Additional building	40,000

Iowa Gymnasts to Turnfest

It was announced by the physical training department of the university that Iowa would be represented at Cedar Falls in the state gymnastic turnfest to be held there this spring. Last year's team expected to go, but financial difficulties prevented. This year's team has been avoided, and the team secured of a trip there. Iowa has a good team of gymnasts, and they would make a creditable showing.

MISS EVERTS IS CHARMING READER

English Instructor Writes Fine Appreciation of Noted Woman Who Appears Here

A deserved tribute to the merit of Miss Katherine Jewell Everts, who is soon to appear in Iowa City, has been written by one of her many admirers. The appreciation follows: The many people of Iowa City who had the pleasure, a few years ago, of hearing Miss Katherine Jewell Everts read, are glad that she is again coming to the university. Her worth has made her absence seem a long one, and the fact that she has been secured for another appearance here is good cause for rejoicing.

Miss Everts differs from readers in general. She has squarely faced her responsibility as an interpreter of great literature and she has closely and fearlessly thought out a way of procedure toward the realization of her art as she believes in it. Assuming in her relation to her audience, the obligation of truth-sharing, she grasps both the intellectual and the emotional side of her subject, then with keen understanding as the background of her feeling, she identifies herself, through a fine and broad sympathy, with the creator of the lyric or the characters of the drama which she reads.

Miss Everts's emotion is never loud. She uses few gestures. A voice of remarkably musical sweetness and a personality of magnetic richness are her main instruments for communicating her thought and feeling. Her voice is beautiful; her manner, charming and infectious.

The young women whose efforts are bringing Miss Everts to the university again, merit approval. In taking this step they are doing something more than finding a way for people to pass an evening agreeably. Those who have heard Miss Everts once, or a dozen times, know that an evening with her is bound to be passed valuably, too. She is one whose message holds so much of interest and beauty that these qualities remain long after her person has vanished and her voice has died away. She makes the busy man feel that his hours of listening have been anything but wasted; she shows the idle man how to indulge his taste for leisure in a refined and noble way.

Among the mottoes that the girls in the literary societies of the university of an earlier day cherished, mottoes that the editors of the first "Junior Annuals" used religiously to publish, was one that still clings to the memory, "We gather light to scatter." In this first attempt to bring gifted women to Iowa's audience chambers, the young women of the university are particularly happy in selecting Miss Everts. She is a living version, in the flesh and the spirit, of the old maxim. It gathers light—and powerfully radiates it.

PANDEAN PLAYERS TO GIVE "THE SENATOR"

HAVE BEEN PRACTICING FOR TWO WEEKS UNDER DIRECTION OF E. H. LAUR

Cast Will Include Many Well-Known in University Amateur Dramatic Circles—Date of Production Not Yet Announced.

The Pandean Players have been practicing for the past two weeks on their latest production "The Senator." This play teems with modern political life and is on the same order as "The Witching Hour" and the "Man of the Hour." It is said that it will be the best play given by a university dramatic organization in the last two years. The membership in the Pandean Players includes many who have appeared in plays given in the university in years past, and the parts are conceded to be exceptionally well cast.

The plot of the play is laid in Washington, D. C., and abounds in every act and in each situation with a charm and variety, which is pleasing and will not fail to grip the attention of the audience from the rise of the curtain to the final act.

The cast is as follows: Senator Langdon, Richard Vigers. "Bud" Haines, George Glick.

Miss Catherine Langdon, Miss Kifer. Miss Hope Georgea Langdon, Miss Young.

Mrs. Spangler, Miss Starke. Senator Peabody, J. B. Arthur. Senator Stevens, Frank Seydel. Representative Norton, Karl Brueckner.

Dick Cullen, Arthur Bailey. Miss Butterworth, Miss Daniel. Clerks, Gyon Whitley and James Addison.

Randolph Langdon, Jay Barr. The play is under the direction of Mr. E. H. Laurer, who was formerly a prominent member of the university of Michigan Dramatic club. No definite date for the play has been announced as yet, but will be before the end of the week.

