E. F. Parsons represented the engineers and in a forceful way convinced everyone that the dents were behind the engineers with all their might.

E. K. Johnston of the Iowa City Alumni was the principal speaker of the meeting said in part:

"I heartily approve of everything that has been said here to night. I believe that the engineers have taken hold of the matter in the only true and logical way. It looks like the university would trade a stream shovel, a dynamo, and a tramway for a pig factory. We need a pig factory but we also need the engineers to eat that pig. This meeting tonight is a meeting of the whole university and not of one part. Any movement that takes away any part of the university will cripple the university in the same way that one would be crippled if you should lose both hands or feet. It is not a question of today or tomorrow but of all time to come in the event that the college

A gift to mother is the best gift in the world.

She is more interested in you and your college course than anyone else. Gifts to her now mean pleasant memories to you in the future.

Why not give her nine copies of a standard college magazine telling her each month of this university you are attending?

The Iowa Alumnus can be had for $2.25 a year, paid before Oct. 26. We have been present. The situation was discussed from every known standpoint. Every member of the college was appraised.

THAT ENGINEERING SPIRIT

It is with pride that we point out by a crowd of men and women full of Iowa enthusiasm and spirit!

Send the Band to Minnesota

In keeping with the spirit of the university, let us send the band to Minnesota with the football team on Oct. 26. We have been with diverse misfortune this year. We must strive to the occasion and meet the situation squarely, not letting adversity get us down for too second. Our anchor is not dampened, as evinced by the news meeting of Final Band.

THIS CONCERNS YOU

Are you keeping in close touch with all Iowa affairs? Or are you "growing away" from the University through failure to receive news from your Alma Mater properly? A cure for the "dead" graduate is found in a subscription to

THE DAILY IOWAN

"The Official University Daily"

The State Board of Control has determined to reorganize this University—to wipe out the Engineering College and bring to Iowa several hundred girls from Ames and Cedar Falls. The opinion prevalent here is that it is all a great mistake—that it kills our prospects of becoming one of the great universities of the country. What are Iowa men going to do about it? Two mass meetings have been held, and a definite policy is being formulated.

Students, Stop! Look! Listen!

Every Alumnus Needs The Daily Iowan

In order to keep in touch with the situation. Metropolitan dailies may give you conjecture. The Daily Iowan gives you the FACTS from the "inside."

Read What One of Iowa's Most Prominent Alumni Says in Part:

"The real mission of a University Daily always appeared to me to be not only to supply a record of current events at Iowa, but to strengthen this University as a national rather than a local institution. I have often had in mind to suggest to the President of the University, an active campaign thru the Daily Iowan, to 'sell,' as we say in business, every alumnus facts to prove that the University of Iowa is one of the greatest state universities, and give him reasons for this so that he might use them in conversation with men from other universities."

A subscription to the Daily Iowan in the hands of every Iowa man and woman will do more to keep "Iowa Spirit" alive than all reunions, banquets, and alumni meetings ever can. Nearly four hundred alumni are now receiving the Daily Iowan. So should you.

The golden age of a new day.
Reapers the clouds of purple away.
To rise in new-born glory.
The warriors in dress of gold
And the fighters, clad in purple bold
Met on the field by the river.

Anxious minds and hearts affrighted
Cheered on the forest-forged armament's gains
And through purple lines crazed was the way:
Making the story by thousands told

The eagles up from their nests
Dwelling the purple royal hue.
Proclaim a toothy glory.
