Many Hyphenated Combination Walks Away With Everything in Sight.

The Irving, hyphen, bro, hyphen, octave, hyphen, and a lot more hyphens, seemed to have an unbreakable slate at the office this morning. Everything they said went, and the other people only had to be cheerful and philosophize.

The seniors of the College of Liberal Arts met at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon in the auditorium for the election of officers for the ensuing year.

Owing to the fact that P. P. Elinson, president of the class in his freshman year is now a graduate student, the meeting was called to order and proceeded over until the election of the new president, by Miss Caroline H. Standish, vice president, who proved equal to the occasion and showed that a lady can very well fill the position of chairwoman at a class meeting.

The Irving-Evo-Philosophy Independent faction scored a decided victory, taking all the offices but that of secretary, which was lost by a few votes.

Owen V. Davidson was elected president over A. N. B. B. of the Sophomore ticket. Miss Verna Shoff won out in the fight for vice presidency over C. G. Gilmore. Miss Jeannette Jensen was elected to the position of secretary.

THE COLLEGE PAPER AS A NEWS-PAPER SCHOOL.

One of the best opportunities for practical newspaper training is to working on the college paper. Take such a paper as The Iowan, for example. It has every problem to deal that any daily has. It is much more than a school, it is actual practice. But the character of the work such that it bears division to an extent that would not be possible in this ordinary daily.

There is scope for all kinds of taltit, and all kinds of talent, should be available in a school like ours. The editor and reporters now on The Iowan are kept busy hunting up the news and getting it ready for publication. And, of course, to publish the news is the chief function of a daily.

However, it would seem that some space might be given over to other features: We are of the belief that some space might well be given over to literary productions. Such could be long, but commendation would make them all the stronger. The Iowan will be glad to have other matter than ordinary news offered.

Work on The Iowan could be made much more valuable if, in some way, criticism of the English used might be secured. There is no place where better practice in composition is as-certed than in writing for publication.

The judgments as to punctuation and choice of words must be made rapidly, and there is but little time for revision. One of the best lessons one gets is from looking over his composition after it appears in cold, type.

It looks different then. Probably nine out of ten well educated people, not used to writing for publication, are invited to make many changes in their proofs.

It has been suggested that some plan for cooperation with the English department may be worked out to secure the greatest advantage for the people who contribute to The Iowan.

A FINE ORGANIZATION.

Hahn Festival Orchestra Which Opens Lecture Course Has Fine Reputation.

The Hahn Festival orchestra which opens the lecture course here on Saturday, October 28, is said by competent critics to represent the highest achievement in orchestral organization. This orchestra surpasses beyond comparison the smaller companies and orchestras offered to patrons of lecture courses.

Adolph Hahn, the brilliant young conductor of the Festival orchestra, who bears his name, is a rising star in the musical firmament of America. Talented to a marked degree, and with ability far beyond his years, his early successful appearances in our many and Italy won for him, at the age of eighteen, a professorship in the College of Music, Cincinnati. He has toured and traveled extensively as violin soloist as well as being assistent director of the Cincinnati Symphony orchestra. Mr. Hahn has gathered about him an aggregation of skilled and highly trained musicians, most of whom are regular members of the Cincinnati Symphony orchestra.

In the construction of his program he aims that graduation of interest be maintained, and the finale of his concerts leave an impression of entire satisfaction. The orchestra will be accompanied by Helen Carter McConnell, prima donna contralto.

Season tickets are now on sale at Wieneke's. Price one dollar.

AFTER MIDNIGHT.

Festivals of the drama are rare here and are often a bit of a disappointment.

FIRE-BELL LADS.

They Must Be Methodical—Ezet Officers on Probation.

The freshmen laws met yesterday afternoon and elected officers. A committee was appointed to draft a confstitution. The following were the elections: President, R. E. J. Morgan; vice president, D. E. Carroll; secretary, Lee Mitchell.

It is reported that things were lively in the meeting. The Freshman Chamber of deputies, in fact, is not a circumstance beside it. After much dis-tusion it was decided that the officers should be elected for only three months. Whether this plan is mod-ed after the Methodist probation system, or whether it is proposed to have frequent elections in order to make the officers go further has not been made sufficiently clear.

Iowa is heavy, with plenty of veterans in the line-up. Saturday's game will be the last one of importance on her schedule and she may be depended upon to put up a desperate fight to retrieve her record among the "Nine."—Minnesota Daily.