Swan-Ackerman

Yesterday it was learned that recently Miss Mary Swan and P. C. Ackerman were secretly married in Chicago. This was a great surprise to the many friends of these well known university students. The bride is a graduate of the nurses' school here, and the groom is a student in the liberal arts college, being also a member of the Sigma Chi fraternity.

Cosmopolitan Delegates Report

The delegates of the Cosmopolitan club to the national convention gave a report at the meeting Saturday evening at Close hall. Mr. Bose and Mrs. Mekota, the delegates, gave a complete report that contained many interesting facts concerning the growth of the club and the present enviable condition that it now enjoys in most colleges and universities.

TO HOLD ANNUAL DEBATE FRIDAY

Philos and Irvings Will Contend for Championship Debate of the University of Iowa

When the Philos and the Irvings clash next Friday night, both teams will be ready for a fierce fight. Since the Marshall Laws have withdrawn from the Forensic League, the winning team will meet the Zets, who won the championship last year. Both teams have been working at top notch, and are ready for a hard battle in the preliminary debate.

Another thing that lends interest to the contest is that the ruling with regard to the finals has been changed by the Forensic Council in that the winning team in the preliminary debate will have to change sides of the question for the finals. This has been decided to be the fairest possible ruling for all concerned, as all teams will be obliged to be ready to debate either side of the question.

FINAL TOUCHES ARE MADE ON NEWMAN-C. F. U. PLAY

"A Winter Night's Tale" Will Be Staged January 22 by Catholic Organizations

The final touches are now being placed on the preparation for "A Winter's Tale," the Shakespearean play that the Newman and C. F. U. societies will stage soon. Miss Willard, of the public speaking department, who is devoting herself to the coaching of the play, said today that she was much pleased with the progress that had been made. Miss Willard thinks that an especial treat will be given the public on the night of January 22.

One of the main features of the performance will be the rustic shepherd's dance, in which 12 girls and 12 boys will participate. This will bring at least 24 people onto the stage at the same moment several times during the evening. The scene will be characteristic of early English rural life. The costumes of these young rustics will portray the mode of living and the manner of merry-making among the pastoral classes of that early day. Over forty young people will take part in this entertainment that promises so well.

All costumes will be ordered from Omaha, and the management is assured that these will be especially fine. Everything will be in keeping with the nature of the production, and no effort is being spared to show the public just what effect was produced in the original Shakespearean playhouses. There will be no stage scenery proper, such as is found in the modern opera houses, but the audience will be greeted with the kind of good acting that replaces scenic effects.

IOWA PHYSICS LAB. IS VERY FAMOUS ONE

NEW BUILDING IS MOST PERFECTLY ADAPTED OF ANY IN UNITED STATES

Physics Department at Iowa Has One of First Laboratories in the United States—Was Famous Even Abroad as Early as 1870.

The fact that the university of Iowa has today a physics building more perfectly adapted to its purpose than any other physics building in the United States. Laboratory work study of the history of the department at the university. This study was made by C. R. Aurner, and a part of it has just been published in booklet form.

Among the interesting facts developed was: First, that at the university of Iowa was started one of the first experimental laboratories in the United States. Laboratory work in physics began at the university in 1869. The fame of this laboratory then spread not only over this country but to England and Europe. An English traveler in the 70's visited the university, and on his return to his country, wrote an article in Nature, in which he said: "It is deplorable to think how few school laboratories there are in England which could in any way vie with that of the university of Iowa."

In the same year that laboratory instruction was instituted at the university of Iowa the Boston Institute of Technology commenced similar work, but not on nearly so large a scale. In Iowa the appropriation for these laboratories was started July 16, 1855, when a sum of $500 was set aside for that purpose. The chair of chemistry and of physics became separated in January, 1856. In 1870 a magazine was started at the university, "The American Scientific Monthly." Through the pages of this publication it is learned that "more than 200 students" had experimented in the university laboratories from September to March, 1870 and 1871.

