OUR EDITORIAL STAFF.

It is with great pleasure that we announce today, an almost complete staff of editors and reporters for The Iowan. There are some places yet to be filled. Not quite all departments of the school are represented in the names that appear at the head of this column for the first time today. Those vacancies will be filled as soon as possible, so that the news of the school may be gotten more quickly and thoroughly.

The task of choosing editorial workers from the school is not an easy one, but the editor and manager feel that the choosing of the present force has been attended with great good fortune.

They are distributed throughout the various classes, departments and organizations of the school to an extent that makes them truly representative and all parts of the school may expect fair treatment and good care.

Part are experienced paper workers and are capable of taking charge of a department, or of the whole paper. Others are not experienced, but give promise of becoming first-class workers.

At a later time we shall have something personal to say of them by way of introduction.

GALEN EDWIN GREENE.

The many University friends of Galen Greene were much surprised and deeply pained to hear of his death, which occurred Tuesday, October 18, at his home in Green, Iowa. His illness was short and painful. Blood poisoning set in after an operation, and life lapsed after six hours of suffering, bravely endured.

Mr. Greene entered the University in the fall of 38. His excellent work in English soon attracted the attention of the department. A freshman theme, the description of a flying Turk, was commented upon by the head of the department as equaling in excellence in description anything that Dr. Walter Scott ever wrote. Nobody knew at the time who had received such unusual praise, but shortly after, a friend, chance to look over Mr. Greene's shoulder, saw his name on the article. Mr. Greene begged that it should not be mentioned.

Mr. Greene was sought as a member by the various literary societies, and after careful deliberation, cast his lot with the Zeta-thaives. Hear is work soon met with merited appreciation.

In his sophomore year he become one of the "Ten Immortals" who abdicated President Blythe of the freshman class on the occasion of the freshman banquet. This act, however, worthy of therown of governing bodies, from those in sympathy with darling, impulsive youth, must ever receive a quiet smile and kindly thoughts.

Mr. Greene used his enforced absence well, and in returning to the University in the fall of 1901, passed examinations that entitled him to junior standing. During this year he was Junior debating team of which C. F. Junior debaters and the University in the fall of 1901, passed examinations that entitled him to junior standing. During this year he was Junior at the representation of the Zeta-thaives in the Minnesota preliminary debate. He was also a president of the society.

During the school year of 1903-04, Mr. Greene studied law in his father's office at Green, Iowa. He returned to the University in the fall of 1904, and graduated from the College of Law in June, 1905.

It was not the honors that he won as a student that gave him his intellectual powers that earned Mr. Greene to his friends. His unquestioned integrity, his faithfulness to work, his rare capacity for friendship—those were the qualities that made him loved.

Mr. Greene had just begun the practice of law in partnership with his father. The older Greene had been looking forward with eager anticipation to the time when he was to be relieved of the heavy burdens of an increasing law practice, by a son in whom he had every confidence. For the bereaved father, mother, brother and sister, deep sympathy is felt by many University friends.
