UNIVERSITY SENATE HOLDS FIRST MEETING OF YEAR

SPARKS IS SPEAKER IN PLACE OF WILCOX

PRESIDENT OF PENNSYLVANIA INSTITUTION TALKS

Interested Address Given by Visitor at Assembly Wednesday

A surprise was sprung on the students Wednesday morning when Professor Edwin S. Sparks of the Pennsylvania state college spoke. Dean W. M. Wilson was to have spoken, but postponed his address in favor of the visiting president, who arrived shortly before his appearance as expected.

The Essentials and Necessities of the Subject

He made his address as an

The secret of the success of the Pennsylvania system, Professor Sparks declared, was that the college administration had been able to secure the services of first-rate faculty.

It was also voted to empanel a committee of five members to conduct the business of the college.

The election polls for the junior law class will be open to students of the junior, senior, and electee officers for the year.

The next election will be held by the senior class for the position of president of the university.

NEW METHODS BEING USED IN ADVANCED CLASSES WORK

Interesting Subject Presented in Psychology Classes

The department of psychology, under Prof. C. W. Hackney, is using a scientific method of teaching. This has been adopted for the higher classes. It consists of regular writing reviews by different questions printed in the psychology journals. Each review is worked on in whatever language the published article is written. Judge Hackney states that some fine work has been done.

His view of a work is by adding a bold-italic to the Journal of Educational Psychology, and writing editor for the PsychologiCal Bulletin. During the past summer he has served as chairman of the committee which drew up People's Weekly Summaries, edited under the auspices of the Psychological Review, also as chairman of the committee on "The Teaching of Psychology" by the American Psychological Association, and as single on the committee of the same association for the standardization of certain mental measurements.

Professor Hackney says that there is more original research going to his department than ever before. It is conducting a series of experiments on the psychology of music and Professor Hackney states that the students have made several original discoveries along this line.