Two Interesting Lectures

The students and the people of this city will have two opportunities on Wednesday to hear Doctor J. A. Lomax on American ballads. Dr. Lomax is an authority on this subject and has collected at first hand from cowboy, rancher, miner, and gambler, the songs which grow up on the frontier to express the lives and the emotions of these rough, simple folk. Round-up, Indian raid, cattle rustling, and train robbing furnish heroes for these ballads. Among favorites are, Texas Rangers, The Cowboy's Lament, Hard Times, Jesse James, Jack o'Diamonds, and The Shanty Boy. At 3:30 Prof. Lomax's subject is "The Songs of the Cowboy," and at 8 o'clock "Negro Ballads of the Cotton Fields." Both lectures will be given in the L. A. assembly room and will be open, without charge, to the public.

A PECULIAR SITUATION

At the meeting of alumni of the university in Cedar Rapids last week the arguments of the state board on the engineering situation were presented by J. W. Boyd of the financial committee. Mr. Boyd made several interesting statements, among other things that the colleges of law and medicine as well as the department of English in the college of liberal arts had been starved to support engineering at Iowa.

Perhaps Mr. Boyd did not pick these colleges merely because they came to his mind first yet anyone who had studied the situation would be led to believe that he had pursued some such course.

The day after Mr. Boyd spoke at Cedar Rapids the university gave out the announcement that the medical college here was rated by the education committee of the American Medical association as in class "A-plus." This is the highest rating that it is possible to give to a medical college. It would naturally follow that the medical college at least "had no ribs showing" from its starvation.

As to the law college we were always led to believe that the university had one of the finest law colleges in the middle west. In fact, the university has gone to great length to prove the fact to prospective students. Also a large per cent of the prominent men in both state and national politics in Iowa have degrees from this "starved" institution.

As to the English department, it is a branch of the college of liberal arts and could scarcely be starved without affecting that college in some way. Still the effectiveness of the liberal arts college can scarcely be questioned, even by Mr. Boyd.

The women's literary societies have leagued together and are bringing this interesting reader here; if they are supported as they should be, there will be other great men and women here in succeeding years.

FOR ALL STUDENTS

The Junior Prom is a Junior Prom only in name. In fact, it is a party held by the juniors of the liberal arts department. Unlike the junior parties of other universities it is not a real university function in which all juniors from all departments take a part.

Now, it would be an advance toward a better university autonomy if the Junior Prom and other class parties were general university functions. Then each department would have a real interest in the big parties. As it is, all the men in charge of the prom, the hop and the cotillion are liberal arts men.

GRADUATE STUDENT WILL SPEAK ON RUSSIAN TOPICS

Will Be Heard at Midweek Meeting of Y. M. C. A. to Be Held at Close Hall Tonight

"The Bearing of the Russian Revolution Upon the Ideals of the Russian Student," will be the subject of an address which will be given by I. Rubenstein at the midweek meeting of the Y. M. C. A. this evening.

This is a topic of special interest at this time because of the new Duma which is meeting at this time. The proceedings of it and of some of the other institutions of Russia will be treated in the address this evening. Mr. Rubenstein is especially well qualified to speak upon his subject as he is a native of Russia and belongs to that race which has won the sympathy of the world because of its terrible treatment by the Russians. He has travelled extensively and has gone around the world once. At present he is taking graduate work in the university here and preaching at a large country church near Lone Tree.

The meeting which will be held at Close hall will start promptly at 7 o'clock. Special music has been provided and every man in the university is invited to attend.

Figg-Melekian Nuptials Friday

Miss Emma Irene Figg and Yeghia Melekian were united in marriage at the home of the bride's parents, 21 North Dubuque street, last Friday evening. The bride has been a student in the university, and has attained some attention as a poet in this state. The groom hails from Armenia, Turkey, and is the son of a priest in the Christian church at that place. He is a graduate of St. Paul's college at Carthage, Asia Minor, and is taking post graduate work here. He has been in this country two and a half years.

Lecture Tonight at Close Hall

Tonight at Close hall the first of a series of three lectures will be given. The subjects for these lectures are "The Debts We Remember," "The Debts We Forget," and "The Debts We Pay." The first of the series is to be given tonight by Mrs. Seashore. The other two will be given by Mrs. Aurner and Mrs. Wilcox.

All the girls who have the banks for systematic giving toward the support of Miss Kueg in China, are asked to bring them in tonight with the amount they have pledged for these first twelve weeks, as part of the amount pledged is to be sent to her before the first of February.

The meeting will be over promptly at 7:45.
