SULPHURIC ACID FUMES OVERCOME UNIVERSITY GIRL.

OCTAVIA BELLOWS MUST RETURN TO HOSPITAL TO CURE OLD WOUNDS.

Violent coughing and inhaling of fumes caused Octavia Bellows, freshman, to be carried from the physics laboratory in the department of chemistry of the University of Iowa and taken to hospital Tuesday night.

The incident was the second in two days that brought Octavia Bellows in contact with sulfuric acid fumes.

Yesterday afternoon Octavia was thrown into a cloud of the fumes in the laboratory of the department of chemistry and, according to the testimony of the witnesses, passed out. She was then carried to the hospital, but as soon as she recovered consciousness she was sent home and is expected to recover.

GOTTIE THIEF

There was a time in the history of the world, so we are told, when the custom was not considered a crime to take from those who had more than their just share of worldly goods. However, that custom has long since been tabooed among the cultured people of the world, and there have been no trials of alleged criminals—witless forgers for their repentance.

Somehow in the vicinity of Iowa there exists a person who has the wrong view on life. Whether this person believes that he has not received his share of worldly goods, whether he is mentally unbalanced, or perhaps, whether he is cold; it is impossible to say at this time.

Certainly, there is someone who is time-consuming in the good, and there are three others who are on the short end. For Wednesday three overcoats mysteriously disappeared from one of the University buildings.

For the thief, which has been going on about the University buildings and grounds for some time, has extended from the lower postage stamp to articles of much value. All of which goes to show that there exists somewhere in the basket a means by which one is not only able to carry about in one's pocket. church spends upon its own work even when it is necessary.

Near the hour of noon, most of the players being done between 3 and 4 o'clock. In the absence of the crowd condition, the department has had to make the rule that only one game may be played if there are more than twenty waiting for the court.

Do you ever wonder why the folks who feel so blessed by being able to wear white coats?

The answer is simple. It is an attempt to keep down the H. C. of L. here. We do not like to have a score of clothes every day or by having someone drop a bit of acid down your coat, or by accidentally burning against a Hoover furnace which fairly bakes holes through everything within which it comes in contact.

No, people who work with chemicals don't wear white coats.

Do they want to appear to neat and sanitary; their wear must to save their good clothes.

OLD MAN WINTER ARRIVES!

YIPPIE!!! With one furious blow, Old Man Winter drove the glinting icicles down and out toward the frozen earth. Hurrupps near here felt the shock, drew up their shoulders and shook their heads as if expecting to receive scolding.

Many a housewife lost her patience due to old Man Winter. She took full advantage of the free outdoor air, the increased traffic density, the howling wind, and the bright street lights, and the result was that he is to be blessed, as determined Wednesday night, to knock the mercury down below zero. "Ain't been that low since 1897," according to Weather Bureau people.

A keen analytical spirit has caused a Purdue student to compute that he has saved $900 since he entered college. This is more than the average student's savings for three years' social activities. This should be an inspiration to some of our other party makers.—Daily Iowan.
