A NEW COMMANDANT

Charles Burnett offered a more lucrative position—goes to Blee's Military School.

At this morning's meeting of the board of regents Colonel Burnett of the university battery was read and accepted and C.W. Weeks, First Lieutenant, U.S.A. at Ft. Sheridan, was elected to fill the vacancy. The war department will be asked to detail Lieutenant Weeks as commandant of the installation.

Colonel Burnett's resignation was for purely business reasons, the relations between the Commandant and the faculty and regents being of such nature as they always have been since he came to Iowa. The present excellent standard of the battalion is sufficient testimony of his efficiency. Colonel Burnett will go from here to become head of Blee's Military School.

Seniors Honor Carriar.

One of the most pleasant features of Monday's class day exercises was the presentation to the university of a portrait of Dean Carriar by the senior class of the college of liberal arts. The portrait is an excellent work and is from the brush of Dr. Sehultz, of Vienna. It will hang in the hall of liberal arts.

The class of '95 decided to depart from the old custom of giving banquet sizes this year, realizing that such gifts are quite often short-lived. Thus it was decided to establish the custom of presenting portraits to the university, and in order to be nearer the old man he here in length of service was chosen as the one to be honored. F.E. Sheddow made the presentation speech and Prof. MacDonald responded on behalf of the university. The seniors hope that the custom of dedicating portraits will be followed and that next year's senior class will select the man who stands next to Dean Carriar in length of service.

The other numbers on the program were:

Seniors address by the class president, J.E. Goodwin of Buri.

Class historic, Arthur C. Gordon, Iowa City.

Class poem, Ella Waterbury, Iowa City.

Class prophecy, Bertha Stanier, Iowa City.

Farewell address, H.K. Bolas, Missouri Valley.

Responses to farewell address, Prof. T.H. Mack brigade of the university faculty.

Prof. Henry Alberts and his bride have been in Washington, Iowa, for a few days, visiting friends. They are returning to New York, and leave for Europe Thursday.

FOOTBALL SCHEDULE

STIFF LIST OF GAMES FOR NEXT SEASON

Big Nine Games Come Early—One New Rule Will Cut Material

The football schedule for next fall has been announced and it appears that Iowa will have some pretty hard games to prepare for. Chicago, Northwestern and Minnesota appear almost certain to be in the middle of the schedule. The Northwestern date has not been definitely decided upon and the Grinnell date may be changed or cancelled.

Iowa's prospects for next fall are not of the brightest. A number of this year's stars have finished their football careers and the new conference rule as to first-year athletes will bar new men. Trainer Jere Delaney who has been called maat by the death of his father will not be here and this will necessitate the election of a stranger.

However there is much good material in this class and there is no occasion for any calamity howling. Coach Chalmers is still here and a few of the old war horses headed by Capt. McAnlog will be back. With such a strong nucleus there is no reason why Iowa should not again land the state championship and uphold her position with the conference teams. The contest between the first and second teams promise to be close with the 'variety looking closely to its laurels. The one year rule ought to work to advantage. The schedule follows:

Sept. 26—Otie City.

Sept. 29—Monmouth.

Oct. 4—Augustana.

Oct. 7—Chicago, Chicago.

Oct. 21—Minnesota, Minneapolis.

Nov. 8—Normal, Iowa City.

Nov. 11—Des Moines colleges.

Nov. 18—Iowa City.

Nov. 24—Alma, Alma.

Nov. 30—St. Louis University.

Those wishing to subscribe for the Iowaon for next year may have their subscriptions at the Iowaon office.

FAIRBANKS AT HOP

VICE-PRESIDENT AT ATTEND FUNCTION

Assembly at Senior Party Promises to be Large—The Committee in Charge

Vice-President Fairbanks will attend the Senior Hop at the old armory.

It is not an unusual distinction for parties at the State University of Iowa. Tonight's party promises to be the largest attended in the history of the University.

A cooling rain, this afternoon seems to remove the fear that the evening will be unusually hot. This fact will add to the attendance.

The members of the hop committee have been working for days to get the armor in shape for the party. It is said that the decorations far surpass any decorations previously attempted.

Myers orchesra of Cedar Rapids will play.

The members of the committee in charge follow:

Rev. l. Brown, Winfield; Finkbine, W. C., Ross, I. I., Struble, B. H., Bueyergast, Max Emmers, T. L., Griffith and James R. Goodwin.

Class Breakfast

The senior class of the College of liberal arts hold their class breakfast at the Kirkby Imperial Monday morning at nine o'clock. Not a very large number of the class were present but those who were there made merry and showed the spirit which belongs to the class of '95.

Degree Conferred

The state university of Iowa conferred an unusual degree upon Vice President Fairbanks to mark the shape of the degree of L.L.D. The presentation was made by Regent Babb following the commencement program.

Mrs. Arthur Cox, regent of Pilgrim Chapter of D.A.R. will entertain this evening at dinner Mrs. Fairbanks and the vice president. Mrs. Fairbanks is the national regent.

Fred Albert, who has just completed his junior year in the college of medicine, has taken up his brother's business in the state bacteriological laboratory, over which he will have charge this summer.

