boasts loud today;
Bright burns enthusiasm's fire;
But lo, her hope of yesterday,
Will find a grave in Iowa's mire.
Our eyes on victory's wreath are set—
We'll skin 'em yet—We'll skin 'em yet!

Poor souls who deign to put their trust
In glorious deeds of long ago;
Their hopes are built on crumbling
dust;
They have not reckoned with their foe.
But wait—for them a single word—
Thy mercy on the vanquished, Lord!

See Johnnie Come Marching Home tonight at the Oper House.

As many who have seen it have said "Quincy Adams Sawyer" is a play that leaves a good taste in the mouth.

"The Punkin Husker" has gained a deserved success for it is a beautiful creation of a clever dramatist, a homely life story, permeated with the scent of morning glories and hollyhocks, the emblems of sweetness and simplicity tomorrow night.

"Facing the Music" is the title of a play in which Mr. S. Miller Kent will be seen at the Opera House on next Tuesday night. The presentation of this lively farce in this city will cause theatre-goers to give Mr. Kent a hearty welcome. It comes direct from its long and successful runs at the Garrick Theatre, New York and Powers Theatre, Chicago. Manager Roth has spared no expense in surrounding Mr. Kent with the best players obtainable.
