Y. M. C. A. BANQUET HELD AT BURLINGTON LAST NIGHT

Final Big Meeting of the "Campaign for Friendship" at Auditorium Tonight

The annual Y. M. C. A. banquet, and incidentally the first event of the big "Campaign of Friendship," was held last evening at the Burlington Hotel, from 6 o'clock to midnight.

The banquet was in every way a success. A good program was served, and after the feast the guests were treated to a well arranged "infinite variety of attractions." Professor J. L. Gillies presided as temporary chairman. Caspar Schlotz, of Des Moines, headed the list of speakers, and he proved to be one of the most interesting talkers the association has ever brought here. His subject was "What the Business and Professional World Expects of the University." Louis Pennington, president of the local Y. M. C. A., brought out the splendid fruits of the campaign the day before yesterday, and received the illustrated by numerous scenes of the illustrated by numerous scenes of the

The Iowan does not aim at national politics, nor is it intended to be a party organ. It is a medium for such mean and unfair criticism as the press is wont to slip into the department. The managers should try to make the appropriate distinction and eliminate the slander that goes in and pollutes a department which should be reserved for the importance of its dean and refugee.

PLAYS AND PLAYERS

"Hos trial at Rodighi"

"Hos trial at Rodighi," which is the production for next Tuesday,

March 11, to the Colonnade, is a dramatization of Meredith Nicholson's latest novel of the same girl, and is described as a "lunar" which "is the "House of a Thousand Candles," with a scene set in the same dramatic spot, and with the adventures Larry Donovan has in the task of the hero. "Hos trial at Rodighi" is easily proving the best, most marvelous play in years.

Max Mayer's ad quitted

rent that will induce tails of tails, tails setting for their romance of love and adventures, is well supplemented in this story of Indian country life; for no plot of re er days ever contains much past, whilst, unless written in the square inch that "Hos trial at Rodighi." And perhaps the caper part of all is the that adventures of Henry Holl and Rosalind do not even in the least probable the century; one can breath the air of the pine trees and inhale the fresh breezes of Lake, as realistic are the stage pictures and as natural the characters of this quaint little drama.

Larry has been left in charge of the Glennem place, upon John Glennem's departure for Europe. To him came a telegram, from a friend, a poet, placing under his protection of dear old Aunt Pat Hillrock and her niece, Helen, who are coming to St.

Louis, to be with her for the remainder of the summer—in order to escape the behavior of Henry Holl and his uncantered by his bitterness.

The letter has surprise-terribly disappointed with a stigma on him. But Aunt Pat, believing partly in his innocence, will not concede to give the money to Larry until Arthur is found. From the end of the first act when the other of the pursuit of Aunt Holl's daughter until the end of the play there is not a moment's lull in the action.

Mister Henry Holl, who has a success, in appearance almost a counterpart of Helen, the loving patron of the girl, is the leading division of the girl by Larry, who seeks to unravel all the Hillrock millions, the appearance in the area of a sister of Helen's, who turns out to be of the best humorous characters, and the exciting adventures lead up to a climax that must satisfy the expectation.