COMMENCEMENT DAY

Large Audience Listened to "A Chapter In American History"

Charles Warren Fairbanks, vice president of the United States, made the commencement address before hundreds of graduates, alumni and others in the Iowa City, Iowa, University Saturday morning. The announcement that one such address will be read through a foam of people. The commencement was almost coincidental with the appearance here of such a well known man.

Partly because of the appearance here of the vice president of the United States, and partly because of the fact that the class of 1905 calls itself the best that has ever graduated from the State University, the commencement exercises of today were unusual. Perhaps more in the history of the school have so great a number of alumni been present at the graduation. This fact in itself added interest. The
PHI BETA KAPPA DAY

REV. DR. ELIOT ADDRESSES HONOR SOCIETY

His Subject was "The Test of a University"—List of Initiates

Yesterday was Phi Beta Kappa Day, and the exercises were held in the hall of liberal arts and were opened with a vocal solo, "The Test of a University," by Miss Anna Close. Rev. Dr. A. Eliot of Harvard was the address of the day which was listened to by the large audience with the closest attention. His subject was "The Test of a University." Space does not offer to give the scholarly discourse in full and so many excellent thoughts were given that it would be impossible to enumerate all of them.

After giving his hearers a clear understanding of what education is, the speaker went on to show what a university really consists of and what it should be. He said in part:

"The test of a university is in its power to kindle the imagination, to enlarge vision, to apply moral ideas to practical affairs. The practical advantages which flow from education are inconsiderable, not momentous. The chief object is inspiration. Public and private moral probability are doubtless promoted by educated men and women."

The glory of the university is not in the number of its students but in the size of its endowments and in the capacity of its buildings, books, pictures, and specimens, by which the type of character moulded in its atmosphere in the standard of honor it maintains; in the best personality it develops. It lies in its capacity to interest the lives of men and women with the truth that makes them free and to point them to visions of high service that can but develop those on board. Fortunately no one received serious burns. The party was made up of students and commencement visitors. Those in the accident were:

Sadie Gobbel, Spencer; Ross Vandegrift, Armstrong; George Banta, Manchester; R. E. Dow, Denmark; Ed Ruff, Wilson Junction; John Edwards, Williamsburg; Margaret Thompson, Allison; Beth Thompson, Paul Kruse, Boone; Frank Allwine, Coralville; R. J. Edwards, Williamsburg.

Delta Gamma entertained last night and today their alumnae at a luncheon party.

The active members of Phi Beta Phi gave their annual breakfast in honor of their alumnae at West Branch yesterday morning.

SENIOR COLUMN

"A Russian's Last Will and Testament"

Honors were pronounced upon the Class of 1920, and Cast-S. E. Moore was named to the editorial board of the "Daily Iowan."

The send-in credit of the "Daily Iowan" for "A Russian's Last Will and Testament" was taken up in a feature article. This was one of the best features of the magazine and the most acceptable feature, well both among those who read the magazine. The inspiration of the Russian in the November No. 1 was given to the world of adventure.

The line of Russian literature by Max, Elia, and A. A. Alstad, was the most acceptable and the most inspiring feature of the magazine.

Miss Allwine, particularly of the Illinois, was the most inspired feature of the magazine. She differed for several pages, then one of the most inspired features of the magazine, the novel, was written by Miss Allwine.

Ray Fink of the Daily Iowan, exceptionally gave a clear and thoroughly good article. The Daily Iowan was filled with the most beautiful and her absorbingly inspiring.

The story of "A Russian's Last Will and Testament" was described by the Daily Iowan.

The phrasing of C. W. Wilson of the Daily Iowan was exceptionally beautiful. Although the Daily Iowan filled their pages with the most beautiful features, they remembered the Russian and their phrasing was exceptional.

The magazine of the Daily Iowan was exceptional. One of the most important phrasing was the phrasing of the Russian. The Daily Iowan respected the phrasing of the Russian and three times it was mentioned. The Daily Iowan was prominent in their column, "A Russian's Last Will and Testament," and the phrasing was exceptional.

Jacob Van Zandt who will direct the production of this well-wrought work, expressed the belief that the play was very approachable and that there were plenty of good roles to fill.

The actors were particularly praised for their portrayal of the characters. Miss Ethel K. Smith, who played the leading role, was commended for her ability to convey the emotions of the play. She played the part admirably and made it...

Baccalaureate Sermon

Bishop Henry W. Warren, D. D., of University Park, Del., delivered the annual baccalaureate sermon to the graduating classes Sunday afternoon. The exercises were held in the university armory before a large and appreciative audience. Rev. A. D. Leamer pronounced the benediction, the Rotarian Quartette rendered an anthem and the audience joined in the singing of hymns. President MacLean delivered a brief and forceful address to candidates for degrees impressing upon them the importance of social morality in their own success and in upbuilding of their alma mater.

Bishop Warren's theme was "Diverse Powers and our Relations Thereto"—his text was Romans I. 1. "Let every soul be in subjection to the higher powers." The sermon was masterful and clear and was listened to with the closest attention from the beginning. It is seldom that Iowans have an opportunity of listening to such an eminent divine as is Bishop Warren. Among other things he warned his hearers of ignoring the "higher powers" and showed the evil consequences nations of history have brought upon themselves by ignoring this law. "Agnosticism," he said "means national decay."
