Initiative in Meteorology.

The departments of the University are becoming so varied and numerous that few are aware of the progress in other departments. It is with great pleasure that the Iowan notes the compliments given the department of physics of the University by William J. Moore, chief of United States Weather Bureau, in a recent issue of the Monthly Weather Review. In speaking of the newly established course in meteorology Mr. Moore says "This is one of the few universities in the world that recognizes meteorology as a part of physics rather than of geography. Corresponding with this classification we understand that lectures at Iowa City cover the applications of thermodynamics, hydrodynamics and physics in general to the problems of the atmosphere thus laying a solid foundation for the future progress of this science."

Several good specialties were given and moving pictures told of Uncle Tom's Cabin and three rounds of the Corbett-Jeffries battle. The three nights' engagement closes this evening.
