BRUCE HERE TOMORROW, TO BE GUEST OF HONOR

HINT FUNCTIONS PLANNED FOR FAMOUS VISITOR

Right Ambasscdor Bryce has Long List of Today's Morning He Will Make Note-ation Address.

England's "first citizen," in this city, will induce Jan. Bryce, will here be the guest of honor of the University and of Iowa City. As a part of the forty-ninth convocation, on "The art of public speaking," he will command an audience at the University and take the capital city by storm. The alumnus who has been chosen for the efficiencies of the senior class and the place in the capstone (or "the pedestal") is enough to recommend the entire program to those who enjoy the lighter side of life.

It will be the pure comedy presented by any organization this year; and it will be peculiarly choice of the better sort—not the farcical kind in the following fall. It was made for the reception of additional musical societies which may be formed.

The French club will meet at the local theatre, and the Phi Gamma club will close its season with Doctor" and "The Secret Society." The secretary of the alumni association. Miss H. B. Hoyt, who is in charge of the play, will direct the orchestra. The members in their parts as artists are to appear in the finest and highest terms. Miss Blanche Wilson, who will play in the charge of the play, will be secreted for the first time on this program in a way.

City, (By Prof. C. H. Welch), chairman and president of the French club. Miss K. Kay, Dean A. K. Morrison, Professor E. Morrow, Lient. M. C. Weir, Professor C. B. Phillips, Mr. E. C. Hoal, as secretary of the principal association, Miss H. H. Hoyt, secretary of the student body; Mr. H. E. Cosgrove, as president of the student body; Mr. K. W. Christopherson, as president of the orchestra. The contest will be finite, and the French club will be determined by a show of hands from seven members.

Among the duties of the council are to appoint managers for each music society and a treasurer of the association. The present treasurer is Mr. G. H. Ellsworth and all funds of the organization are to be kept by him. In addition to the duties of the council, he has many others in store.

In conclusion, let us wish all good wishes to the French club and all societies and officers of this organization. The French club and all societies and officers of this organization.
SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA HAS GREAT MUSICIANS

FAMOUS EUROPEAN ARTISTS HERE THIS WEEK

Names Chosen From Best Musical Organizations of Germany, Austri, and Belgium.

The musicians of the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra, which is here today, are the most famous and respected musicians from Europe or America who have not contributed musicians to the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra, and hardly a conductor in the world who under whom some of the musicians have not played.

Richard Carowyn, the conductor, was brought from America about four years ago by Mr. Karl Florn, when he came to Boston as a conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, under permission from the German Emperor. Mr. Carowyn was second conductor and soloist of the Boston orchestra and prominent in that city as a soloist, teacher, and as leader of the Carowyn String Quartet. Mr. Carl Scherzer, second conductor of the Minneapolis orchestra, was a prominent member of the Boston Symphony Orchestra for several years and is also a soloist of distinction. He, like Mr. Carowyn, is a pupil of Joachim.

Franz Eckher, another prominent member of the first violin section, held several important positions in prominent orchestras in Europe, and is well known as a successful violinist. Joan Koch, principal of the viola section, comes from the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra direct from the renowned Bostonian orchestra, Germany, in which he holds an important position. He is a well-known member of the Minneapolis orchestra and plays upon an unusually fine instrument.

Carl Fischer, principal of the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra, is one of the best known and popular musicians in the world, and is in constant demand as a soloist. Mr. Fischer filled engagements under various European orchestras and was first violinist of the Philadelphia orchestra under Victor Herbert. Following this, a tour of the United States, he was engaged by the Minneapolis orchestra. Frederick von Wintour, principal base player, comes from an ancient German noble family and has served in the German navy for seven years. Music with him is a genuine passion, however; and he has played under such conductors as Arthur Nikisch and has been leading member of the Minneapolis orchestra.

THE SCHOOL OF MUSIC

The importance of the school of music in the University of Iowa is felt more and more since its establishment three years ago. The advantages offered by the courses in music and music have induced many talented students who would have gone elsewhere, to enter Iowa.

The school has experienced a steady and healthy growth both in its faculty and student body. It has come to occupy a place at Iowa which is to be respected, only do's it offer a musical education to its students, but, under the management of its faculty large numbers of talented students have been prepared to the public. The best musical talent obtaining in the world has been brought here for the special benefit of the students of music and the entertainment of music lovers in the university and the city.

This year the inaugural musical festival of the school of music is to be presented to the public. The University Choral society is to be assisted in the presentation by some of the Minneapolis Symphony orchestra and by such soloists as Arthur Middleton, David Duggan, Lionel Twallethy and Marletta Bagby.

Such an ambitious effort to present a musical to the public by university musicians is a departure at Iowa. The movement has not been repeated in magnitude by any organization in the university or city.

175 People to be on Stage

The largest number of people ever seen in a single production will be present Saturday night at the closing number of the big musical festival, when 175 musicians will appear on the concert. Of the city and the local Choral Society will furnish 166, the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra 4, which will remain the regular feature of the orchestra.

ed pleasers, and educational change to add to knowledge, is to throw away an opportunity that may prove a lifelong loss.

