At the Vandellite.

First Townend Formerly City Editor of the Republican writes of College Life at the Southern University.

(Daily Republicans.)

Mr. Edmunds will leave today, and will spend two weeks in Nashville, Tenn., at Vanderbilt University, I believe that some of the essentials of a good child labor law, which will be of some interest to those who are interested in the care of them.

The buildings are scattered all over the campus. Of course they have none to compare to our Iowa hall of liberal arts and medical buildings. They are all of brick but a new science hall is about to be erected which will be of some interest. The gymnasium looks like a large chapel compared to Iowa's new workout establishment, and would make a good sized shower bath if placed alongside the Iowa gym.

Saturday Vandy played Texas. It was the warmest game I have seen since I used to root for good old R. U. L. the best of the bunch. Their colors are old gold and black so naturally I yelled for the Commodores. When Craig went tearing down the field with the pig skids for an eighty yard run and touchdown, I shut one eye, imagined it was Reddy Griffith, and snarled "Too good for the Commodores." The Commodores were not to be compared with the Commodores. Tennessee is about to be baptised upper classmen.

It is about the same thing down there. The students are all lax, and when they are good they are good, and when they are bad they are bad. The Vanderbilt football yell when given right in the best over. It ends with the Confederate skycap yell. With a few changes it wouldn't sound so poor on Iowa Field. When the band plays "Dixie" in this country a stone wall couldn't stop the onslight of the Commodores. The term is given Vanderbilt students in general, but particularly the Varsity eleven, complimentary to Commodore Vanderbilt who gave the Liberal Education to the school when the school was young, and afterward the institution in name. When children are reading book Iowa will have the Vanderbilt yell for Iowa's approval. When given with vim it sure enough sounds great. Accept the last syllable of Iowa and give the Ith Bub quick with the last accented.

Vanderbilt! Vanderbilt! Vanderbilt! What's the matter with Ith? What? Has! Has! Has'! What's the matter with Iowa? Hef! Hef! Hef! Ith Bub quick with the last accented.

Two Trying Games.

Two Capital City Teams Will Play Great Games Against Hawkeyes.海口

Iowa does not expect an easy time in the next two games, but two hard gridiron battles are expected. Iowa should win both and then triumph over Ames once more, but low scores are expected. De Moines college has a fast heavy team, heavier than Grinnell's loan played last Saturday. De Moines held Grinnell to a tie score, and when he has been in Chicago Hamilton had perfected his present machine. A Grinnell man who saw the Grinnell-Drake game, says Grinnell won in ten. Hawkeye was here Saturday and went back to Des Moines to win his team on defense and to direct their men against the weak points he noticed in the Hawkeye's play. Drake will do his best to retrieve the loss of the Grinnell game and will strive to defeat both Iowa and Ames. The Iowa football fans can expect two fast games of football on the local grounds within the next two weeks.

DR. I. A. LOOS LECTURES.

Child Labor Legislation is Discussed at Marshalltown.

This evening at Marshalltown Prof. I. A. Loos discussed the subject of Child Labor Legislation to the Iowa Society of Teachers. The subject was well qualified to discuss the subject, as he has been intimately connected with organized charities, since the formation of the organization in this section.

The subject was discussed under the following heads:

I. Historical development of child labor laws.
II. The essentials of a good child labor law.
III. The movement for a child labor law in our own state.

Prof. Loos traces the evolution of the factory acts in England and the conditions that made them necessary. These acts were at first intended for the protection of women and children, and children have really done much for the labor movement generally. The first act was passed in 1832 under the ministry of Sir Robert Peel. Under free competition conditions developed that were shocking to decency, cruel and inhuman. The conditions were so shocking that the labor laws were the result.

In the United States child labor legislation became important a few years ago when the youth began to develop manufacturing. These laws were in the past, and are now, without supervision or control.

The conditions in Iowa are not so appalling as in some other states, but there are conditions that would be improved by a wise law.
The annual tour of Charles B. Hanford was completed Tuesday evening as far as Iowa City. People in the city are concerned for he will not return again for a year.

The house which greeted him was not as large as that of last year, but it was very responsive. Thus after time he was encored. At last the audience became so enthusiastic with his cheers that Mr. Hanford came forth and spoke. His words were few, but appreciative. He mentioned the loss he felt at not seeing the old manager of the opera house, but expressed the belief that Rowley would make a success as the new manager. The play was magnificent from first to last, each scene was fittingly set and while the company was good, Mr. Hanford as Shylock and Miss Druckman, as Portia were unusually strong. Portia’s “mercy speech” touched the heart of everyone but the Jew. Every one was pleased.
