CLARKIE ON HYGIENE
Perfect Health like Mathematical Line an Imaginary

"Perfect health is like a mathematical line," said Dr. Clarke in an address before the women of the university Thursday afternoon.
It is an imaginary quantity, but approximate good health is a possible thing and should be aimed at.

"The matter of clothing is very important. The object of clothing should be to keep in mind, provision from sudden changes in the atmosphere and freedom of movement. Hats are not essential from a standpoint of hygiene. Shoes should be properly fitted to every foot and made to order. In the matter of exercises, physical training is urged in many places, to the detriment of mental growth.

"Two things are to be accomplished by means of exercise, rest and development. Walking is the best example of exercise for recreation here in the United States. Walking before going to sleep is especially good. As an example of exercise for the purpose of development, there is fencing, which is really work, and may be classed as an educative exercise.

"Foods should consist of aliments, starches, and fats in the proportion of about four times as much starch as either albumen or fat as a meal. The science of the proper proportions of foods is one which should be studied.

TWO BRAVE QUITTERS
Skidmore of Drake and Ecker, a student of Chicago leave School

Skidmore, Drake's giant tackle has left Drake University and returned to school and his wife and child in Indiana.

He entered the commercial department of Drake University stating that he was a brakeman from Kansas and had played last year on a local football team known as "The Terrible Swedes." It is now known that he was played guard on Kansas last year.

The Drake University regrets that they did not discover the true state of affairs until after the close of the football season.

ECKER QUIT THE
Walter Eckerstahl, Chicago's largest tackle, has left Drake University and returned to school and his wife and child in Indiana.

He entered the commercial department of Drake University stating that he was a brakeman from Kansas and had played last year on a local football team known as "The Terrible Swedes." It is now known that he was played guard on Kansas last year.

The Drake University regrets that they did not discover the true state of affairs until after the close of the football season.

MAN FROM GERMANY
A. O. BURMEISTER GOES ON STAND FOR DEFENSE
Confidential Friend of Crawley Says He Was an Affectee.

The defense in their cross-examination of witness Daugherty is to be brought up Monday afternoon session yesterday.

AFFECTION DEFINED
For the benefit of defendant's counsel, Daughtery defined affection as being shining around. Not being a mathematician, he could not, however, figure out for them the number of times Lord Steyne had called.

The witness reiterated his statement that the same direction examination, that Lord Steyne was the most honest in his appearance, would have given his chances at his party, of any of the lords of society.

The defense sought to get the opinion of the witness as to whether knowing a lad by hand was a mark of respect. Attorney Swindle objected to this as the witness was not competent to answer a question of social usage.

This ended the cross-examination.

GERMAN GENTLEMEN ON STAND
The next witness for the defense was the German gentleman, A. O. Burmeister. He had known Dr. Steyne since all his life and said that when Crawley married his daughter he displeased his son. This was loss to him of social position and financial credits.

"I was a personal confident of Lord Crawley," said the witess, and would have told me of his care to save her.

Wilcox Popular
The Muscigen Journal says of Prof. W. C. Wilcox's last appearance at that city, that he demonstrated, last evening before a large audience in the assembly ball of the P. M. Musser public library that he is a close student of American political affairs and a specialist on the constitutional period of American history. The lecture was the third of the series on the "Six Critical Periods of American History," on the sub-doing the Struggle for Union." He argued the case of St. Katherin's Wheel, the publicans of St. Katherin's School at Davenport, says, "One of the real treat of the school term was the lecture on the Eastern Question, by Prof. W. C. Wilcox, of the University of Iowa. Mr. Wilcox's present subject was so attractive and yet so important that the students in the school could understand and appreciate it. His method was so scientific that his friends that he will not return.

BACONIAN

Memory of Animals by Dr. Mable C. Williams

In the study of memory of animals two limitations confront the comparative psychologist; first, the sole avenue of approach to study of animal activities must be through the activities themselves, data of which must be collected and interpretation must be in terms of our own experience. We are entirely within the province of science to study them only as they really exhibit, by reading into the activities of our own experience.

In man memory is the reappearance of past experience in consciousness. It is customary to divide conscious memory into three stages. Retention, which is not psychologically but a physical fact dynamic in its nature. Reproduction which is the appearance in consciousness of a mental state similar to a former one. These two are in the process Recognition or localisation in time which is a strictly psychological process and consist of referring mental states to past experience.

Many instances of seeming memory in animals are recorded. When a cat, for instance, when it had found a good feeding ground, returned for his meal and after twenty-four hours took her with him to the same feeding ground by the same route. Fish, octopuses and snakes remember their keepers. Starfish seem to remember localities for they return to their eyes. Bees, wasps and ants can use complex mental phenomena. Varies showed by experiment that the crayfish could remember, its way out of a labyrinth. He found the same ability in the same among frogs, cats, monkeys, dogs, etc., and demonstrates, exhibit very remarkable memory pheno-

Experiences by which animals profit are of the chance, trial and error sort. It is clear that animals have the power of retention and reproduction of experiences. These two are in the similar in animals and man, but it is not so regarding recognition. It is doubtful that the time or place of experiences is preserved in the manner so often spoken of as cognitive. Memory in animals is of the desultory, rather than the conscious and ascriptive nature. It is not true that animals are capable of forming concepts.

Miss Everts has gone to Avon to give a recital.

Dr. Cady delivered a lecture last Thursday morning he expected to return to the university since Thanksgiving and has told his friends that he will not return.

THE DAILY IOWAN

The alcohol is available in the library, but the campus has a new student center. With a desire, presumably, to gain an unfair advantage in the debate, several pages of the Chinese Exclusion Act have been cut out of the congressional record. Such an action is a disgrace not alone to the individual, but to the debating interests, and to the university. Its perpetrator should not only be dismissed by the faculty, but should be ostracized by the student body. There is no place in university life for the cunning that stoops to such depths of underhanded littleness.

To win by fair means or foul is today considered unpatriotic in all dealings except those that lead to prison bars.

Iowa has stood and fought for cleanliness in all her contests. That our record in debate, in this particular, has been an enviable one, makes the disgrace the keener. We can feel thankful that it did not occur in an inter-collegiate debate.

The most serious part of the case is that circumstances have tended to force the blame upon innocent parties. We feel assured that the truth of this matter will soon be generally known and that the offenders will receive their well-deserved punishment.

The students of Iowa will not harbor such an individual in their midst. Blunted to all our ideals, with nothing but his crafty intellect developed he should be publicly and ignominiously kicked out.

Football Men Banqueted
The 1908 football men were banqueted last evening by Clark Aumnn, the proprietor of University Place.

After the excellent menu, songs, were sung, speeches made and university yells given. Those present were the players who were taken on the St. Louis trip, Coach Chalmers, Manager Spangler, and J. B. Reisenstein.