In all this advance towards the complete establishment of a college of fine arts the university has the best of precedent, for there are very few of the great universities that have set this college established, and so advanced a manner as to prove that it has become an important part of the university's educational life.

It is not our purpose here to give the educational details of the music, or other fine arts program, for that can be obtained from the various bulletins or from the catalog, but it should be more wisely known that the university has something to offer of educational worth here, and that the leap of university authority upon key defenses in any of the fine arts will secure the world at large that the recipient is really entitled along the line of the art.

MUSICAL ASSOCIATION

The Council is also eager to make the Glee club more than ever sought. The great number of the club's wide experience or give concerts to any extent throughout the state. Without overlooking the fact that the Council would like to see the Glee club concert range among the most important events of the musical year, the Glee club under the capable leadership of Mr. Clapp has given an unusually successful concert this season. The Women's Glee club's excellent organization with Mr. Clapp in preparing for an elaborate and in some respects a unique recital next month. This concert will be the best of the year for the solicitude of the club. The orchestra has worked this year with more zeal than ever before and has given a very successful concerto under the capable direction of Mr. Bremner. The music council has appointed as judges for the contest Miss Mary Halsey and Mr. Clifford Hakes. The music council has appointed as judges for the contest Mrs. Edlin S. Starbuck, Professor Foe. Clapp and Mr. Clifford Hakes. The music council has not always run for wriers with arrows. The header has been abroad in the wind more than once, and the necessary of making ends money has frequently been embarrassing. Perhaps some day the university treasury may put at least a small amount of money into these musical undertakings of students. Then more can be done. Meanwhile, all will take tout can be done.

Missoula Regulating Concert.

Halsey's concert was visible through a telescope one hour and fifty-one minutes before sunrise Saturday instead of 4 minutes as was erroneously stated in the story printed Friday morning in the Daily Iowan.

MUCH PROGRESS MADE
BY U. CHORAL SOCIETY

MUSICAL DEVELOPMENT REACHES
HIGH POINT THIS YEAR

Good Foundation Has Been Laid—Christmas Concert and May Festival Planned Next Year

(By Miss H. E. Howe)

The Choral society of the State University of Iowa was organized in the first place under the direction of Dr. Gilchrist. During this early per-tiod a very great enthusiasm was manifested, and some very creditable work was accomplished. The Chicago Symphony orchestra was as-curred to help in the rendition of the Messiah, and the production was a success financially and artistically.

Following Dr. Gilchrist's death, the organization was almost allowed to lapse, but was taken up when Mr. Cox came to the school of music. The first year Hiawatha's Wedding Feast was given; and the second year the Elijah was given, with some out-of-town singers and local choral accompaniment. Last year the two renditions of King Olaf, with local singers and local orchestara were the total of the society's public work.

Each year the society has grown in members and in personnel, until this year when such splendid results have been accomplished, partly from accumulated ability, but, most directly from the very competent lead-ship of Professor Fisher. The members are singers from the university and from Iowa City, all of whom must be able to read difficult music at sight. The works taken up are either oratorios or some such concert form of operatic production as the Faust. The oratorios are much more of a tax upon the Individual voices than is the operatic work, because of the heavy sustained choruses, but the opera calls for more dramatic feeling and dif-
cult tone shading in all the parts.

The feeling of confidence is so strong in the appreciation of the society's work by the "listening public" that definite plans will be made soon for the program for next year, which will include the annual Christmas concert and a May festival, with more work by the chorus than is given this spring. Members-ship in the society will be limited to those who can pass the required tests, and with the present set this year in the matter of artistic finish and precision, the Choral society will take its proper place in the ranks of similar societies in the middle west. During the present year the music in the university has reached its highest point, and from now on has only to build upon this good foundation which has been laid.

If you want to buy the latest in sheet music I have it—I also carry a fine line of classical selections and studies of all kinds.
I have a full line of strings for all instruments. My line of Pianos is the largest in the city. I have both floors and have from 15 to 20 pianos on hand most of the time.

USIC first trumpet, formerly of the Moscow orchestra, is one of the most capable players of this extremely difficult instrument in the United States. He studied at the famous Vienna Conservatory and was first violin of the famous Philharmonic orchestra of Leipsic. Before becoming a member of the Minneapolis orchestra he was first hornist of the Philadelphia orchestra, under the late Pritz School.

Edward J. Erck, another French horn player, is a hollday with birth and was educated in Germany. He played the French horn in several of the foremost European orchestras, traveled extensively, and later was first hornist in the famous Schubitz orchestra of which Cowen is conductor.

Henry J. William, the batpist of the orchestra, has made a national reputation as a master of his difficult and classical instrument. Coming from the famous Queen's Hall orchestra of London where he played under England's most renowned conductor, Henry J. Wood, he traveled as a soloist in America for three years.

Among others who might be mentioned are Albert Bruckner and Emil Schulte, bass players from the famous orchestra of Meiningen and Leipsic respectively; Calton Libby, a remarkably talented young Russian violinist; George Hansem, cellist, formerly of the Chicago orchestra; Gustav Boebel, cellist from Koenigsberg; Max Mathieu, French horn player, formerly with the Pittsburg orchestra. An important and capable member of the orchestra is WM. L. Packer, trombone, while Ade-
