Grassfield, Reed and Sjulin to Head Staff

PROGRESSIVE POLITICS INAUGURATED

Many New and Striking Innovations Will be Seen With Opening of University Next September.

Beginning next year the Daily Iowan will undergo a new management. Ralph O. Grassfield, former Col. Gov. has for the past four years been with the Col. Republican and has had considerable experience with college newspapers. Professors A. Reed and Carl G. Sjulin are to be managing editors and business managers.

The new management has already planned the work and politics of the Iowan for the coming year. The paper will be continued along the same lines that has been the past, but many new features will be added. The special features, including the 'Daily Iowan Yearbook,' will pass next year as usual, in addition to the college editors. Students from some of the colleges of the university have gone to the president with complaints that the Daily Iowan does not represent them fairly. This year no such happenings will be reported, every college will have its special editor chosen from the college itself. These college editors will join their different colleges and see that each receives fair and impartial representation in the Iowan.

Daily Iowan Creations

The Daily Iowan should be strong enough to take a stand on any matter of interest to the university and the local community. It should be recognized as "the" daily paper of Iowa. But one student who is learned and interested, as he should be in all fields. Hence the new managers will this coming year create what shall be known as "the Daily Iowan, Greater than Columbia." This combination shall consist of representatives from every school and college in the majority of athletic events, the public opinion, the faculty, the leaders of the political, literary bodies, the intelligent part and women of the women's organizations; and, if ever a small committee would meet with the Iowa managers by these meetings all matters of importance will be different from every possible angle. The policy of the Iowan shall be driven from these meetings. Its stand on every position will thus represent not the sentiment of any one student, but the concentrated sentiment of some of the strongest men and women of our university.

-- Special Articles --

Special editors will have charge of the different interests of the university, such as athletics, current events, etc. This will be of great importance and will cover each department thoroughly. All editors will be given consideration, and the student body made to realize what the Iowan is doing in the athletic world.

Officer Representative Staff

The reporter and poet and the typographer of a paper, the Iowan will next year have the benefit of this year's efficient staff. Added to this will be several of the strongest students of the university, thus the Daily Iowan representative staff will be representative of all university interests, and will issue a live daily paper.

-- Special Sunday Pages --

The staff will meet next year in order to augment a special page on Sunday, for Sunday morning. This will be a more interesting and entertaining paper.

-- Notes --

It is planned, each month, to include an extra wide edition which will emphasize the beauty of some college or some university activity.

-- Athletic News --

The Daily Iowan will send its athletic editor to all events and will hold away from home and the audience at home, the football, basketball, baseball, track and field events, horses' tournaments, etc., will be wired to the Daily Iowan, thus giving the readers the news as soon as the big news can get across the state.

The most delightfully dainty thing in the world is the American girl graduate, the June bride, the summer girl, in appropriate apparel, whether it's ammunition cassack, at the wedding, or set out among the blossoms and other lesser beauties of nature.

Ready to win games for other twirlers as well as himself. Meeting a beat a little better than half way, he was expected just inside of third against the left wall, and Landen came across the winning line with the advantage of the application of the methods. The scores:
