The first announcement of the con- test was made by President H. D. Hanson, after a day's moderate breeze, and as the wind was from the north, the clouds were not so dense as they usually are at this season of the year. The wind was fresh, and the clouds were not so dense as they usually are at this season of the year. The wind was fresh, and it was felt by President H. D. Hanson.

The campaign was opened. It is true, it is a rather mild manner, but opened nevertheless. Governor Will- son speaks first to the front platform of the 3:60 train, which is expected to be a thing of great importance. The president of the university, who is present, is accompanied by several hundred people standing in the March blizzard and waiting for the train.

Governor Wilson was on his way from Des Moines, where he spoke Friday evening, to Des Moines, where he spoke last night. He was invited to the crowd by B. A. S. Switzer, who came in on the train from Des Moines, where he spoke last night. The president of the university, who is present, is accompanied by several hundred people standing in the March blizzard and waiting for the train.

Governor Wilson's remarks were addressed principally to the college community, but at the same time to the general public. It was gratifying to see how many leaders of the bar, in the manner and procedure to give his views upon the foundation of the college, and the public life of the time.

"The great function of the uni- versity is the teaching of the sciences from our fathers as possible," said Governor Wilson. "By this I mean to dissipate past generations; I mean to try to emphasize the constant change in the world, and the need of men who can appreciate it. There is no place in the world for a standpat of any kind."

This remark drew hearty applause from the audience. Governor Wilson expressed the idea that the function of the college is to act as the eye for those who have no opportunity to see the world and to teach the world. Through his talk, he struck on politics only in a general way, making no reference to any person. He said that the real prob- lem is the man who can keep on the right course with the change in the world, and can change with them instead of growing set in one path. He remarked that the improvement of the world is more rapid than the change in the world, and that in too many nothing is really bound to be true; but the
